Campagna Jr. The blonde, blue eyed beauty, stands a petite 5-foot, 1-inch and tips the scales at 95. Miss Campagna, a Miss Sikeston finalist, will attend Memphis State University this fall.

Gloom Falls in Russia Upon Learning Deaths Of Three Cosmonauts

MOSCOW (AP) — The three Soyuz 11 cosmonauts died today as their space ship brought them back to earth from the world's first manned orbital space laboratory and a record of nearly 24 days in space.

An official announcement said the three spacemen—Lt. Col. Georgy Dobrovolsky, flight engineer Vladislav Volkov and test engineer Viktor Patsayev— completed their flight program Tuesday and communicated with ground control on the way down. Soyuz 11 made a smooth landing where it was supposed to, the announcement said, but the rescue crew that opened the hatch found the men dead.

The announcement published by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the cause of the deaths is being investigated. It gave no indication what they might be.

It was the second Soviet space flight to end in disaster. The first Soyuz spaceship crashed on April 24, 1967, after tangling in its parachute straps, and cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov was killed. No American spacemen have been killed in flight, but three astronauts—Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom, Lt. Col. Edward H. White II and Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee—died Jan. 27, 1967, in a flash fire aboard Apollo 1 during a test on the launching pad.

All three cosmonauts were married. Dobrovolsky, the flight commander who was 43, and Patsayev, 37, each had two children, while Volkov, 35, had one son.

Soyuz 11 carried them into space at 7:55 a.m. on Sunday, June 6. It was the first space flight for Dobrovolsky and Patsayev, but Volkov had made 80 earth orbits in October 1969 aboard Soyuz 7.

Soyuz 11 linked up on June 7 with the 17½-ton space laboratory Salute, which had been orbiting the earth unmanned since April 19. The cosmonauts transferred to the bigger space lab and orbited the earth in it for nearly 23 days in what appeared to be a highly successful advance toward the permanent manned space station which is the goal of the present Soviet space program.

Tass said the men completed their flight program "in full" on Tuesday and were "directed to make a landing." The news agency gave this account of the fatal descent:

"The cosmonauts transferred the materials of scientific research and the logs to the transportation spaceship Soyuz 11 for return to earth.

"After completing the transition operation, the cosmonauts took their seats in the Soyuz 11 ship, checked the onboard systems and prepared the ship for unlinking from the Salute station.

"At 9:28 p.m. Moscow time— 2:28 p.m. EDT—the Soyuz 11 spaceship and the Salute orbital station separated and continued the flight separately. The crew of the Soyuz 11 spaceship reported to earth the unlinking operation passed without a hitch and all the systems were functioning normally.

"In order to carry out the descent to earth, on June 30, at 1:35 a.m., after orienting the Soyuz 11 spaceship .its braking engine was fired and functioned throughout the estimate time.

"At the end of the operation of the braking engine, communication with the crew ceased. According to the program, after aerodynamic braking in the atmosphere, the parachute system was put in action, and before landing the soft-landing engines were fired. The flight of the descending apparatus ended in a smooth landing in the preset area.

"Landing simultaneously with the ship, a helicopter-borne recovery group, upon opening the hatch, found the crew of the Soyuz 11 spaceship ... in their seats, without any sign of life. The causes of the crew's death are being investigated."

The site of the landing was not disclosed, but presumably it was in the steppes of eastern Kazakhstan, where the last several Soyuz ships have landed.

The early morning announcement of the tragedy spread gloom through Moscow. People traveled to work with downcast, greif-strained faces. The lively chatter and smiles of those who had not heard the news disappeared as soon as they were told.

Moscow Radio broadcast serious music following the first announcement. Moscow television, normally silent during the morning, broadcast black-framed portraits of the three men against a background of funeral music.

Pentagon Papers Released

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara recommended as early as Nov. 8, 1961, that President Kennedy combine any commitment of American troops in Indochina "with a willingness to attack North Vietnam," say the top-secret Pentagon papers.

According to the Pentagon documents released late Tuesday by Sen. Mike Gravel, DAlaska, McNamara sent his idea to Kennedy on behalf of Roswell Gilpatric, deputy secretary of Defense, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

They were "inclined to recommend" a program set forth by Gen. Maxwell Taylor, Kennedy's special military assistant, that a U.S. task force be sent into the Mekond Delta, scene of heavy floods as well as an area of Viet Cong strength.

The study, a large part of which was read aloud by Gravel at a hastily called night session of his subcommittee on public buildings and grounds, said Taylor told the President the force would have to engage in combat.

Gravel entered the classified story into the record of his subcommittee, then handed it out to newsmen.

The Nov. 8 McNamara memo, according to the study, said the Taylor program should be adopted "only on the understanding that it would be followed up with more troops as needed, and with a willingness to attack North Vietnam."

Three days later, Nov. 11, McNamara reversed his position in a joint memo with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, recommending deferring the dispatch of U.S. troops.

President Kennedy accepted this position, athough the papers gave no reason for either the switch in McNamara's view or Kennedy's motives in following the Nov. 11 advice.

"I have read these documents and I am convinced I am in no way jeopardizing this nation's security." The freshman senator then told a clutch of 50 spectators, newsmen and congressional aides, "What I do today—what we do here today—is because we love this country."

Then he began reading the papers, minus footnotes, supporting documents and any military facts he regarded as endangering national security.

Three hours and 31 minutes later, Gravel, his voice wracked with sobs and cracking from weariness, ended his reading and said:

"The greatest representative democracy the world has known, the nation of Jefferson and Lincoln, has had its nose rubbed in the swamp of petty warlords, jealous Vietnamese generals, black marekteers and grand-scale dope pushers."

From the time he opened the session in Room 1300 of the New Senate Office Building until he left the paneled hearing chamber, Gravel presided over something Capitol Hill veterans could not match in their memories.

Gravel said he had intended to read the Pentagon papers to the full Senate, but had been prevented by procedural objections from Asst. Senate Republican Leader Robert Griffin.

At first, Gravel said he would read to newsmen the entire study—a 30-hour task.

But when he stopped he hadn't even finished the first volume. So he provided copies to some news agencies.

"I obtained the study last Thursday," Gravel told newsmen during a break in the reading, "and have spent much of my time getting acquainted with their contents.

"I have read these documents and I am in no way jeopardizing this nation's security."

Dexter Firm Will Build Skill Center

HOWARDVILLE — Brown Construction Company of Dexter last night was awarded a contract to build a vocational - technical skill center for $2,346,000 by New Madrid county R-1 enlarged school district, pending approval by the Economic Development Administration.

Cost of the center and equipment will be financed by a $1,624,000 grant from EDA and $1.1 million school district bonds.

The contract allows 17 months for construction. A penalty clause of $100 per day applies if construction is not completed in that time is included and a bonus clause of $100 per day if construction is completed before the allotted time.

The center, at the junction of Interstate 55 and highway 61, south of New Madrid, will provide job training facilities for high school students, dropouts and adults.

$40,000 Grant to Aid Six Counties

WASHINGTON — Approval of a $40,600 grant to help continue a program of planning for economic growth in a six-county area of Southeast Missouri was announced today by Robert A. Podesta, assistant secretary of commerce for economic development.

The Bootheel Economic Development Council, with headquarters in Malden, requested the funds from the economic development administration, U.S. department of commerce.

The grant will help pay area staff and administrative expenses for one year.

Counties in the area are Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott and Stoddard.

The purpose of EDA's district program is to help counties coordinate their planning for growth, and to share their resources and talents to solve economic and social problems.

A district must contain at least two counties designated by EDA as redevelopment areas because of high unemployment or low family incomes. A district also must contain at least one growth center -- a community of not more than 250,000 persons which can help provide jobs and services for residents living in redevelopment areas.

Interstate Forces Move of Buildings

With the opening of an additional 4½-mile stretch of Interstate 55 near Hayti, the highway department is relocating maintenance buildings.

O.E. Bennett, highway department maintenance and traffic engineer, said the department expects to let a contract this fall on nearly $13 million worth of work to be done on the final stretch of 13 miles connecting Arkansas and Missouri.

Two new supply and maintenance buildings are under construction near Hayti. The new buildings will be used for general maintenance, repairs, and supply storage.

The existing maintenance building, constructed in the early 50s southwest of Steele, is being removed. It is on right-of-way for the new section of federal highway.

The present building is being abandoned because there will be no interchange for highway department equipment and an access to the interstate is required.

About $49,000 is being spent to build the two new buildings.

Bennett said the buildings should be completed in August.

By July 15, the newest section of I-55, called the Hayti interchange will be opened allowing motorists to drive south from Fruitland to Hayti on the expressway.

When the next link in the highway is completed, motorists will be able to drive from Memphis to near St. Louis without leaving the interstate.

Policeman Dial Laid Off

PORTAGEVILLE— Mayor Roy Moore confirmed today that Policeman William Dial had been laid off after a traffic accident in which Dial was involved.

There had been earlier reports that the 53-year-old Dial had been fired after disclosure that he lacked a valid driver's license.

Mayor Moore refused to comment on these reports yesterday.

He said this morning Dial was not let off the police force immediately after an accident June 22 in which Dial's car was involved in a collision with a motorcycle.

He said he did not know then that Dial did not have a valid driver's license.

Mayor Moore said he instructed police chief Joe Moore to notify Dial that he was off the force and to give him his paycheck. A night officer, Roy Hurley, delivered the check to Dial's home.

Mayor Moore refused to comment whether the layoff was permanent and said the matter would be considered by the city council at a meeting next week.

Kenny Caldwell, 18, the motorcyclist, suffered a broken leg when the car, driven by Dial, made a left turn in front of him on highway 61.

Bowman Kiwanis President

Dave Bowman was elected president of the Kiwanis Club at a meeting held last night at the Rustic Rock Inn. He succeeds Pat Lea. Other officers elected were Claude Benney, vice president; Jim Statler, treasurer, and Mike Harris, Don Pratt, Roland Sorum and Bob Meyers, directors.

Bowman introduced John G. Strinich, general manager of Noranda Aluminum Inc. plant at New Madrid.

Strinich told the club the parent company, Noranda Mines Ltd., originally was a copper mining company with roots in Quebec, Canada. It also has interests in fluorspar mining in Mexico, copper mining in Chile and gold mining in Nicaragua.

Strinich said that the Southeast Missouri site was a "textbook" choice based on the fact that it is close to the geographical and population centers of the United States. It is on the Mississippi river, which provides inexpensive transportation.

The plant is 60 per cent operational and will be in full operation in August. The employment will reach 535

PROTECTING THE POLICE

One hundred policemen were killed in the United States last year. Fifty-one have been killed since January 1, seven of them in New York City. Attorney General John Mitchell urges that serious consideration be given to imposing the death penalty on cop killers. But there is a serious drawback: a clever lawyer can so shake up some jurors where the death penalty is involved, that accused murderers, guilty or not, often go scot-free.

When two policemen were shot to death in Harlem last month, the New York Daily News observed that such killings are often made in order to establish a reputation, i.e., so that the power group or gang can brag about it.

Congressman Gerald Ford, the House Minority Leader, has asked the Select Committee on Crime in the House of Representatives to consider a bill offering a substantial reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone who has assassinated a policeman anywhere in the country.

The recommendation makes sense. When the Daily News announced that $35,000. had been offered for information regarding the latest cop killers in New York City, police received hundreds of calls. But it is not enough after the fact. A Federal law offering a reward automatically in every case would be a serious deterrent to such a crime.

Write to Congressman Ford, or to your own congressman, encouraging such a law. An attack on a policeman is a threat to us all.

DID YOU KNOW that this month of July was once called Quintillius? That it was the fifth month of the year? That it once had 36 days? That it was named by Marc Anthony in honor of the great Caesar? All of these questions are thrown at you to cloud over the bitter fact that this year of 1971 is half gone.

July is a big month and one that can be turned into a real boomer with a little planning around some of the following activities: Birthday of the first US postage stamp, National barbecue month, National Hot Dog Month plus plans for vacations of all kinds.

July 3-10 — Let's Play Tennis Week.

July 4 — Independence Day and the start of National Safe Boating Week.

July 15 — St. Swithin's Day. Tradition calls that if rain falls on this day it will rain for the next 40 days.

July 20 — Moon Day, the anniversary of man's first landing on the moon (1969). July 25 — National Farm Safety Week.

If you are looking for a hook to hand a mid-August promotion, the only Friday 13 of the year will be taking place next month. August will also have national smile week, Family Reunion Day, Better Water for Americans Week, National Archery week, and the ringing of school bells to bring to an end the summer vacation for the youngsters ... and a sigh of relief from all mothers.

INCURSION INTO
MIDDLE AMERICA

Kansas City, the place everything's up-to-date in, has an image of solidity and stolidity that makes it an unexpected target for activists. But when the Viet Nam Veterans Against the War decided to make a "limited incursion into Middle America" on Saturday, July 3, they chose Kansas City. A spokesman for the V.V.A.W. said the weekend rally was planned for the heart of America because "we feel the East and West Coasts have been barraged with antiwar sentiment and Middle America is being neglected."

Antiwar leaders are showing a new sophistication in realizing that too much of their activity has been directed at influencing those who already were in their camp. Erich ("Love Story") Segal recounts (New York Times Magazine, June 13, 1971) a recent conversation with radicals at Harvard University about an article on the Kent State shootings that Segal had written for the Ladies Home Journal.

"... Some of the sillier segments of the Yale community (where Segal teaches) said, "What's that idiot writing for the Ladies Home Journal for?' Whereas some of these radical students at Harvard said, 'That's the right thing to do, Segal, to write about Kent State in your simplistic way for the readers of the Ladies Home Journal because (a) they'll read anything with your byline, and (b) because you have this knack of being able to simplify.' They said, 'Segal, you're in a position realpolitik. Move baby. This is what you've got to do. Your next article for the Ladies Home Journal will be ...' "

An argument can be made that the antiwar vets should have headed farther west if they really wanted to change public opinion in a region. A Gallup Poll in late February sought to find out whether those polled would like to have their congressman vote for a proposal to bring home all U. S. troops from Viet Nam before the end of 1971. The percentage of affirmative answers by region was: East, 73; Midwest, 65; South, 64; and West, 60. Warweariness seems to be cutting across all regions of the nation.

American business did this, not the Government. Business did it in spite of its Government, which has been anti business for 30 years. Foreigners did not do it and youth didn't do it. The "squares" over 30 and their parents did it. And then gave much of it to the world and to our youth, neither of which appreciated it (which, to any student of human nature and history, is not surprising).'

THE AMERICAN ADVENTURE
REDCOAT BALDERDASH

Propagandists who were loyal to the King wasted little time in cranking up their propaganda machine when armed conflict broke out between the Minutemen and the British.

They based their campaign on one main point: the colonists were in rebellion against the Crown, when the laws of God and man plainly forbade such lawlessness. From the main premise sprang a campaign that ranged from sentimental appeal to innuendo.

No such propaganda program would be complete without poetry. One poem went:

"Tho' Knaves do combine
With Belzebub join,
To aim our Downfall and undo us;
By George's fam'd shield,
We never will yeild,
To the (ugly word) or the Armies of Louis."

Propagandist George Inglis sought to appeal to the Rebel's sense of comfort in the following lines which, considering that war does affect one's well-being, were not too far off target:

"Where is that Peace, that Ease, that Affluence, Security and Freedom which formerly resided in, and distinguished America? They are fled. Oppression, Violence and Usurpation prevail in their Stead."

Nor did the propaganda mill forget the alliance between France and the rebellious colonists. There were great hintings that France had come into the war only because the Congress had agreed to give that nation some American land. And even if no such deal were made, the story went, those awful Frenchmen would take anything they wanted anyway. "Let Washington now from his mountains
descend
Who knows but in George he may still find
a friend.
A Briton although he loves bottle and wench,
Is an honester fellow than parle vous French."

When the Britisher brought in the Hessians, the propagandists were ready to justify the use of mercenaries: "The employing of German Protestant Troops if full of true Wisdom and good policy."

And so it went: Britain was strong, the colonies weak; the French would taste ony defeat and hightail it back to Gaul; the British Navy was the strongest in the world and was just beginning to fight. And there was much glee when it was noted that the Congress didn't have enough rags to make dollars. One satirist, noting that the Continental Army was wearing rags, wrote:

"We have reason to believe the country in general never abounded more in that article."

But propaganda could not win this war. The course of Freedom was too strong and no amount of words would alter it.

CLASS-CONSCIOUS TO THE END?

As generations of schoolchildren have learned from Shakespeare, Julius Caesar's last words as the senators stabbed him in the forum (a sensitive place) were' "Et tu, Brute!" The phrase is sometimes translated as "Oh, you brute!" or more accurately, "Thou, to, Brutus!"

Well, there's always somebody who can't leave well enough alone. According to the language magazine, Quinto Lingo, Caesar didn't say it. In fact, if he reproached Brutus at all, he probably spoke in Greek since Roman aristocrats commonly used Greek among themselves as a sort of caste dialect.

Future productions of "Julius Caesar" valuing historical truth over poetry should change the famous speech in Act III to "Kai su, teknon!" says the magazine.

Whaddaya want — good grammer or good Greek?

A RARE BIRD

An elected public official who risks his political future by taking a stong stand on a controversial issue is a rare and courageous bird. Many politicians have taken strong stands -- on the safe side of the controversial population and environmental issues -- but it has remained for the Junior Senator from the state of Oregon, Robert W. Packwood, to submit a measure in Congress that would seek to limit the size of American families by limiting income tax deductions. He has also proposed the liberalization of legal abortions in the District of Columbia -- as an example for the states to follow.

Mr. Packwood is carrying out his pledge to the people of Oregon to protect the environment in the most direct manner at his command. Whether he has made a political mistake or whether one agrees with his proposals is beside the point. The forthrightness of his action is a credit to the state of Oregon -- and to the nation.

SHORTCUT TO A NEW JOB

Since the computer is often blamed for putting men out of work, it's only fair that it be put to work itself in helping people find jobs.

The computer and television have been mated in a new system called Video/Comp Job Bank which its developers, Video Personnel Systems of Shaker Heights, Ohio, hope will revolutionize corporate recruiting.

It works this way: Job candidates register for the Job Bank. A detailed personal history is prepared by VPS and reduced to computer data.

The applicant is also interviewed on video tape by a professional interviewer in a relaxed office setting. The interviewer's role is to bring out the candidate's strengths and interests in a "neutral" atmosphere without representing any particular employer.

Computer print - outs of job -seekers' profiles are sent to corporations with openings in the candidates' chosen fields. When an employer feels that a candidate's profile matches the job requirements, he can request the taped interview and screen it on a portable video tape set in his own office. If he likes what he sees, he can then arrange for a "live'. interview.

Thus a lot of wasted motion is saved on the part of both potential employe and potential employer.

EVERY TRAIN CAN'T BE A WINNER

Perhaps it was a great thing, that the Department of Transportation and Penn Central received a special award from the Railway Progress Institute a few days ago for the cooperative DOT/PC Metroliner project. At this point, Metroliner looks like a good thing — something which can perhaps be extended into other corridors of high -volume travel. At the same time, industry - watchers had to suppress a shudder — knowing full well that there will be those who will try to make every train a Metroliner, every train a winner no matter what the figures show.

The facts are that the passenger train — the traditional, long - haul, slow - trip -to -anywhere passenger train — is a dying (if not dead) institution. The railroads' voice — and TAA's — should be heeded.

SMUT MAIL AD BAN
UPHELD BY COURT

The U.S. Supreme Court May 4, 1970, upheld a law which allows a person to bar advertising from his mailbox if he decides it is too sexy.

The law was challenged by 14 mail order houses, book publishers and others, who claimed it interferes with their right to free communication through the mail.

The vote of the eight -man Court was unanimous with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger speaking for the majority. Burger said for the Court: "In effect, Congress has erected a wall — or more accurately permits a citizen to erect a wall — that no advertiser may penetrate without his acquiescence. The continuing operative effect of a mailing ban once imposed presents no constitutional obstacles."

Justice Burger went further saying the householder may prevent any kind of mail from being delivered. The right to be "let alone" is as fundamental as the right of others to communicate, the Justice says.

In California, federal Judge Franic Whelan has ruled that Fullerton's "litter ordinance" is constitutional. The ordinance makes it unlawful to place any reading material on private property without consdnt of an adult resident. Suit against the ordinance was brought by Tempo, a free distribution newspaper.

POSTAL LESSON

With mail taking ever longer to reach its destination despite a recent increase in postal rates, perhaps the U.S. Postal Service can learn something about efficiency from the Greyhound Bus Co., which also delivers parcels. According to a recent Post-Dispatch article, the bus line delivers a package from Kirkwood to Omaha, Neb., overnight, whereas a package mailed to the same destination may take 12 to 14 days.

The bus service is used not only by businesses but also by students, for example, who depend on it to transmit books and term papers between their homes here and the University of Missouri campus at Columbia. This is the kind of service for which the mail system was founded, yet which it is obviously not performing very effectively. If Greyhound can deliver packages well enough to build up an annual business of $168,000,000, a public agency, if managed, should be able to equal its performance.

$700 MILLION DEAL
IS DEADLY

The issue most crucial right now to the continued existence of Freedom and Republic USA is the deadly plan for a U.S. company to build for Soviet Russia the world's largest truck manufacturing plant. This $700 million agreement, signed between Mack Trucks, Inc., of the U.S. and the communist government in the Kremlin, includes installation and consultation on a plant capable of turning out 150,000 trucks annually, including monsters with 40-ton payloads.

The largest U.S. plant, Ford's Louisville, Ky., installation has an annual capacity of only 100,000 trucks. Henry Ford II almost made a similar deal with the Kremlin in 1970 but aroused so much opposition that he abandoned the plan. The West Germans then refused to build the plant for the communists. Now Mack Trucks, a division of the Signal Companies of Los Angeles, seems to want to come to the rescue of the communist butchers.

The communist system always falls down in some vital phase of production and runs to free, capitalist industries to be rescued. Businessmen in non-communist nations are foolish to fall for this communist lure of easy profits. If approved, this $700 million truck plant deal would open the gate for worldwide communist aggressors to utilize capitalist industry and know-how to destroy all communist institutions and our Republic.

Patriots will remember the scrap iron and know-how we exported to Japan which was returned to us in death for U.S. fighting men during World War II. Crusades must be organized to write letters to the editor and to pressure Congress and the Nixon Administration, as well as Mack Trucks and the Signal Companies, to reject this $700 million truck plant deal. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — How's your belfry today? Any bats batting around in it?

The question has you worried, doesn't it? The world is so weird that it's hard to say whether you're in it or out of it, isn't it?

So maybe we'd better give you a quick mental checkup to see whether all your gears are grooving, right? Okay, here we go. All you have to do is answer the following questions:

Have you ever written an anonymous letter to your congressman?

When your wife is ill and you have to do the laundry, how many cups of detergent do you use? One to three? Four to five?

If you really got mad enough to kill somebody, would you rather do it by shooting him with a bow and arrow, pouring molten lead on him, or stuffing him with sandy spinach? Would the fact that lead is poisonous affect your decision?

As a child did you ever get your hands spanked for putting beans up your nose?

Are you still afraid of gypsies? Thunder and lightning? Your boss? Your motherin-law's only daughter?

Does it make you feel sexy all over when you hear somebody say "vice versa?"

Is there any heredity in your family? If so, how much?

If no one in the supermarket was looking, which would you steal first: a can of dog food, a package of cat food, or a frozen breaded veal cutlet?

Can you look yourself in the eye and honestly tell yourself that you are exactly the kind of man your mother wanted you to grow up to be? If not, what defect in your mother's character caused you to fail?

Can you recall any occasion when the knowledge of algebra you gained as a high school freshman helped save your life later? Is this your fault?

How low down can you sometimes get when you're really feeling high?

If you transpose a juxtoposition in a right angle triangle, is that legal justification for you to transfuse an adenoidal octoploid?

Those are the questions. Now I suppose you want to know your score. Well, fisst let me ask you one final question, and then you can probably figure out your own score.

Do you think anyone who takes the time to sit down and answer a series of questions like these is anywhere normal to begin with?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Ralph Nader has accused Volkswagen of concealing evidence from the public that the German "love bugs" are "potential firetraps."

In an unpublished complaint to Highway Safety Administrator Doug Toms, the consumer advocate charges that 1961-67 VWs have faulty fuel tank caps that dislodge and spray out gas.

There are 2,215,000 of these models on U.S. highways.

Even as Nader's complaint was mailed, his Center for Auto Safety was secretly finishing a major report highly critical of VWs.

The report, with hundreds of pages of backup documents, cites five safety shortcomings in VWs. Besides the gas cap charge, the report tells of door latch failures, roll overs, faulty front seat anchoring and limited passenger protection.

Nader's letter to Toms, a prelude to the sledge-hammer report, recalls a 1968-70 study of VW gas tank tops by the Federal Highway Traffic Safety Administration. The government closed the investigation without ordering VW to provide the owners of older VWs with new self-sealing caps.

Nader charges that VW "concealed from the Department of Transportation during the course of this investigation relevant and damaging VW tests in flagrant disregard of repeated information requests."

Calling upon Toms to reopen the investigation, Nader inquired whether the "concealment of this tested data" violates federal criminal statutes.

Five tests run by Volkswagen in 1966-67 show that its gas tank caps "dislodged" with some spillage at speeds from 30.6 to 32.6 miles per hour. The tests came to light last February in a court deposition by VW test engineer Ulreich Sieffert.

Nader said Seiffert's deposition "clearly indicates that Volkswagen deliberately withheld information to mislead (the government) and VW owners.

"Not only was Volkswagen able to deceive your investigators," Nader added crisply, "but the ridiculous tests conducted by (the government) defy explanation." He said the tests were woefully inadequate.

Footnote: Volkswagen vehemently denied its love bugs suffer from the five alleged defects cited in the still-secret Nader report. A VW spokesman said the firm had detailed studies to back up their denials. As for the "concealment charges," the spokesman said that "Volkswagen has always dealt with the public and with the government in good faith."

-Berrigan Letters-

Justice Department lawyers, now preparing for the trial of brothers Berrigan, are debating whether it introduce some unpublished love letters between Father Phipip Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth McAlister.

The letters might make titillating newspaper copy but would add little to the case against Father Berrigan and his ecclesiastical conspirators. They are charged with plotting to kidnap White House advisor Henry Kissinger.

Privately, the government lawyers consider the indictment so full of holes that a conviction is impossible. It was patched together after FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover tipped the government's hand on the case and Attorney General John Mitchell had to make good on Hoover's goof.

The indictment was so poorly drawn that a new one was shoved through a grand jury, laying emphasis on the Berrigans' alleged rifling of draft records. There is a better chance, the attorneys feel, to make this charge stick.

They are wary about the testimony of their key witness, Boyd F. Douglas, the convict-informer who pretended to join the Berrigan band and then turned them in. The lawyers consider him an unsympathetic figure who will do them little good with the jury.

--WASHINGTON WHIRL--

LBJ's Candidate--We reported on January 4, that ex-President Lyndon Johnson was disenchanted with the leading Democratic presidential hopefuls and was threatening privately to back President Nixon for re-election in 1972. As part of the maneuver, we reported, LBJ might try to make a deal with Nixon to take John Connally, a Johnson protege, as running mate. Down on the Pedernales, LBJ is still muttering to friends about the political outlook. Of all the leading candidates, the former President has grumbled, the only one he can abide is Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash.; otherwise, Nixon still would be a more acceptable alternative.

Bailey's Background--F. Lee Bailey, the fiery defender of Capt. Ernest Medina against My Lai massacre charges, is best known for such headline civilian cases as Sam Sheppard, the Boston Strangler and the Plymouth mail robbery. But actually, Bailey's first legal work was in military, not civilian trials. A fighter pilot at Cherry Point, N.C., he doubled as his group's legal officer in 1955 though he wasn't yet a lawyer. Using borrowed law books, he handled more than 200 cases, some as prosecutor, some as defense counsel. They ranged from spectacular moonshine charges to complicated insanity proceedings. My associate Les Whitten, whose biography "F. Lee Bailey" has just been published, also reports that Bailey as a boy was willing to fight four neighborhood boys at the same time and grew up to be a totally fearless fighter pilot in the Marines.

Hartke Huffs--Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., is in a huff over the appointment of his 1970 senatorial opponent, Richard Roudebush, to a top post in the Veterans Administration. The 1970 contest was one of the most bitter in Indiana history, and Roudebush still has an election suit pending against Hartke. Yet Roudebush must now do business with Hartke, who is chairman of the Senate Veterans Committee. For incredibly, Roudebush's main job, according to an official VA press release, will be to carry on "liaison with Congress."

Trim Creates Individual Look

If you sew, it's easy to create your own individual look — with all the trimmings.

There may be nothing exclusive about the pattern you choose, but the way you use trims—either sparingly or in great abundance—can make an individual difference.

Whether in the form of rick rack, ball fringe, peasant bands, braid, eyelet ruffles, or dainty lace, cotton trims are the big fashion accessory for the '70s. And many of them now come with permanent press finishes that eliminate tedious ironing.

For your summer sewing projects, use trims in imaginative new ways. If you're making a peasant skirt, for instance, choose a colorful patchwork-printed cotton. Then use jumbo-size rick rack to border off each patch in the print.

Stitch vertical lines of rick rack onto the fabric first, and then sew on all the horizontals. Complete the look with a peasant blouse of cotton broadcloth or batiste, edged in matching rick rack.

A combination of rick rack and braid can give added charm to country-girl dresses of flower-sprigged cotton calico. Choose trimmings to pick up colors in the print.

Or for a more frilly treatment, try a combination of venice lace and butterfly ruffling. If you use unbleached cotton muslin or natural-colored homespun for your country-girl dress, give it a folksy flair with embroidered peasant braid.

For best results in applying trims, be sure to use cotton mercerized thread in the same color as the trim. Always handle trims loosely and use a light thread tension on your machine to avoid puckering.

You'll also find it's easier to work from a full length of trim rather than from precut pieces when sewing. For a professional look, mark the exact location for the trim on your dress.

Parents Need Independence From Children, Vice Versa

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for all parents who attach a great deal of importance to certain colleges. My brother did -- and it nearly ruined his youngest boy's life. I hope this story will open the eyes of other parents and deter them from making the same mistake.

My brother went to Princeton -- as Father and Grandfather did before him. Two of our uncles also went to Princeton. When my brother's oldest boy graduated from high school, he went to Princeton, naturally. Two years later the younger boy, Jamie, applied to Princeton. He had excellent grades and was highly recommended by his principal but for some reason he was not accepted.

I have never felt so sorry for anyone in my life. That poor kid was made to feel that he had let the entire family down. The sad part if it was that his parents didn't do one thing to lift his spirits. They treated him as if he'd done some terrible thing.

Instead of accepting the decision, my brother got on the phone and started calling everyone he knew who might "help." He wrote letters, sent telegrams -- it was shameful. In the meantime, the boy was getting sicker and sicker over the "disgrace" he had brought on the family. Finally he had to be hospitalized.

It is now two months later and Jamie is much better -- and preparing to go to Notre Dame, his second choice. But the damage done by his family will leave a permanent scar on that boy.

I hope you will print this letter for all parents to see. -- Aunt Betty

Dear Aunt Betty: Thanks for writing. Not all boys belong at Princeton -- or at Notre Dame, either. Some students do better at smaller, less prestigious schools, where the competition isn't so severe. Thanks for saying something that needed to be said.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I will soon be 65. For years we have been looking forward to retirement -- making plans to do things we've always wanted to do but we never had the time, money or freedom. Last year we decided to move up north, about 200 miles. We found an ideal cottage, surrounded by trees and hills with a beautiful little trout brook nearby. To us it looked like heaven. We planned to go up next week and buy it, but we are having trouble with our three children. They say we have no business leaving them -- that grandparents are supposed to be on hand as sitters, to help out when someone gets sick, to take care of the kids when they want to go on a vacation, or for a weekend, to hem skirts and shorten sleeves. Our son has always depended on his dad to help him in his business, on weekends, holidays and often evenings.

My husband and I never realized how much we did for our children until this matter of moving came up.

Now we feel guilty. How much do we owe our grown children? Please help us decide what is right. — Silver Threads

Dear Threads: It sounds as it you two have been leaned on plenty by your kids. Some parents need and want to be a vital part of their children's lives -- forever and ever. In fact, they keep their children dependent for this very reason. But parents who want to be free of their grown children should not be bound by guilt to serve indefinitely as sitters, seamstresses, nurses, and what have you. I say move up north and enjoy the time of life for which the first was made.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your news-paper enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Nixon Calls For New Attitude Toward Old Age In America

CHICAGO (AP) — President Nixon, calling for a new attitude toward old age in America, said today a generation gap between older citizens and all others "has often been ignored or slighted."

In an address prepared for a joint convention of the National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons, Nixon said there is need for "a new alliance in this country between Americans who are under 65 and those who are older."

The President, who flew here Thursday night after making a sentimental journey to Indiana and the home soil of his late mother, said:

"If we allow our society to become fragmented—so that younger Americans are cut off from older Americans—then each member of our society will also become fragmented—with young people cut off from their past and older people from their future."

On one specific point, Nixon complained that altogether too many nursing homes are described as "little more than warehouses for the unwanted, dumping grounds for the dying."

Nixon said:

"I have heard of doctors who refuse to visit some nursing homes because they get too depressed. Too often it seems a nursing homes serve mainly to keep older people out of sight and out of mind—so that no one will notice their degradation and despair."

The President said it was his goal to see federal, state and local governments working with the private sector "to transform the nursing homes—for those who need it—into an inspiring symbol of comfort and hope."

In the main, Nixon's remarks were the sort of thing his audience wanted to hear. He placed great emphasis on statistics, showing that the federal spending on aging has nearly doubled in five years, and that Social Security benefits already have been increased 25 per cent in two years, with still another hike in prospect.

The chief executive found a way, too, to appeal to older Americans to support his embattled revenue-sharing program—the centerpiece of his 1971 legislative program.

He declared that sharing federal revenues with the state and local governments "could help stem the ruinous rise in local property taxes," and thus help those over 65.

"When a person retires, his income goes down—and so do most of his tax bills. But his property taxes keep right on climbing—and he may even be forced out of the home he has paid for," he said.

"We must build in this country ... an attitude which insists that there can be no retirement from living, no retirement from responsibility and no retirement from citizenship," the President said.

Speaking directly to his listeners, he said:

"We need you. We need your experience and we need your perspective. Above all, we need your sense of values. For we can be a strong nation militarily, a strong nation economically, and still be an empty shell, if we forget those moral and spiritual values to which your generation is so deeply committed."

Nixon journeyed to Vernon, Ind. Thursday to help dedicate a road marker that will be placed near the birthplace of his mother, Hannah Milhous Nixon. She left the area in 1897 when she was 12 and, with her parents, headed for California.

The president then made an unscheduled 70-plus mile drive from Vernon to Indianapolis—he was supposed to go by helicopter—and stopped along the way to have roadside chats with the staff of a suburban Indianapolis daily newspaper and residents of a Presbyterian housing development for the elderly.

In the evening, just before flying to Chicago, Nixon spoke briefly to a testimonial dinner in Indianapolis for Frederick L. Hovde, retiring after 25 years as president of Purdue University.

On his arrival at Indianapolis Weir Cook airport, Nixon was briefed by an Air Force pilot and a Purdue University research executive on an experimental aerial photography project aimed at detecting spread of corn blight.

Corn fields in the states have been photographed from as high as 60,000 feet with infrared and color film.

A study of the film identifies outbreaks of corn blight and enables farmers to begin treating the fungus. Corn blight cut the nation's corn production by 15 per cent last year.

Motive in Question On Colombo Shooting

NEW YORK (AP) — Police say they are still seeking a motive for the shooting of reputed Mafia leader Joseph A. Colombo Sr. and are "open to all theories."

Colombo, 48, remained in a coma and in critical condition today after being gunned down Monday as he was preparing to lead a big outdoor ItalianAmerican civil rights rally.

Surgeons said late Tuesday that his vital signs were somewhat stronger but estimated his chances of survival were 50-50. They said some damage was likely if he recovers.

Racism and gangland rivalry have figured in speculation on the motive for the shooting.

But Chief of Detectives Albert Seedman said Tuesday the gunman may have decided to shoot Colombo on his own.

Detectives were still trying to learn more about Jerome A. Johnson, the 24-year-old black man who fired three shots into Colombo before being shot to death moments later.

Embassy Will Continue Policy

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Embassy will continue its policy of visits twice a month to 12 Americans held in a Vietnamese prison despite their complaints that it isn't often enough, an embassy offi cis said Tuesday.

The embassy will also do whatever else it can to make their imprisonment more comfortable, Vice Consul Laurence E. Pope said. But he added: "There just isn't a hell of a lot that we can do."

The 12 Americans held in Saigon's Chi Hoa prison have been convicted by South Vietnamese courts of criminal offenses or are waiting trial in Vietnamese courts.

In letters two weeks ago, they complained to U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and to the Oakland California Tribune that the embassy was not taking enough interest in them, and that their living conditions were inadequate.

The letter to Bunker, signed by several of the prisoners, asked that an embassy representative visit them on a once a week basis because it was their only way of sending their imprisonment more and receiving mail.

The letter to the Tribune was signed by Richard A. Bueb of Lakewood, Colo., and four other prisoners.

Bueb is one of two Americans awaiting trial for selling LSD capsules in Saigon. The others are in prison for a variety of offenses, including two who recently were sentenced to five and seven years for possession of counterfeit plasters.

Agnew Expresses U.S. Friendship With South Korea

SEOUL (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in South Korea Tuesday and expressed continued U.S. friendship coupled with high praise for President Chung Hee Park.

In an arrival statement, Agnew said, "Korea's inspiring progress in every area of political, economic and social life is a source of pri de to al men who value freedom.

"Much of the credit for this progress," he added, "and for Korea's emergence as a vital force in international affairs belongs to President Park."

Park has been elected three times as president, the third earlier this year after the Korean constitution was changed to permit him to run again. Agnew will represent President Nixon at Park's inauguration Thursday.

Space Station and Shuttle New Issue With Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wading into a new battle over national priorities, Congress must decide whether a proposed space station and shuttle will be either a like scandalous waste of billions in tax dollars or "the greatest management system ever devised ..."

At the moment, only $137.6 million in development funds is at stake. But Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., and other senators say that figure is only the tip of an iceberg of spending that could reach the $5-billion level.

The space shuttle, which would provide reusable space vehicles to take satromnute to and from orbiting space platforms, has its defenders.

One of them, Sen. Edward M. Gurney, R-Fla., in remarks prepared for the Senate today, said the shuttle system will give man a tool to control his environment on earth.

"The space shuttle will allow for continual launch, recovery and maintenance of a satellite system which will act like a stethoscope to the earth—listening, recording and analyzing its ills and helping us forecast what remedies man can make," Gurney said.

"As I see it, everything from recognition of corn blight in our farm belt to predicting a hurricane in the Caribbean will be accomplished from the satellites manned by the shuttle system," Gurney said. "It will be the greatest management system ever devised or even theorized by man."

But Mondale says there is nothing a space shuttle can do that isn't already being done on earth.

"There are more urgent needs here on earth that deserve priority over the shuttle and station and I believe the American taxpayer will agree with me," Mondale said.

Papers to Congress

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo. June 30, 1971 5

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under the glare of television lights, the secret Pentagon papers on Vietnam were wheeled under armed guard to Congress Monday.

Two Army sergeants delivered two boxes marked "Top Secret" bearing the Pentagon war study to House Speaker Carl Albert just after noon.

At the Senate an Army sergeant, accompanied by a major, and a top Pentagon official wheeled two boxes of the 47-volume study into the office of Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., president pro tempore of the Senate.

Dear Sir:

An agreement has been reached between the Soviet Union and Mack Trucks, Inc. under which the big company would build or supply $700 million worth of truck-building facilities to be located in Russia. Each of us should remember that Russia is the chief supplier of trucks that carry the rockets and other weapons from North Vietnamese ports to the fighting fronts. These weapons kill our own service men. If you are concerned, inform yourself further and join the communications media by writing letters to the editors. Public opinion sometimes prevails.

Overzealousness Complaint Against FBI

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON--For the second time in its 62-year history, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is under widespread attack. Not since the scandals of the Harding administration, almost half a century ago, has the FBI been subjected to criticism as scathing as that now being voiced.

The FBI in 1924 was described as "lawless" and engaged "in many practices which were brutal and tyrannical in the extreme." The appointment of Hoover to head the bureau in May of that year resulted in a thorough housecleaning. Before long, the FBI had acquired an enduring reputation for efficiency and incorruptibility.

The charge today is overzealousness. Critics contend that the bureau has exceeded its authority by monitoring the activities of persons--including members of Congress--not involved in or suspected of any federal crime. They further assert that Hoover, at the age of 76, has grown autocratic and vindictive and should retire.

Even so, the bureau and Hoover enjoy a level of esteem that any other institution or public official would envy. A Gallup Poll of August 1970 stated that 71 per cent of the respondents had expressed a "highly favorable" opinion of the FBI. In a similar Gallup survey published in May 1971, 70 per cent of those interviewed rated the job Hoover done as either "excellent" or "good." At the same time, 51 per cent thought he should step down.

Persons who say the FBI is overly zealous have short memories, the bureau's defenders argue. Eight years ago the FBI was accused of negligence because it had not notified the Secret Service of Lee Harvey Oswald's presence in Dallas at the time of President Kennedy's fatal visit. Hoover retorted that close surveillance of everyone with a background like Oswald's would amount to "totalitarian security". Now that the bureau has expaned its surveillance of political dissidents, as widely demanded in 1963, it is being criticized on the very ground that Hoover mentioned.

The bureau stands accused of pettiness or worse in its reaction to an episode involving the hijacking of a TWA passenger jet in October 1969 by Rafaelle Minichiello. When the plane landed at Kennedy International Airport in New York for refueling, FBI agents attempted to come aboard. The pilot, Donald J. Cook, fended them off and proceeded to Rome. On landing there, he told a reporter that the FBI boarding attempt was "damned near a prescription for getting the entire crew killed and the plane destroyed."

More than 18 months later, on May 10, 1971, TWA Board Chairman Charles W. Tillinghast disclosed that Hoover had written him after the hijacking to reveal Cook's prior "difficulties in the Air Force." Sen. George McGovern (D.-S.D.) asserted the same day that he had been told by former FBI agents that Hoover attempted to retaliate against TWA by forbidding agents to patronize the airline and by refusing to let them act as air marshals on TWA flights. The FBI's position on trying to board the Cook plane, as described to Editorial Research Reports, is that it was a case of "damned if we did and damned if we didn't." In other words, the attempt had to be made.

Hoover's letter to Tillinghast was a perfect example, the FBI's critics charged, of the misuse of information contained in the bureau's millions of individual dossiers. A bill introduced by Rep. Edward I. Koch (D-N.Y.) would put a stop to such disclosures. Among other things, the Koch bill would require every government agency maintaining records on individuals to notify the person that such a record exists and to inform him of all transfers of such information.

It also has been suggested that the director's absolute control over hiring and firing of personnel be curbed. Unlike most other federal workers, FBI employees are unprotected by civil service laws. The resulting lack of job security, it is said, has an adverse effect on morale.

Boat Commission Can Set Speed Limit

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth told Monday the State Boat Commission has the authority to establish and enforce speed limits on Missouri's waterways.

He told William H. Bolinger, of Versailles, Morgan County prosecuting attorney, the law expressly gives those powers to the commission and one section of the law provides:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to operate a vessel on the waters of this state in a manner other than that prescribed or permitted by regulatory markers."

In another legal opinion, Danforth advised State Sen. Donald L. Manford, D-Kansas City, that Consolidated School District No. 1 of Jackson County cannot use public funds to pay private school truition for exceptional children residing in the district.

"We find no statutory authority," the opinion said, "... authorizing or requiring the public school district to pay all or part of private school truition for these children or for any other children residing within the district who attend nonpublic schools."

GETTING THE MOST OUT OF A GARDEN is this retired couple, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Cooper, 114 North West street. There are 10 varieties of vegetables growing on a lot belonging to the Castor Alsup estate.

Retired Couple Grow Bountiful Garden

A garden plot can be rewarding and healthy to the grower.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Cooper grow one that is producing food for the table.

They were given permission to use a vacant lot across from their home by the owners "to keep the weeds down."

The lot measures 125 by 160 feet and will bring in a harvest of many bushels of vegetables.

Cooper, who is 67, and his wife, 63, spend a portion of their time each day tending the plot.

"I work the garden," Cooper said, "and my wife puts it up either in the deep freeze or in canning."

"I can as much as I can stand around a hot stove in the summer time," Mrs. Cooper said.

Vegetables will come from the long rows, of which there are nine rows of sweet corn, seven of Irish potatoes, and from two to four rows each of tomatoes, sweet potatoes, okra, polled and bush beans, onions, beets and sweet peppers.

Prime Minister Heath's Ship of State Leaks

By Editorial Research Reports

LONDON — The liquidator is busy at work on the Upper Clyde Shipbuilders. By mid-Aguust, when this court - appointed official has finished his examination of the bankrupt yard's affairs, a political decsion will have to be made by British Prime Minister Heath on how best to keep the yards operating. Like Rolls-Royce, shipbuilding used to be one of the prides of the British Empire. Now both shipbuilding and the ship of state have entered troubled waters.

"Clydebank's the only cemetery in the world with lights in it," said a worker from John Brown's shipyard at Clydeside, Scotland. Although there is no indication as yet whether the shipbuilding crisis will lead to massive layoffs, unemployment at Clydeside is already 12 per cent and there are 120,000 unemployed in Scotland. Although the government has said it will keep the 27,000 workers on the job by paying their salaries until a decision is made, the men at the shipyards have had a hard time controlling their anger.

Councillor Jimmy Reid of Clydebank, who as a member of a delegation spoke to Heath at 10 Downing Street, said: "We get the impression that we were talking to a man who didn't know what a dole queue was, who didn't know what it meant to working class families, and who didn't care very much either." Such talk, and film of workers chanting "Heath Out!" over television, did little to boost the Prime Minister's sagging image.

Upper Clyde shipyards was a giant consortium formed by the Labor government in 1968 to keep a number of faltering shipyards going. Only massive government support has kept UCS alive. But when Heath learned this month that the company had liabilities of over $67 million, he decided it was no longer possible to continue this open - ended commitment of public funds.

Heath would like to keep the yards, which have more than $200 million worth of work in their order books, operative. His dilemma has been how to balance his philosophy of "no aid to lame ducks" against political considerations during a period of mounting unpopularity. One Scottish Trades Unionist, James Mill, expressed such a view publicly when he said: "If we cannot get this government to change its policy we have to find the means to change the government."

Heath steadfastly maintains that the British cannot live on past illusions -- that they must become more efficient and productive no matter how painful the process may be. The Guardian observes editorially, however, that, "Mr. Heath's bracing climate of competition has caused pneumonia." England is currently in the midst of its most serious postwar recession. The New Statesman bitterly commented: "As the plight of the shipbuilders reminds us, the liquidator and the receiver have become he advance agents of prosperity, Tory - style."

"What Heath has achieved by letting Rolls-Royce and Upper Clyde go bankrupt," A London banker told Editorial Research Reports, "is to diminish world confidence in the British government's willingness to meet its commercial obligations and to create an atmosphere of suspicion where business credit, even for large firms, is becoming increasingly tight."

If Heath is feeling any distress, he is showing no signs of it. He remains adamant in his effort to puch Britain into the Common Market on Jan. 1, 1973, against the public opinion polls and to put through the Industrial Relations Bill in the face of union opposition. If Heath's first year in office has been a troubled one, the next one promises to be even tougher.

NEW YORK (AP) — When it comes to greeting cards, people spend more time searching for Mother's Day cards than they do for Christmas cards, says Irving Cohen, president of Fifth Avenue card shops.

"People will joke about Mother Hubbard, Mother Goose and Whistler's Mother, but each Mother's Day all kidding is set aside," says Cohen. "Mom is like the American flag. You just don't knock either."

FBI Grads Hear Mitchell

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "tidal wave of legalisms" that benefit the accused are frustrating society's right to see prompt apprehension, speedy trial and swift punishment of criminals, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said today.

"Every conceivable twisting and turning of words is used to weigh the side of the defendant—in many cases far beyond the intent and often even the language the framers of the Constitution," Mitchell said.

"Every conceivable twisting and turning of words is used to unbalance the side of the people, represented by the police and the prosecutor," he told graduates of the FBI's National Academy.

"The result, already visible, is longer trials and appeals crowded courts and a lack of finality in conviction that produces prisoners who believe they will beat the rap and would-be criminals who laugh at the idea that crime doesn't pay."

He told his audience of police officers from around the country and from abroad that policemen now face "a new menace—the violence of extremists who are proclaimed enemies of the police, and often of government itself.

The true concept of justice, he contended, is a set of scales balancing the rights of the individual against the rights of society.

"If all the rights that exist are the property of the individual and the people as a whole have none, then we cannot be any tortured reasoning claim that we have a system of justice," Mitchell said.

President Nixon, meantime, accepted a role in the pageant producted, directed and starred in by J. Edgar Hoover.

The White House announced Tuesday that Nixon would drop by the commencement exercises for a few remarks following Mitchell's address to graduates.

The occasion is expected to evoke both some kind words for the 76-year-old Hoover as well as law-and-order statements by the President and Mitchell.

Although the timing is probably coincidental, the gathering of Nixon, Mitchell and Hoover follows the most sustained period of criticism encountered by Hoover in his 47 years as the head of the FBI.

There is little question in the minds of observers that the twice-yearly events mark high points in Hoover's life. Beside him on the flag-bedecked stage are men who praise him; before him, police officers from every state and some foreign nations who can carry the sentiment back home.

The National Academy, which the FBI refers to as the "West Point of law enforcement," was founded by Hoover in 1935. As recorded by FBI annals, the first act of the original 29 graduates was to form an alumni group and elect Hoover an honorary member.

Today's graduates bring the total number to finish the course to 5,934. Represented among the 100 are officers from all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Jamaica, Liberia, the Netherlands, Thailand and the Virgin Islands.

Also included were representatives of the Army, Air Force, Executive Protective Service and National Park Service.

They are graduating from 12 weeks of instruction in such fields as police-community relations, civil disturbances, police management and ethics, criminology, sociology and psychology.

Approval of 18-Year-Old Vote Amendment Close

WASHINGTON (AP) — Record quick approval of the 18-year-old-vote amendment is so close now the states have begun jockeying to see which will have the distinction of making it official.

Illinois completed ratification Tuesday, bringing the total to 35 states. Legislatures in five more states are poised to act next, which would be more than enough to put it over.

Ratification by 38 states is needed to give citizens 18 years and older the vote in all elections. If passed, the measure would be the 26th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Both houses of the Alabama legislature have ratified the amendment, but bickering over which chamber concurs in the other's version gave a new chance to its opponents. Ultimate passage still is expected.

The North Carolina House has passed a ratification resolution, but the Senate has been putting it off day-by-day.

The Ohio Senate passed it 30 to 2 Tuesday, and sources in the House said chances appeared good for final action this week.

The Oklahoma Legislature convenes Thursday in special session and quick ratification there is expected. Wyoming lawmakers convene Monday for the same purpose.

A record for speedy ratification seems assured. The Congress completed action on the amendment March 23 and five states stamped their approval on it after the first day.

The 12th Amendment, reforming the procedure for electing the president and vice president, how holds the record of eight months in 1803-1804 to win ratification from 13 of the 17 states then in the union.

In addition to Illinois, the 18year-vote amendment has been ratified by Minnesota, Delaware, Washington, Connecticut, Tennessee, Massachusetts, Hawaii, Montana, Arkansas, Iowa, Idaho, Indiana, Nebraska, KansasN michigan, Maryland, Maine, Vermont, Alaska, California, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Texas, South Carolina, West Virginia, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Arizona, Louisiana, Rhode Island, New York, Oregon, Missouri and Wisconsin.

By a Supreme Court interpretation last December of the 1970 Voting Rights Act, youths aged 18 through 20 were given the vote in all federal elections, but not in state and local elections except in the handful of states with voting ages below 21.

Serious Crime Declines in 61 Big Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Serious crime continued to rise nationally in the first three months of 1971, up 6 per cent from the same period last year, but Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said crime actually declined in 61 large cities.

Although property crimes increased less rapidly in the first quarter of 1971 than in the first quarter of 1970, violent crimes increased a bit faster.

But Mitchell pointed out today, in releasing FBI crime statistics, that the over-all 6 per cent increase was considerably below the 13 per cent hike between 1969 and 1970. It was the lowest rate of increase in five years, he added.

The 61 cities that experienced a drop in the total number of crimes reported between 1970 and 1971 were among 154 U.S. cities with a population of 100,000 or more. Mitchell said statistics for the first quarter of 1970 showed 20 cities with fewer reported crimes than in the comparable period of 1969.

Propery crimes—burglary, auto theft and larceny of $50 or more—increased by 5 per cent between the first quarter of 1970 and 1971, compared with a 13 per cent increase between 1969 and 1970.

Violent crimes—murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault—increased by 13 per cent between 1970 and 1971, compared with a 12 per cent hike between 1969 and 1970.

The rate of increase in all crimes was highest—12 per cent from 1970 to 1971—in the six U.S. cities with a million or more population. Inexplicably, the 20 cities with between one million and 500,000 population recorded an average decrease of 4 per cent in reported crime.

Kissinger on 10-Day Mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's national security adviser Henry A. Kissinger leaves Thursday on a 10-day fact-fiding mission that will take him to South Vietnam, Paris and other Far East countries, the White House said today.

On the trip, Kissinger will meet with U.S. representatives and officials and will then report directly to Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers at the Western White House in California on his return around July 12.

Nixon is planning to move his operations to California July 6 for what is expected to be a two-week stay. He has already scheduled talks on the domestic economy there with his chief economic spokesman, Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally and a major discussion of Vietnam and Indochinese affairs seems evident.

Miami Profit Seen as Demos Come to Town

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — City officials are estimating $12 million to $15 million in business for the city as a result of its selection by the Democrats for their 1972 national convention. They also are checking their security arrangements for the gathering.

The Democratic National Committee announced Tuesday the party will hold its convention in Miami Beach next summer.

"From both the economic and the publicity stand point it will be a stupendous convention," said Edwin Bishop, a member of the city's Tourist Development Authority.

Bishop said it cost $975,000 in goods and services to secure the convention for the city in which the Republican national gathering was held in 1968.

Although the GOP gathering was undisturbed, security is an important issue for the Democrats, still burdened with memories of their stormy 1968 convention in Chicago.

Police Chief Rocky Pomerance said he already had started work on security plans for the convention, including application for a federal grant to send his men to courses in crowd control and mob psychology.

No-Fault Law Okay

BOSTON (AP) — The state Supreme Court ruled today that Massachusetts' first in the nation no-fault automobile insurance law is constitutional.

In a four-page opinion written by Justice Paul C. Reardon, the court ruled against a Sharon man who contended his constitutional right to sue was violated by provisions of the nofault law.

No fault, as applied in Massachusetts, requires out-of-court settlement without regard to fault for claims of bodily injury under $2,000. Additionally, suits for "pain and suffering" are barred if medical expenses do not exceed $500.

No fault in Massachusetts applies only to compulsory bodily injury coverage.

Mining Rights Scheme Found

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — An investigation by Nevada authorities could lead to filing nearly 25,000 felony counts against an Oklahoma man involved in a nationwide scheme to claim and sell mining rights on several million acres of Nevada land.

State Atty. Gen. Robert List said his staff is considering the validity of claims submitted by Merle I. Zweifel of Shawnee, Okla., on nearly four million acres of land.

List filed a 16-count criminal indictment against Zweifel Tuesday charging he offered a false instrument for recording.

List said a spot chedk of 24,460 location certificates submitted by Zweifel for recording and seized by state authorities indicated claim markers had not been erected and the required $20 worth of work on the land had not been completed.

The certificates submitted by Zweifel said dredging and sampling had been undertaken, List said, but in some cases "it appeared no one had been on the property for a year or so."

"It is conceivable all 25,000 claims are false," the attorney general said. He added each could be treated as a separate offense.

"We are trying to cut Mr. Zweifel off at the pass and protect the property itself from bad faith mining claims," List told a news conference Tuesday.

Zweifel has advertised throughout the nation to sell half interests in the mining claims he was attempting to file, List said. He said he did not know how many had actually been sold.

List said Zseifel's advertisements—containing the slogan "we fly farther and stake faster"—had appeared in a number of national publications.

He said some of the ads indicated the claims were near land held by Howard Hughes and H. L. Hunt and indicated the land could be used for farming and summer homes, although mining laws allow only the extraction of minerals.

The advertisements offered buyers an opportunity to beat a July 1 deadline when the cost of registering mining claims will jump from $1 per 160-acre claim to $1 per acre, List said.

He said certificates seized through Tuesday were for some 3,913,000 acres — about five per cent of the state — and included land within a Navy bombing range and under federal freeways.

Nixon Announces Turkish Plan to Destroy Opium

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon personally announced today a plan by the Turkish government to eliminate by mid-1972 the production there of opium poppies—estimated to account for 60 per cent of the illegal heroin used in the United States.

Appearing before newsmen at the White House, Nixon said the action by Turkey is "by far the most significant breakthrough that has been achieved in stopping the source of supply of heroin."

The President called the move by Prime Minister Nihat Erim a very courageous and statesman-like action.

Flanking him as he spoke were Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Mielih Esenbel, Turkey's ambassador to the United States.

Esenbel told newsmen that halting poppy production—a legitimate agricultural enterprise in his country for many centuries—certainly will cause "internal problems" and "some economic dislocation."

Rogers said the United States will provide money and technical assistance to help Turkey replace poppy production with other cash crops. He said the amount of such aid is yet to be determined.

Nixon Vetos Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Tuesday votoed a $5.6billion public works bill, saying it "would not even make a real start on delivering on its implied promise" of quickly creating new jobs.

Nixon, in a veto message to the Senate, aimed his fire at a $2-billion section of the measure that would set up pumppriming public works projects in localities with high unemployment rates.

Experience under a similar law in 1962, Nixon wrote, indicated there would be an 18month time lag before the vetoed measure could become fully effective. By then, the h said, "Further stimulation would be unnecessary and inflationary."

He based his time lag estimate on the long delays encountered in planning and organizing construction projects.

Billboard Law Needed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Robert L. Hyder, chief counsel for the Missouri Highway Department, said today he thinks a tougher billboard control law is sifficient reason for calling a special session of the state legislature.

Billboard control measures were introduced in both the House and the Senate during last spring's regular session but neither got anywhere.

John Volpe, secretary of transportation, has written Gov. Warren E. Hearnes that failure to pass a billboard control law meeting federal stands will result in a loss of 10 per cent in federal highway funds for the next five years—possibly as much as $60 million.

Hyder said he is preparing a letter for Hearnes to send Volpe informing him the Missouri legislature now under an annual sessions plan, is actually in recess until next January.

He said he asked Volpe in April if one of the pending bills met federal standards. No anser was received from Washington until after the legislative session had ended, Hyder said.

Hyder blamed Ben Ivey, National Outdoor Advertising Co., of Dallas, for blocking the pending bills. He said Ivey told legislators that the Department of Transportation would not cut off federal funds evene if no bill was passed.

Hearnes expressed little interest in calling an immediate special session to meet the federal mandate. He said he thought Volpe should let the 1972 session handle the situation without penalty to Missouri.

Gravel May Have Violated Senate Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said today Democrats in the Senate should determine whether Sen. Mike Gravel, DAlaska, violated the chamber's rules by releasing the Pentagon papers.

If he did, Scott told newsmen, he should be disciplined. Scott, however, avoided the word censure.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield refused to comment on Gravel's reading of the papers at an impromptu midnight convening of a subcommittee he heads.

Scott arrived on the Senate floor a few minutes after the session began, armed with copies of the Senate's Rule 36 and provisions of the law that grant members of the Congress immunity from prosecution.

Rule 36 bars members of the Senate from releasing confidential communications from the executive branch.

Scott said that in his opinion if Gravel continued to release the papers today it would be a clear violation of Rule 36.

Air Pollution Standards Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Environmental protection Agency, has announced final standards for a 90-per-cent reduction of harmful auto emissions, but eased the test method on which they are based.

Last February he proposed a test procedure that would measure auto engine emissions during and after a "cold start"ignition of an engine that hadn't been run for 12 hours. Studies show highest emissions levels are during the first four minutes after a cold start.

But the auto industry said a cold start alone does not represent actual city driving conditions.

In the final regulations issued Tuesday, Ruckelshaus ordered emission tests to include both cold starts and "hot starts"— those with a warmed-up engine, producing lower emissions. He also ruled the hot starts be given more weight in the total calculation.

An EPA spokesman said the agency agreed with the industry that this would represent more realistically actual driving conditions.

Space Plan Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. space program will continue developing a space shuttle that will take off vertically like a rocket but be able to reenter the earth's atmosphere and land horizontally on a conventional airport runway like an airplane.

The controversial shuttle system received a boost Tuesday when the Senate rejected, 22 to 64, an amendment by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., to cut the $100-million item from the $3.2 billion space budget.

After beating down the Mondale amendment, the Senate then ratified the full $3.2-billion measure by an 82-5 vote.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the shuttles would be reuseable 100 times or more and be able to return satellites or spececraft which have malfunctioned to earth.

Officials estimate the shuttle eventually will cost about $12.8 billion.

1969 Mine Worker's Election Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is expected to check into the United Mine Workers' 1969 election for possible criminal prosecution.

The Senate Labor subcommittee Tuesday said its investigative records, to be turned over to Atty. John N. Mitchell, "developed substantial evidence relating to the alleged misuse of UMW funds by, or in behalf, of UMW officials" in the 1969 election.

Chairman Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., said a letter to Mitchell states Senate investigations disclose "evidence which suggests that numerous individuals have engaged in making false statements, committing perjury, evading income taxes and-or obstructing justice."

The subcommittee plans to conduct final public hearings soon on the election, which saw UMW President W.A. "Tony" Boyle win re-election by defeating Joseph A. Yablonski.

Yablonski was murdered shortly afterwards.

Agnew: U.S. Korean Relations More Relaxed

SEOUL (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew conferred for 50 minutes today with South Korean President Chung Hee Park and said the tone of U.S.Korean relations "is a lot more relaxed" than during his negotiations here last August.

Agnew told reporters that discussions with Park, which followed a ceremony in which he presented his credentials for Park's inaugural Thursday and a personal message from President Nixon, were "of a very general nature."

Last August Agnew spent more than six hours in conferences with Park as the South Korean presented a lengthy shopping list of military equipment they wanted in return for the withdrawal of 20,00 U.S. troops from this country.

Agnew declined to say if any further cuts in the 43,000-man U.S. force are planned, but he reiterated that his meetings with Korean leaders this time are not designed for hard negotiating. He said he expects to meet later in the week with Premier Kim Chong-pil.

Asked about issues between the two countries, Agnew said these are "more in the nature of administrative details" to be worked out by lower level officials.

Liberal Demos in Japan Keep Control

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's Liberal Democratic party retained control of the upper house of the Japanese Parliament Sunday, but the Socialist opposition showed unexpected strength.

Unofficial tabulations for 105 of the 126 seats at stake gave 57 to the Liberal Democrats. The other 126 members in the House of Councillors are holdovers, and 72 of them are Liberal Democrats, so the government was assured a majority of at least six.

The Socialists won 32 seats, the Buddhist-allied Komeito 10, the Democratic Socialists 3, the Communist party 2 and one independent was elected.

The upper house is mostly a watchdog body, legislative power being held by the 491-seat lower house. But the election was watched for indications of the government's popularity.

Only about 60 per cent of the 71.6 million eligible voters went to the polls, and observers felt the poor turnout worked against the government party.

Sato, confident of victory, went to the mountain resort of Karuizawa to work on a new Cabinet lineup. The present Cabinet has been in office since January 1970.

Soviet Jews to Labor Camp

MOSCOW (AP) — Nine more Soviet Jews were sentenced to labor camp terms ranging from one to five years today for a part in the Leningrad hijack plot or for stealing a copying machine so they could distribute anti-Soviet propaganda, Jewish sources reported.

The sentences raised to 34 the number of persons, mostly Jews, who have been convicted on charges growing out of the plot to escape to Israel in a hijacked Soviet airliner in June 1970. Police arrested 12 of the plotters as they were about to board the plane in Leningrad.

The Moldavian Supreme Court in Kishinev convicted the nine Jews today and gave the stiffest sentence—five years—to David Chernoglaz, 32.

Hillel Shur, a 35-year-old engineer who refused to testify for the first four days of the trial and reportedly went on a hunger strike, got two years instead of the three asked by the prosecutor.

'Boo Fans' Cheer

It starts deep in the throat, works its way up over the tongue and explodes through the teeth. It is a long, lusty "booooo" and it is the trademark of the Philadelphia fan.

Phillie fans boo so much that there have been times the Liberty Bell and Star Spangled Banner were considered in danger next. But they pulled a switch on Tuesday night and, believe it or not, they cheered.

Oh, it wasn't a Phillie they cheered, of course. It was Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, whose 3-0 13-strikeout shutout included the 1,000th strikeout of his career.

Seaver's four-hitter enabled the Mets to chop one game off Pittsburgh's National League East lead as the Pirates bowed to St. Louis 8-3. Elsewhere in the NL, Cincinnati bombed Montreal 14-0, Chicago nipped Los Angeles 3-2, Atlanta edged Houston 5-4 and San Francisco downed San Diego 6-4.

In the American League, New York ripped Cleveland 9-2, Milwaukee topped Chicago 5-2, Boston downed Washington 6-2, Baltimore walloped Detroit 15-6 after the Tigers had won a game suspended Monday night 9-4, Kansas City edged California 2-1 and Minnesota trimmed Oakland 5-3.

When Seaver fanned Willie Montanez leading off the seventh inning for his 1,000th career strikeout, the scoreboard flashed the news to fans in Veteran's Stadium. The crowd of 22,017 gave Seaver a standing ovation that the right-hander admitted was "a bit of a surprise."

Seaver responded by fanning the next two batters as well as two more in the eighth, running his career total to 1,004.

Meanwhile, the Cardinals gave the Mets a lift by knocking off the Pirates.

Lou Brock and Joe Torre smacked St. Louis homers and pitcher Reggie Cleveland drove in three runs with a basesloaded double to pace a sevenrun third inning that put the Cards in control.

Richie Hebner homered for Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati looked more like the Big Red Machine, unloading a 23-hit attack to wallop Montreal. Tommy Helms led the Reds' attack with four hits. Buddy Bradford and Pete Rose each homered with Bradford driving in four runs and Johnny Bench delivering three.

Ron Santo drove in two runs including Chicago's game-winner with an eighth inning sacrifice fly that beat Los Angeles.

The Dodgers had just tied the game with a run in the eighth when Paul Popovich and Billy Williams opened the bottom half of the inning with consecutive singles, bringing up Santo, who was hitless for the day.

"I was struggling all day," said Santo, "but I was determined to get a good piece of the ball for at least a long fly."

Zoilo Versailles doubled home two runs, capping a three-run first inning and then Oscar Brown singled two more home in the fifth as Atlanta got by Houston.

Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson homered for the Astros.

San Francisco wiped out an early 3-0 San Diego lead with rookie Chris Speier driving in two runs with a triple and touching off the tie-breaking rally with a single.

Willie Mays had his 14th homer of the year and No. 642 of his career for the Giants while Nate Colbert, Ed Spiezio and Clarence Gaston all homered for the Padres.

HUNTERS will have a nine-day season Nov. 13-21 in 1971, with 10 management units arranged along highways so the hunters will know what unit they are hunting. Any deer and bucks—only seasons will vary somewhat between the units. (Department of Conservation photo)

Cards End Slump

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Wait and be quick; that's the name of the game," said Joe Torre, the major leagues' leading hitter and a rejuvenated player at age 30.

Torre, a catcher converted to third base, waited Tuesday night for a Luke Walker fast ball and swatted it over the left field wall in helping the St. Louis Cardinals conquer the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-3.

Torre's third home run in as many games came during a seven-run Cardinal third inning also featuring Lou Brock's lead off circuit clout.

The uprising also included winning pitcher Reggie Cleveland's three-run double off Walker (3-7) and a run-scoring double by Brock to cap the assault.

Cleveland (7-7) breezed to the finish with an eight-hitter marred only by Richie Hebner's 11th home run and two sacrifice flies by Al Oliver.

"You go through phases," said Torre, a slimmed-down 11season major leaguer whose secret to a .372 batting mark is seeing the ball.

"Just keeping a still head has a lot to do with it, I guess, and not jumping at the ball. The better you see the ball and the longer you can wait to swing the better your chances to hit.

"You just have to be lucky and try to stay away from that extended slump. Not being ired; that goes a long way toward it."

Torre's homer, his 12th of the season, came with Jim Beauchamp aboard after Brock tagged Walker for a line drive shot down the left field line.

Walker fanned Jose Cardenal for a second out following the Torre blast but loaded the bases by issuing bases on balls to Jose Cruz and Dal Maxvill and yielding a single to Jerry McNertney.

Cleveland then doubled down the right field line to score three runs, and Brock's second hit of the inning scored the 23year-old Cardinal right-hander to make it 8-1.

"I guess the big thing is don't make bad pitches when they can hurt you," said Cleveland, whose five strikeouts included two of Willie Stargell.

The victory snapped a fivegame losing spell for the Cardinals, who open a six-game trip Thursday at San Francisco.

Pittsburgh, its National League East Division lead over the New York Mets trimmed to three games, is scheduled to open a two-game series tonight against the Mets in Shea Stadium.

Cardinals Call Cruz

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Outfielder Jose Cruz has been recalled to the St. Louis Cardinals from the team's triple A American Association club, General Manager Bing Devine announced today.

To make room for the 22-year-old Cruz, the Cardinals removed infielder Dick Schofield from their 25-man list. Disposition of Schofield's contract has not been determined.

Cruz joined the Redbirds late in the 1970 season and hit .353 in six games. This year at Tulsa he's hitting .328 with 50 runs batted in, eight triples and 15 home runs.

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians sent infielder Lou Camilli to its Wichita farm team in the American Association Sunday.

Camilli's place on the roster will be taken by pitcher Rick Austin, who spent the weekend on military drills in Washington, D.C.

The Darker Side

ST. LOUIS — Considering the vast amount of people who use the August A. Busch Memorial Wildlife Area near here every year, the number who violate regulations is small.

But it's non-the-less discouraging for conservation agents who sometimes see human behavior at its worst. The area opening this year, left Gordon Jarvis, conservation agent for St. Louis County, shaking his head.

"We held a road check," he says. "One lady apprehended for having bass under the size limit complained of discrimination. She felt that all the cars being checked were not being checked as thoroughly as she had been.

"One man refused inspection. I had asked him whether he had any fish and he had said that he caught some but that they were too small and he had turned them back. "His daughter was in the car. I asked her if she had had a good time. She said she had and held up two undersize bass that had been in a cooler."

Proverb says: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he his old he will not depart from it."

BENTON — Jeff Jackson provided the hitting power and Kenny Urhahn the pitching as Kelly remained undefeated in Tri-County Babe Ruth baseball play by beating Delta Tuesday night 5-1.

Urhahn struck out six Delta Batters and gave up only five hits. He won his fourth game this season against no losses.

Jackson hit two doubles and a home run. Hee batted in two runs. Bob Jackson also batted in two runs.

Crowden took the loss for Delta. It could put nothing together against the Kelly nine.

Kelly scored the first run in the first and led, 1-0, going into the fourth when Delta tied the score.

The tie lasted until Kelly came to bat again in the inning. Kelly sent three runners across the plate and added one more in the fifth to win.

Fish Kills Reported

WARRENSBURG — Dr. John Belshe of Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg has a group studying the effects of pollution on area creeks, particularly near Warrensburg city sewage treatment plants, this summer.

It didn't take long to find out.

Student Charles Callaway found a fish kill below the west side treatment plant in mid-June which had killed about five miles of the east fork of Postoak Creek.

"The plant is exuding more than 15 parts per million of ammonia," says Frank Ryck, water quality biologist for the Department of Conservation. "Apparently someone is dumping a large quantity of ammonia into a sewer and it is passing through the plant into the stream."

An estimated 10,000 fish were killed by the ammonia. The creek virtually was sterilized in the kill area. Even sludge worms which are highly tolerant of pollution died.

A second western Missouri fish kill started June 13 in Cooper County on Petite Saline Creek and affected some five miles of the creek. Ryck estimates 12,000 fish died.

Cause of the kill was oxygen depletion caused when organic material which had built up from feedlot and other rural drainage was flushed downstream by a rain, then began to decay.

Oxygen levels dropped to .2 parts per million. Three to four parts per million is about the minimum to support fish life. Species killed included carp, buffalo, crappie, sunfish and bullheads.

Deer Season Set

JEFFERSON CITY--Missouri deer hunters will have a 1971 season slightly more restrictive than the record-setting 1970 season. The Conservation Commission has set a nine-day season from Nov. 13 through Nov. 21. In 1970, hunters claimed a record 28,290 deer during a 10-day season.

Once again, there will be a system of management units and hunters in northeast Missouri will benefit from the idea.

Until the 1970 season, the area north of the Missouri River alternated any-deer and bucks-only seasons. Normally, the 1971 season would have been bucks-only in north Missouri.

But northeast Missouri continues to have a good deer population, so there will be two days of any-deer hunting in that unit, giving hunters additional opportunity.

The season is broken down this way: Units 7, 8 and 9 will be any-deer from Nov. 13 through Nov. 16 and bucks-only the rest of the season.

Units 3, 5 and 6 will be any-deer on Nov. 13 and Nov. 14 and bucks-only the rest of the season. Units 1, 2, 4 and 10 will be bucks-only the entire season. Bucks must have a forked antler to be legal.

The archery deer season will be identical with that of the past several years, running from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31, with deer of either sex legal statewide.

Hours are 5:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Central Standard Time from Oct. 1-Nov. 12 and from 6:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. from Nov. 13-Dec. 31.

One change from the 1970 season is in the method of checking deer. This year, the regulation reads that all successful hunters during the fire-arm season must immediately tag their deer and submit it at a check station in the county where taken or in an adjacent county on the day it is taken. Before and after the firearms season, archers must check deer within 24 hours with an agent of the Conservation Commission.

There will be several special and managed hunts on refuge and other wildlife areas which will be announced by the Commission in July.

Deer Management Units are defined as follows:

Unit 1
West of U.S. Hwy. 69 from Missouri River to Iowa line.

Unit 2
East of U.S. Hwy. 69; North of Interstate Hwy. 70; and West of U.S. Hwy. 63.

NETANYA, Israel (AP) — Lubomir Kavalek of the United States took the lead Sunday in the 11th round of an international chess tournament by defeating Dragoljub Janosevic of Yugoslavia. Kavalek leads Pal Benko of New York, 7½ to 6½ in points, with four rounds left.

PETRAGLIA ROLLS ON

Johnny Petraglia, who has already broken the professional bowling tour record for most money won in a single year, keeps rolling. Petraglia shattered the old mark when he won $325 in the ABC Masters tournament to bring his 1971 earnings to $67,478.

Sikeston Baseball Players Travel

Sikeston's Don Miller, David Hackney, and Mark Adams, 1971 graduates of Sikeston high school and starters on the school's baseball team, are carrying out their baseball activities this summer by participating in the Cape Girardeau American Legion program.

These three, along with members of the Cape Girardeau Central high school team and two diamond men from the Cape College ranks, make up the Cape American Legion squad. The team sports an 8-5 record. John Wallaly and Larry Kitchen manage the team which plays all their home games in Cape Girardeau's Capaha Park.

Sikeston dropped its American Legion team this year with the loss of its sponsor, Potlatch and American Legion. The growing cost of supporting and maintaining the Sikeston American Legion club led to its abandonment.

Miller handles much of the pitching for the Cape Legion team, and sports a 2-1 record for the season. Included in his wins are two shutouts. He worked the mound in the team's 4-0 blanking of Murphysboro earlier in the year. In picking up the win Miller fanned 23 in the nine inning contest. For his second triumph of the season he chalked up a 3-0 shutout over the Legion team from Paris, Tenn. Miller's first loss came last weekend as the Cape American Legion dropped a double header to Blytheville. He is awaiting word from New Mexico State for a possible scholarship on the school's baseball team.

Of the five games lost this season by the Cape Legion team, three have come at the hands of Blytheville. The other two losses have come from Carbondale and from the Cape Capahas, an independent ball team from Cape Girardeau.

Adams plays third base for the Cape Legion team and holds down a batting average around the .333 mark. Adams is enrolled in Drury College at Springfield this fall.

Hackney is a regular in the outfield for the Cape team and sports a good batting average near the .300 mark. He will attend William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., this fall.

The Cape American Legion team has one of the better pitching staffs in the area with five good hurlers. Joining Miller on the mound are Cape Central's Mark Hogan, a left handed hurler who defeated the Sikeston high school Bulldogs twice this year. Gene Schlick and Randy Johnson are two other hurlers from the Central unit. Both will be around next year as seniors when the Tigers begin their baseball season next spring.

Gaylen McSpadden, a sophomore at SEMO State, rounds out the talent heavy pitching staff for the Cape Legion squad. McSpadden, along with catcher John Wright, are the two players representing SEMO state in the Legion's lineup.

The Cape American Legion squads host Murphysboro tonight in a game scheduled at Capaha Park.

Rodeo Week

DENVER, -- The upcoming Fourth of July weekend will be the most grueling part of the professional rodeo season, the Rodeo Cowboys Association said here today.

More rodeos are scheduled around the Fourth than at any other time of the year, and prize money runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

There are 25 association - sanctioned rodeos across the country beginning Wednesday. From Madison Square Garden in New York City to Travis Air Force Base, Calif., cowboys will compete in as many rodeos as possible. Some may enter six or eight in a five -day span.

They will arrive in towns shortly before competition, pinch-faced and drawn from lack of sleep. Immediately after they ride they will jump into planes or cars and head for other rodeos.

Some cowboys may try to compete in Greeley, Colo., Cody, Wyo., Red Lodge and Livingston, Mont., Belle Fourche and Mobridge, S. Dak., and perhaps St. Paul, Ore.

By next Monday the men leading in each event for world championship titles may have dropped behind or lengthened their leads. The titles are awarded at the end of each season on the basis of prize money.

The winningest cowboy so far this year is Phil Lyne, George West, Tex., who has gathered $21,901 in bareback, saddle bronc, bull riding, calf roping and steer wrestling. The top money -winner for the past five years, Larry Mahan, Brooks, Ore., is trying to catch Lyne.

Mahan is fourth in the all around cowboy standings with winnings of $14,818. He will be among the hard - travelling contestants over the Fourth as he goes after a record sixth world champion all around cowboy title.

Jr. Babe Ruth

Turner Dairy and Nowell Real Estate posted victories last night in Junior Babe Ruth baseball play at V.F.W. Stadium.

Turner defeated Home Materials in the first game, 7-2. Nowell collected a 10-3 triumph over Davis and Bird in the nightcap.

Turner Dairy collected two runs in each of the first two innings to jump ahead of Home Material, 4-1. An additional run in the third, and two final tallies in the sixth ended the winner's scoring.

Home Materials scooted one run home in both the first and third innings. Turner's Jim Saulter handled the winner's pitching chores and held Home Materials to three hits. Marks and Smith collected a double and losing hurler Wright blasted a double.

Saulters blasted a triple and a single for two of Turner's four hits while teammate Ogles connected for a triple.

In the second game, Nowell's eight-hit, 10-3 victory kept the Real Estaters on top of the standings. Nowell's bigges inning came in the fourth as four runs came home to lift the winners into a 6-1 lead. Davis and Bird scored one run in the third, fifth, and sixth innings.

Winchester blasted a last inning home run and a double to take the batting honors for Nowell. Eisenbach connected for two hits while Leible and Miller added extra base hits.

Tate stroked a double for the D & B lineup while Stokes and Fulton added the only other hits.

Leible was on the mound for Nowell and chalked up the victory. Stokes was tagged with the loss.

Musial League

Collins Construction and the Malone and Hyde came up with victories in Musial league baseball play last night. Collins downed Rotary, 14-3, in the opening game. Malone and Hyde remained unbeaten and on top of the league's standings with an 11-4 triumph over the Sikeston Standard.

Collins collected at least two runs in each of the game's five innings. Four runs in the opening inning gave winners an early lead. Collins' Self and Launius each blasted four of the winner's 21 hits. Teammate Campbell added three hits. Self belted a double and Harper a triple for Collin's extra base knocks.

Rotary collected its three runs in the third inning with one swing of the bat. Rotary's Longstreet belted a three run shot in the inning, sending in teammates Beach and Throop to score. Both had reached base on singles. Throop connected for three hits of the team's 14 hits. Nelson, Noles, and Kyle each added two safeties.

Launius picked up the win for the Construction men. King was the losing hurler for Rotary.

Six extra base hits and a final seven-run last inning boosted Malone and Hyde squad into its 11-4 victory over the Sikeston Standard. The Standard's four runs in the fourth knotted the score at 4-4, but it was M & H's seven run last inning that settled the dispute.

Lee belted two doubles for the winners and teammates Alberts, Beebe, and Brashear each added doubles. Brashear and Alberts both went three for three at the plate. Lee and Pinkstaff contributed two hits. Lacy anchored the Standard's seven hits with three hits. Tate came up with a triple.

Twins Topple Blue

If you don't succeed the first time, try, try again—even against Vida Blue.

That's what the Minnesota Twins and rookie hurler Ray Corbin were forced to do Tuesday night, and this time they succeeded.

Given a third chance against this season's pitching sensation the Twins beat the Oakland A's and Blue 5-3, and all but ruined Blue's chances of winning 20 games before the All Star game.

In other American League games, Detroit beat Baltimore 9-4 in 15 innings in the completion of their Monday night suspended game and then Baltimore walloped the Tigers 15-6 in the regular contest; Boston tripped Washington 6-2; Milwaukee dipped the Chicago White Sox 5-2, the New York Yankees blasted Cleveland 9-2 in the afternoon, and Kansas City nudged California 2-1.

In the National League, St. Louis bombed Pittsburgh 8-3, San Francisco slipped by San Diego 6-4, the New York Mets blanked Philadelphia 3-0, Atlanta edged Houston 5-4, Cincinnati crushed Montreal 14-0, and, in the afternoon, the Chicago Cubs trimmed Los Angeles 3-2.

Blue, 16-3, had allowed the Twins only three runs and 12 hits and struck out 22 in beating them twice this season, the second time on national television last Monday when Corbin took the 3-2 loss. But the Twins weren't about to give in, and neither was young Corbin, 5-6.

They spotted the A's Dave Duncan's two-run homer in the second and then came from behind to end Blue's six-game winning streak with his first loss since May 28 and his first ever in the Oakland Coliseum after 10 victories.

And with only time for three more starts Blue, 16-3, won't be winning 20 games by All Star time July 13—unless he works on short rest or relieves.

Detroit won the suspended game with two out in the 15th when Mickey Stanley broke the deadlock with a single, and the Tigers added four more on a bases loaded walk and singles by Norm Cash and Tony Taylor.

Brooks Robinson had capped a four-run ninth inning for Baltimore with a three-run homer with two out that sent the game into extra innings Monday night.

The Orioles did not wait that long in the regular game, and neither did Robinson, who hit another three-run shot in the third after Andy Etchebarren hit one with two on in the second as Baltimore broke a four game losing streak. Jim Northrup drove in four runs with two homers for the Tigers.

The red-hot Red Sox made it five victories in a row as reserves Bob Montgomery and John Kennedy, filling in for injured regulars, each drove in two runs during a five-run second inning off Washington rookie Pete Broberg, 0-2. Kennedy's RBI came on a homer.

Jim Lonborg, 3-3, got the victory for working into the eighth inning before Sparky Lyle relieved.

Milwaukee, another streaking club, won for the ninth time in 11 starts behind rookie Jim Slaton, 3-1, who scattered eight hits before Ken Sanders got the last out for him. The only Chicago runs off him were homers by Walt Williams and Bill Melton.

The Brewers wrapped up the triumph with four runs in the fourth, two on Andy Kosco's triple.

Felipe Alou doubled in each of the first three innings—one short of the major league record for one game—driving in three runs and scoring three for the Yankees, who had scored only four times while losing their last four games. Steve Kline, 7-6, went the distance for the victory.

Amos Otis settled a duel between teammate Mike Hedlund and California's Tom Murphy with his 12th homer leading off the ninth. It was only the third of four hits off Murphy, while Hedlund gave only five hits.

WHEN ALL is said and done, the future of bass fishing in Missouri may depend on what the individual angler does with his catch. If he keeps only what he really wants, the chances are the state will continue to have outstanding bass fishing. (Department of Conservation photo)

Length Limit Proposed On Bass at Wappapello

JEFFERSON CITY— The problems of providing good bass fishing in the waters of Missouri is no easy thing to solve.

"We're learning more all the time," says Chuck Purkett, chief of Fisheries Division for the Department of Conservation.

In recent years, new lakes owned by the Department of Conservation have had carefully determined length limits imposed, subject to last minute fish population checks by biologists.

"Our Commission has been very good about letting us wait until the last minute," Purkett says. "It has worked very well."

Limits aren't always the answer. There has been some call for a length limit on Lake Wappapello--but every indication is that there is no need for one now. "If anything," says Jim Fry, assistant Fisheries Division chief for the Department, "the lake is underfished."

That isn't the case on other big impoundments where fishing pressure increased yearly. St. Louis outboard motor dealer Don Brehm is one of a number of anglers in Missouri becoming worried about the future of bass fishing in Missouri.

"If the average angler would just say, 'From now on the only bass I keep I eat; the neighbors don't get any more," Brehm says. "Then our problem would be on the way to solution."

"It all comes back to the fact," says Purkett, "that we need this many four inch bass to make this many five inch bass to make this many six inch bass clear up to the top. Any time you interfere with that pyramid and start chopping it off at the top or the bottom, you get in trouble."

The bass population of a lake can be likened to a pyramid, with many small bass on the bottom and relatively few big bass on the top. "Chop off the top of the pyramid," says biologist Joe Dillard, "and you'll still have a pyramid--only the bass at the top will be smaller."

Fisheries personnel doubt that Missouri's big lakes can be overfished to the point that Nature can't supply adequate numbers of young bass to the lake.

But size of these bass is something else. "You can skim off the good, catchable bass," Dillard says. "And what is left are the small bass that you don't care about keeping. What you're upsetting is not the reproduction, but the balance of the lake."

A length limit is not a cure-all. It does nothing to protect the bass above the length limit. "If you fish a lake so that all the bass over, say, 12 inches are caught," says Fry, "you get such a slug of 11.9 inch bass that they actually can limit their own growth and reproduction." In extreme cases this is the one time when reproduction may become a problem; not from a lack of bass but from too many.

Missouri has not as yet experienced the boom in fishing tournaments. There have been several tournaments in the "Fish Bowl" which includes Table Rock, Taneycomo, Bull Shoals and Lake Norfork, but the pressure is nothing compared to what it is on some big southern impoundments.

"The big problem under the present system of keeping all bass or all big bass," says Dillard, "is that pro anglers or good amateurs may not only upset the lake balance, but also take those fish out so that old Joe Blow willnever have the chance to catch them. Now, the average angler may never catch that big one, but he knows it's there. That's what keeps him coming back.

"I'd think dock owners could increase their business by promoting the return of fish. Why, if I was a dock owner and a bunch of fishermen pulled in and said, 'We just caught two tons of fish and put 1,900 pounds of them back,' I'd have that fact in every newspaper I could get it in."

Good fishing in Missouri has been a way of life. Now, good fishermen are reaching that stage. Are the two compatible? If Missouri bass fishermen begin to think quality rather than meat, they are.

"The big hurdle," says Brehm, "is putting back that first big fish. From then on it's all downhill...or uphill, depending on whether you are the fisherman or the bass."

House Passes Agriculture Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House rebuffed President Nixon, its own Leaders and the Queen of England Wednesday as it passed and sent to the Senate a $12.4 billion appropriation bill for the Agriculture Department and other agencies.

It approved $500 million for water and sewer grants not requested by the President and cut—over its leaders' opposition—maximum price support payments for each of three major crops on any farm from $55,000 to $20,000.

The cut in price support payments came after the House was told the Queen of England has a financial interest in a Mississippi farm which received $1.54 million in subsidy payments in the last two years.

The rewritten measure was sent to the Senate by voice vote.

The House rejected amendments that would have cut off food stamps from families of strikers and would have blocked financing of stream channelization projects by the Soil Conservation Service.

And it approved without debate an amendment to cut off farm subsidy payments to any farmer who knowingly allows marijuana or other drug-producing plants to be grown on his land. That amendment was authored by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.

Patrol for Safe Traffic

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — In 1931 the Missouri Bankers' association and the Automobile club of Missouri were successful in gaining legislative approval of a state traffic control force.

It took seven years to overcome opposition of the Missouri sheriffs and organized labor. The man who guided the bill through the legislature, former Rep. Ed Duensing, D-Lafayette county, died earlier this year.

Labor foresaw a ready made strikebreatking force and the sheriffs believed the state patrol would grab away some of their coveted authority.

In its 40-year history the patrol has barely altered its original intent: the safe movement of traffic. It still cannot obtain a search warrant and it is therefore a highly trained and sophisticated state police force confined to the highways except when the sheriffs ask help in criminal cases.

The Highway Patrol now has cooperative dealings with law enforcement agencies throughout the state and places considerable emphasis and time teaching expertise to its own men and trying to help upgrade law enforcement around the state.

The Missouri Highway Patrol Law Enforcement Academy, established in Rolla in 1959 and recently moved to newly constructed quarters in Jefferson City, has trained 4,273 municipal officers and sheriffs' officers.

The first class of recruits to be trained in the $2.6 million facility began May 2 and will complete its work in mid-October. The 39 men will receive more training and classroom hours than any previous class.

The complex consists of chosen buildings:

A three story dormitory capable of housing 250 recruits when completed, but finished for only 150. It has recreational facilities and requires minimal maintenance on the part of recruits.

An administrative building where classes are held, including crime detection laboratories where fingerprinting and breathalizer tests can be conducted and a crime re-enactment classroom where props can be arranged to simulate crime scenes.

A physical training building is equipped with gymnasium, fullsized basketball court, 10station firing range for pistols and small caliber rifles, as well as a swimming pool where lifesaving, scuba diving and underwater search techniques are demonstrated.

When trainees have completed their 24 weeks of the academy they will be assigned to various troops for seven weeks then return for two more weeks of classroom work to sort out all the problems they encountered.

The first class of 54 Highway Patrolmen in 1931 was chosen from 5,000 applicants and it took several years to screen enough qualified applicants to bring the force up to the 115 members the legislature authorized at first.

Today the patrol selects about one recruit from every 25 applicants it has. The 39 men trained at the academy will be enough to keep the force at its authorized limit of 750 members.

In years past turnover in the patrol has kept down to about 3 per cent a year. Now it is somewhere around 5 per cent due mainly to the increased number qualifying for the retirement plan. Some are lured away by private industry offering attractive salaries for qualified law enforcement personnel.

The failure of the general assembly to enact a $100 a month salary increase bill prompted speculation that some members might resign in protest. Lt. William Scearce, training officer, said there were disgruntled men and threats but "there's always a lot more talk than action."

There is a certain team spirit derived from the reputation the Highway Patrol enjoys in and out of the state. It is non-political, difficult to gain admittance to and perpetually demanding thereafter, patrol officers said.

Recruits are in training five days a week. During their 24 weeks they will spend 492 hours in the patrol classroom, 276 in college classes at Central Missouri State college, in Warrensburg, 108 doing calisthenics, 39 hours in fieldwork, 126 with firearms and defensive tactics and six hours in tours.

The 492 hours in the patrol classroom will be spent learning normal police work. This will include 54 hours of constitutional aspects of criminal justice, 54 hours of criminology, 54 hours of police organization and management and for the first time, 36 hours of race and ethnic relations.

Physical training is important not only because physical fitness is part of the image of a patrolman but because the spirit of a recruit is believed to reveal itself more accurately in the gymnasium than anywhere else in his training.

It also instills a virtue of the patrol for a lifelong routine of physical conditioning, officers said.

Failure to meet the weight requirement will result in a loss of one day's leave for each five pounds a patrol member is over the maximum weight for his height.

And leave days will be cancelled for each month's violation "until the officer complies," the rules say.

"Any member who is overweight at the time he reaches his fifty-fourth birthday will not be considered for extension of service with the department," the rules provide.

Ideally a patrolman would be able to talk his way out of every situation. It is for this reason that during training, recruits receive substantial training in human psychology.

Failing to talk his way out of a situation, the trooper resorts to defensive tactics designed to give him an upper hand in any situation.Men from law enforcement agencies throughout the state are also visiting the academy for two and three week stays for specialty training.

The purpose of the cadet patrol is to "develop favorable attitudes toward law enforcement and to help disseminate these attitudes throughout the community."

Lemon Confections Easy to Make

By JUDY GAZETTE

Frozen lemon confections both easy to make and light on the constitution, are in the spotlight this week. The lemon angel pie comes to us courtesy of the National Sugar Council and the lemon freeze might still be found in an old magazine, for it was developed in the Borden kitc hens.

Having tried them both, I can tell you there's no comparing, for the angel pie is naturally elegant with its meringue crust, and the freeze is more subtle in appearance and taste.

No special tricks are involved with either, just a taste for the tart and a roomy spot in your freezing compartment.

If you're opposed to the amount of whipped cream called for, I can't for the life of me see why one of the modern, non-dairy toppings (such as Cool-Whip) wouldn't do a marvelous job of filling the angel pie. Tips: Remember to grease your pie plate generously before piling on the meringue. Make a high wall for the shell and bake it the full one hour, if possible. You'll be proud of the results!

ANGEL PIE

Basic Meringue Shell

3 egg whites, at room temperature
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup sugar

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar, salt and vanilla until foamy. Continuously beat in sugar, about 1 tablespoon at a time, at a slow speed. Continue beating until very stiff and glossy. Spread over bottom and side of well greased 9-inch pie plate; push up side to make high rim. Bake at 250 F for 1 hour or until dry and slightly browned. Cool.

Filling

3 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
½ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups heavy cream
1/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

In top of double boiler, beat egg yolks until well blended and gradually beat in ¾ cup sugar. Add lemon juice, rind and salt; mix well. Cook over simmering water, stirring almost constantly, until thickened, about 10 minutes. Remove from water and chill in refrigerator.

Combine cream with 1/3 cup sugar and vanilla in chilled bowl. Beat until thick enough to form soft peaks. Spread about 1/3 of whipped cream over bottom of cooled meringue shell and drizzle with 1/3 of cooled lemon mixture. Repeat layering with another 1/3 of cream and lemon mixture, then with remaining third. Freeze several hours or overnight. Makes 8 servings.

LEMON FREEZE

½ cup corn flake crumbs
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 1/3 cups (15 oz. can) sweetened condensed milk
1/3 cup reconstituted lemon juice
2 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons sugar

Combine corn flake crumbs, the 2 tablespoons sugar and butter in ice cube tray; mix well. Reserve 2 tablespoons of crumbs mixture for topping. With back of tablespoon press remainder evenly and firmly in bottom of ice tray. Chill.

In medium size mixing bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice; stir until thickened. Add egg yolks; mix well.

Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in the 3 tablespoons sugar and continue beating until egg whites are stiff, but not dry; gently fold into condensed milk mixture. Spread evenly over crumbs crust; sprinkle with reserved crumbs mixture.

Place on bottom of the freezer compartment of refrigerator, taking care to allow air circulation around the tray to insure freezing. Freeze 6 to 8 hours or until firm. Cut into bars to serve.

YIELD: 8 servings.

Set Aside Pay After July 1

NEW MADRID— New Madrid County farmers who certify performance of program provisions now can expect to receive set-aside payments shortly after July 1 according to Larry Blunt, County Executive Director of the New Madrid County ASCS Office.

"We have been receiving some inquiries about when the set-aside payment will be made," he said. "My best estimate is that payments will be received by this office and mailed to the farmers approximately 2 weeks following their final certification."

He pointed out that a producer cannot receive payments until after he has come in to the county ASCS Office, officially designated his set-aside acreage and certified compliance with other farm program provisions. The final date for certification is July 15.

Morrison Predicts Increase in Teacher Strikes for 1971-72

DETROIT (AP) — The president-elect of the National Education Association predicts that teacher strikes will increase in the 1971-72 school year.

And he beli eves that the NEA's 109th annual convention delegates will stand firm against public aid to private schools.

Donald E. Morrison, San Diego, Calif., social science teacher, made his observations Sunday in an interview, five days before he will assume leadership of the 1.1 millionmember teacher organization.

"I look for more strikes and they will come in areas that will surprise a lot of people," he said when asked about the possibility of such action.

He said strikes would not necessarily be over wages but "over reluctance of school boards to negotiate and reluctance to give teachers a voice in decision making."

He said that the NEA modified its position in 1965 to support the elementary-secondary school act which permitted private schools to participate in some federal programs. But in 1970 at San Francisco the delegates, overriding the leadership, voted to oppose all aid to private schools and called for a halt in their participation in existing programs.

"I don't think it will be changed at this convention," he said.

Talking about federal assistance to private colleges, Morrison said, "I personally support complete separation at all levels-private funds supporting private schools."

Insofar as President Nixon's statements supporting assistance that will help private schools survive, Morrison said:

"For the President of the United States to talk about public funds to private schools and the voucher system is the most irresponsible action ever witnesses in this country."

Three Chaffee Residents Hurt

A two-car accident on highway 77 in Capé Girardeau county was reported to the highway patrol yesterday when a 1964 Dodge driven by Terry Deniece Powers, 25, Chaffee, struck a car driven by Myrtie Schoen, 56, Chaffee.

The Schoen car was parked on the east side of highway 77 when the Powers car went out of control, left the road and struck the parked car.

Chickens Lay Egg

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Egg production in Missouri during May declined two per cent from the comparable month in 1970, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service has reported. May, 1971 production totaled 131 million eggs.

The total for the first five months of 1970, however, was 12 per cent ahead of the like period a year earlier, the service said.

The state's commercial hatcheries produced 1,536,000 broiler chicks during May, seven per cent less than in the comparable month last year. For the first five months of 1971, broiler chick production ran 19 per cent behind the rate of the previous year.

Richard Emanuel, 19, Charleston, was arrested for careless and imprudent driving, and being involved in an accident. Emanuel was accused of driving into Charleston about 6:30 a.m. Sunday and told police officers that he had apparently dozed off and struck a concrete light standard and a city limits sign, damaging both.

Judge July Shelby reserved assessment of fine pending a damage estimate from Missouri Utilities, Inc., which owned the light standard.

Tax Ban Asked

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, said Tuesday he will launch an initiative campaign July 15 for a statutory ban on tax increases unless approved by the voters affected.

Blackwell said the campaign would be co-ordinated with his own campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1972.

The initiative campaign calls for the proposed constitutional change to be voted on in the general election in November next year, from which Blackwell hopes to emerge as governor-elect of Missouri.

The amendment would bar any state or local tax increase from becoming effective unless the people affected approve it at an election.

Weapons Go On To Pakistan

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official "hold" on any U.S. weapons being sent to Pakistan may not stop more shipments of military hardware to that nation.

Christopher Van Hollen, deputy assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs, Monday told a Senate subcommittee chaired by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that the shipments are not contradictory to stated U.S. policy.

There is "no attempt to mislead the public or Congress," Van Hollen said, "although I recognize the language in some statements could have been more precise."

Van Hollen said in addition to three ships which recently sailed from New York laden with spare parts for military hardware in Pakistan, it is "likely that additional items could be shipped. He insisted these involved equipment turned over to Pakistan before the state department decided to suspend any further shipments when fighting broke out in East Pakistan March 25.

Kennedy criticized the department for previous statements saying nothing was "in the pipeline" in the way of arms shipments to Pakistan.

Mr. Paul Bumbarger
Editor,
Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Paul:
If you care to, you can use the following as a "letter to the editor", particularly if you carry such features from time to time:

"One of the most joyous occasions that Dorothy and I have had the pleasure of experiencing was the 30-year reunion of the Sikeston teachers held on June 19.

Visiting with our friends and former associates spoke for itself, but the fact that the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce and other community leaders helped to make our celebration memorable deserves recognition. We were proud that such former students as Clem Beal conducted a tour for us. We were also grateful that many of our students, now married and highly successful, appeared at the reception to welcome us.

All of us were amazed at the tremendous progress which has been made at Sikeston. A lot of this has been spearheaded by former Sikeston students we were privileged to teach. We parted from the reunion and Sikeston swelled with pride that the city there and its people were a happy segment of our lives."

Sincerely,
William C. Hopkins

The Standard
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Editor:

Late last April, A.E. Payne, Dexter, Mo., wrote me a note saying he had read something I had written, printed in the Sikeston STANDARD. He sent me a nine - page manuscript he had written some months before, of which he had had copies made. It was titled "The Man Animal" Presumably, he sent one to you, also. He had been prompted, he added (to send a copy to me) by what I had written. Please, would you send me a tear sheet -- if one is still available?

In January, I sent -- not only to your newspaper, but to toehrs -- mimeograph copies of some of my many reading essays -- a project I've been writing for a long time, hoping to interest a few newspapers in running them as a weekly feature. My purpose: to alert the average, non -reading home to the importance of reading in the home. In February, March and April, I sent other mimeographs. Doubtless it was from one of those following the initial project of the essays from which you selected an item which held appeal to your editorial judgment.

Over the year-- because I read -- I've sent many letters to our two local newspapers -- some of which are printed, others of which are not. I enclose a tear sheet of my last letter -- one which I had doubted would be printed.

Sincerely,
Sarah Shoner(Miss)

P.S. The United Sttes, I consider, is at a cru cial point in its history. But were we a reading nation, I doubt we would have been as gullible as we have been resulting in our present position of disunity. Do you?

DEFENDING EARTH PROVES COSTLY

To The Editor:

I have just become aware of a bleak, ominous fact. In 1966 the Sierra Club ran a full -page advertisement in the New York Times, alerting the public to the impending danger of a dam being built in the Grand Canyon. It won. The dam was not built. Until now, the efforts of this conservation group had not troubled the big power interests. Now, it has.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall — who, as I recall, had a relative who was interested in the proposed dam — and President Johnson brought the fact to the attention of the IRS — the effective U.S. agency which continually seeks new means of taxation. Like a ghoul, it pounded upon this, asserting it was in the nature of political lobbying. With other conservation groups, the Sierra Club was removed from the tax - exempt status. This has resulted in tough going for conservation. But, as Davie Brower, president of theFriends of The Earth, said, "better work for very little money than the alternative, which is very little earth."

But here is the irony: the lobbies of powerful interests remain on the tax exempt roll, since, the IRS claims, lobbying is part of their business expenses! I maintain that every individual must act as a small conservation member in his own right — if he is to save the earth. One thing he can do is to protest this injustice directed against the conservation groups which have done so much!

In a letter "To the Editor" a reader wrote, ". . .I'm for saving the environment if it means leaving us all jobless and having technology come to complete halt. On the other hand, I don't believe that this is the unavoidable consequence of conservation efforts.

"The problem is that society's interests and conservationists' interests aren't compatible now, but society could turn to working with conservation efforts by, for instance, designing and building a public transportation system that people would find attractive and efficient.

"The money, labor force and technology would be available if we discontinued projects like the SST, sending a man to the moon, and fighting the war in Vietnam, all of which are unsound for other than just ecological reasons.

"Another waste of energy is the automobile. Imagine a 200-pound man driving a two-ton car two blocks to the drugstore . . . With a bit of individual and collective common sense, society would not face the problems we do . . . concerning the fight against pollution." —SARAH SHONER, 224 Taylor.

Arms Uncovered by British in Belfast

IRELAND (AP)—One of the biggest arms caches ever found by British troops in Northern Ireland was uncovered early Tuesday in a raid on a Belfast warehouse.

"From the items uncovered, we can only surmise that the building was used as a bombmaking factory," a senior army officer said.

Three men were arrested at the warehouse.

The troops found 2,000 feet of fuse wire, 200 gallons of acid, 14 booby traps, two walkie-talkie radios, 130 detonators, three grenades, four gelignite bombs, one pistol, a rifle, more than 200 rounds of ammunition, machine-gun parts and an assortment of fuses, flares and time switches.

British troops also discovered an illegal arms depot in Belfast during a house-to-house search on Saturday.

Government May Aid Religious Institutions, Burger Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has shelved any notion of a thick constitutional "wall" between church and state, replacing it with the theory government may aid religious institutions provided there is no "excessive entanglement."

This doctrine, spun out by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in three rulings Monday, commands a majority of the court and appears to leave considerable room for aiding church schools, indirectly and directly.

Clearly, the states can no longer make direct payments to teachers in these schools. But other forms of assistance, including free bus transportation and the loan of textbooks, have the court's approval.

In sum, the legal squabble over use of tax money to help church-affiliated institutions has not ended. It has simply moved to a different theoretical plane.

"The crucial question," said Burger, "is not whether some benefit accrues to a religious institution as a consequence of the legislative program, but whether its principal or primary effect advances religion."

Using this new caliper, the court approved 5 to 4 the federal program of direct construction grants to private colleges to build libraries, gymnasiums and laboratories.

Such buildings are "religiously neutral," Burger said, dismissing what he called the "simplistic argument" that every form of financial aid to church-sponsored activity violates the 1st Amendment.

But, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island laws authorizing teacher subsidies were struck down on votes of 8 to 0 and 8 to 1 "because as we see it they involve excessive entanglements between church and state," the chief justice said in announcing the rulings from the bench. Even good-willed teachers are not likely to be neutral about religion when they are under religious control and discipline, he said.

But what about other forms of assistance? For example, transportation of parochialschool pupils provided by 24 states and the supply of textbooks in seven states.

Like construction grants to church-run colleges and tax exemptions approved last year, ej,f)evidently meet the 1st Amendment standards of a majority of the high court.

As a result, along with its rulings, the court refused to hear appd8) testing West Virginia and Minnesota programs that use public money to transport children to church-run schools.

Unclear is the fate of laws in several states authorizing tuition grants to parents of parochial-school pupils or to the pupils themselves. Left also for another day was a decision on the nationwide, federally aided program of supplying library books to church-run schools.

The ruling on the 1963 law that has channeled an estimated $240 million in construction grants to church-affiliated colleges drew dissents from Justices William O. Douglas, Hugo L. Black, Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr., the only Catholic on the court.

Douglas accused the Burgerled majority of making a "radical departure" from the original concept of the 1st Amendment. He said he dissented "not because of any lack of respect for parochial schools but out of a feeling of despair that the respect which through history has been accorded the 1st Amendment is this day lost."

Burger, who has taken command of the court on churchstate questions, declared, however, "Our prior holdings to not call for total separation between church and state; total separation is not possible in an absolute sense."

Abortion-Genocide or Population Control

By Editorial Research Reports

NEW YORK — New York State's liberalized abortion law took effect one year ago Thursday.

Some call it genocide. Others call it population control. But few people are neutral or noncommittal on the subject of abortion. Although safe, legal abortions are easily obtainable in 17 states and the District of Columbia, the surgical termination of fetal life remains a deeply troubling issue.

The concern extends all the way to the White House. President Nixon announced on April 3 that he had ordered the Defense Department to abandon its policy of permitting abortions merely on the recommendation of a military doctor and one consultant. The President explained that he could not reconcile "unrestricted abortion policies, or abortion on demand" with his "personal belief in the sanctity of human life," including that of "the yet unborn."

Nixon's order directed military hospitals to conform with the abortion laws of the state in which they are situated. As a result, wives of servicemen in New York State may now find it easier to obtain an abortion than previously. The New York law, which will be one year old July 1, provides: "An abortional act is justifiable when committed upon a female with her concent by a duly licensed physician acting (a) under a reasonable belief that such act is necessary to preserve her life or (b) within 24 weeks from the commencement of her pregnancy."

Small wonder, then, that New York City has become the abortion capital of the country. Around 15,000 abortions a month are now performed there, and the rate "shows signs of increasing steadily rather than abating." Indications are that about half of all New York City abortion patients come from other states.

A move was made in the recent legislative session to repeal the New York abortion law. While the bill was defeated, three measures aimed at providing stricter regulation of abortion procedures were passed. The trio of laws (1) prohibited commercial, profit-making abortion referral services from operating in the state; (2) barred fee-splitting between hospitals and referral services; (3) required that the records of abortion patients be kept confidential.

Meanwhile, Washington, D.C., is rapidly emerging as the No. 2 abortion city in the East. This has happened despite the fact that the U.S. Supreme Court recently upheld the District of Columbia' 70-year-old abortion statute, which permits such operations only to protect the life or health of the mother. The Court held, however, that in future cases the government would have to prove not only that an abortion took place but also that the patient's life or health was not in danger -- a difficult point to establish.

Physicians appear to be losing -- or at least masking -- their traditional hostility to abortion. The 1970 American Medical Association convention voted to sanction abortions under certain conditions.

Washington Report

By Senator Symington

WASHINGTON, D.C.— Many colleges and universities throughout the nation are facing bankruptcy, elementary and secondary schools are facing a serious financial squeeze. Indeed, inflation has increased costs of education faster than the general cost of living.

Recently I joined with other members of the Senate in passing unanimously by 79-0 a bill which would provide substantial increases over both the House recommendations and the Administration's budget request for fiscal year 1972 Office of Education funds. The bill then went to conference to work out the differences between the Senate and House.

The Senate recommendation, totalling $5,604,918,000 is an increase of $451,732,000 over the budget request and $804,830,000 over the House recommendations.

The difference between the Senate and House versions is due in part to the fact the House did not regard certain programs as being authorized and therefore did not fund them. The Senate, however, implemented the contingent extension authority of the General Education Provisions Act which automatically extends such programs.

In addition, three fund requests submitted by the President to increase the 1972 budget arrived too late for House consideration. Two of those requests were considered by the Senate.

Among those programs increased by the Senate were: $2,146,885,000 for elementary and secondary education, $116,500,000 for disadvantaged children, $602,412,000 for vocational and adult education, $100,109,000 for libraries and educational communications, and $115,038,000 for research and development.

The Senate concurred with the House in voting increased funds over budget requests for school districts with large numbers of students who live on, and/or whose parents work on, federal installations. Last year appropriations for impacted aid in Missouri totalled $8,443,000. The Administration's '72 budget request for the state amounted to only $6,206,000. This program is vital to school districts around such bases as Ft. Leonard Wood, Whiteman, and Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base. The Senate and House recommendations would appropriate $9,336,000 for this program.

At the same time the Senate added to the impacted aid appropriations $60,000,000 for the first time to school districts with children who reside in public housing. This program was authorized in 1969 but had never before been funded by either house. Total authorization is $300,000,000.

The Senate increases are very important for Missouri schools as well as for schools throughout the nation. Appropriations for Missouri totalled $68,979,028 in federal education funds for fiscal year 1971, but the President's budget requests for fiscal year 1972 would have reduced that amount to $51,657,538. The Senate recommendation totals $92,576,647 -- a substantial increase over the President's budget request and over the House recommendation of $74,883,852.

The Senate-House conference report should reflect this urgent need for quality education that is demanded by both the American education system and the American people.

House Antiwar Forces Gather Huge Backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — House antiwar forces have mustered the largest group ever in losing an attempt to speed the end of the Indochina war.

The tally came on rejection, 219 to 176, of a Senate amendment to the draft-extension bill to set a nine-month deadline for U.S. withdrawal from Indochina. The draft bill now moves into Senate and House conference, where little hope is seen for full congressional approval before the present draft laws run out at midnight Wednesday.

The 176 proponents of the amendment Monday were 18 more than voted two weeks ago for a Dec. 31 cutoff of funds supporting U.S. involvement in the war.

The new antiwar voters included some surprises.

Reps. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, and John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., were among the losers. They said they voted for the deadline amendment because it was the first proposal that wouldn't tie President Nixon's hands. And both said the measure was strictly advisory in nature, expressing the sense of Congress.

There were 143 Democrats and 33 Republicans in favor of the deadline.

Backers of the withdrawal amendment said a deadline contingent on negotiating for release of all prisoners is the only sure way to guarantee a quick return of Americans held in Indochina.

Tabled, thus killed by the vote, was a motion by Rep. Charles W. Whalen to instruct House conferees to favor the deadline amendment.

It was a Whalen-sponsored measure two weeks ago that saw the previous record 158 votes favoring a year-end funds cutoff.

That measure was a bit more toughly worded, but would have had an effect similar to the amendment defeated Monday, expressing the sentiment of Congress.

Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, DMich., was Whalen's cosponsor for the primary amendment among seven defeated attempts to write a deadline.

General Sees Red Attack

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese general claimed Tuesday that Hanoi has committed 10,000 troops to an offensive against allied artillery bases in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

Maj. Gen. Phan Van Phu, commander of the 1st Division, told newsmen in Dong Ha that the enemy force is maneuvering in 800 square miles of Quang Tri province, west from the provincial capital to the Laotian border and north of Highway 9 to the demilitarized zone.

Phu said 6,000 of the enemy troops infiltrated across the DMZ since May 1. He said they have mortars, rocket launchers and antiaircraft guns but no heavy artillery.

Phu denied reports that the North Vietnamese had moved 122mm and 130mm guns across the DMZ. The general said such big guns are just north of the buffer zone but "they have not been used against our forces up to now."

The general said he expected "heavy fighting" along the defensive chain of bases in the unpopulated northwest sector. But he predicted they would be able to keep the enemy from breaking through to the coastal lowlands for a pre-election offensive in the populated regions.

Although the South Vietnamese were driven from Fire Base Fuller, Phu said the enemy is "generally weaker this year." He attributed this to the South Vietnamese invasion into Laos.

The North Vietnamese have kept up steady pressure on the allied firebases in the northwest sector with mortars, rockets and ground probes. One outpost four miles below the DMZ, Fire Base Fuller, was abandoned by the South Vietnamese last week after an 800-round mortar barrage. The hilltop base was reoccupied temporarily Sunday to provide protection for U.S. and South Vietnamese reinforcements sweeping the area.

South Vietnamese headquarters today reported only sporadic ground clashes in the region, but North Vietnamese gunners bombarded several bases and also shot down an American fighter-bomber.

A U.S. spokesman said the F4 Phantom was crippled by antiaircraft fire over the western portion of the DMZ.

CONGRESSMAN BILL D. BURLISON, left, of Missouri's tenth congressional district, received an album of commemorative stamps from Postmaster General Winton M. Blount in ceremonies marking the inauguration of the new United States Postal Service.

OLD MERRY-GO-ROUND HORSES don't fade away, they go back to the carpenters for touch-up jobs when they are as finely carved specimens as these 58-year-old steeds being readied for a new season at Magic Mountain, entertainment center near Valencia, Calif.

OUCH!—M/Sgt. Gene Paul Thacker (left) makes a painful presentation to Sgt. House on Verge of Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — If it sticks to its rigid announced schedule, the House will have set a five-day spending record when it leaves next Thursday for a long weekend recess.

It will have passed in five legislative days five appropriation bills whose $41-billion total in soc-alled new obligational authority also will be a record for nondefense measures.

Two bills that cleared the House last Wednesday and Thursday appropriate $12.4 billion for the Department of Agriculture, environmental protection and consumer services, and $3.68 billion for the State, Justice and Commerce departments and the federal courts.

Scheduled for House passage today, Tuesday and Wednesday are bills to provide $18.1 billion for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Veterans Administration, National Science Foundation and the space agency; $4.48 billion for the Treasury Department and the Postal Service, and $2.35 billion for the Interior Department. Their combined total is $373 million more than the President requested.

None of the five pending bills has been acted on by the Senate.

The House previously passed two money bills financing the legislative establishment and the Office of Education. Both have cleared the Senate but compromise versions must be worked out before they go to the President.

Six more annual money bills—including the granddaddy of them all the Defense Department measure—have not started through either branch of Congress.

Since all provide funds for the government financial year starting July 1, no federal agency is likely to have its budget cleared when the new year starts.

Anticipating that annual situation, the House has sent to the Senate an emergency bill providing temporary and limited financing until Aug. 6.

That's when the summer recess starts—and probably also when another emergency financing resolution is considered.

Broadcast Liberties In Question by Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it came to news, the founding fathers read all about it. Television and radio weren't even a twinkle in their eye or a tingle in their ear when they wrote press freedom into the Constitution.

But if they somehow had felt news someday might flash through the air as well as roll from a press, would they have meant for electronic and print media reporters to be equals in the right of freedom from government surveillance?

If Congress pushes its contempt button against the Columbia Broadcasting System in the dispute over a House investigators' subpoena for raw material used in making the award-winning television documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon," judges may reach landmarks in defining broadcast news liberty.

"I can assure you that we at CBS have not taken lightly either your subpoena or the concern that prompted it," CBS President Frank Stanton told the investigations subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee during a four-hour hearing last week.

"We recognize that journalists can make mistakes, that editing involves the exercise of judgment, and that we and other journalists can benefit by criticism," added Stanton. He refused to show Congress edited-out material or discuss editing activities that went into making the documentary which attacked Pentagon public relations practices.

"But I respectfully submit that where journalistic judgments are investigated in a congressional hearing, especially by the committee with jurisdiction to legislate about broadcast licenses, the official effort to compel evidence about our editing processes has an unconstitutionally chilling effect," Stanton said.

Thus, he set the stage for an expected battle over the power of Congress and the rights of broadcasters under the 1st Amendment.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, DW.Va., chairman of both the panel of probers and the full Commerce Committee which is expected to be asked this week to recommend contempt action against Stanton, repeatedly insisted the case was not a 1st Amendment matter.

The issue, he said, involves whether a broadcaster, who is accused of distorting a program and misleading the public about the views of those appearing on it, can be held answerable in an appearance before congressional investigators.

Staggers said courts "have repeatedly held that under our system, the broadcaster is a fiduciary or trustee to the public." He quoted Chief Justice Warren E. Burger as saying:

"After nearly five decades of operation, the broadcast industry does not seem to have grasped the simple fact that a broadcast license is a public trust subject to termination for breach of duty."

But Stanton cited various legal authorities he said supported his view that broadcast journalists, like print media, are entitled to freedom of the press guaranteed by the 1st Amendment.

Ark-Mo Begins Building Gas Plant

BLYTHEVILLE— The Arkansas-Missouri Power Company has begun building a 2.5-million-dollar liquified natural gas plant, the first of its kind in Arkansas or Missouri, according to a company spokesman.

Ark-Mo president Charles Czeschin said the storage section of the plant should be completed by Dec. 1 and is being built because "We are faced with the necessity of halting the connection of new residences and stores unless we can provide a larger supply on cold winter days."

Using a refrigeration system — to be completed by the 1972-73 heating season — natural gas will be cooled for storage to 259 degrees below zero.

Cooling to this level reduces gas in volume about 600 times. The liquified gas then will be pumped into a 98-foot-high tank that has a diameter of 76 feet. The insulated tank will hold the liquid equivalent of 187 million cubic feet of gas.

On cold winter days, Czeschin said, the liquid, as it is needed, will be warmed to convert it back to gas so it can be "pumped back into the lines to supplement our pipeline supply."

Czeschin said Ark-Mo hopes the plant will carry the company through the nation's natural gas shortage. Ark-Mo is the parent company of Associated Natural Gas, serving the Sikeston area.

"It will provide enough additional winter supply to enable us to continue to serve the growth in residences and small commercial installations for the next four or five years," he said. "Hopefully, the supply crisis will have diminished by that time."

The plant is on a 25-acre site about four miles north of Blytheville. There is enough room for an additional unit if needed, according to a company representative.

The automated plant will be operated by remote control from Campbell, Mo.

IT RAINED BEANS

JOAO PESSOA, Brazil (AP) — It rained beans the other day, Brazilian rancher Salvador Targino insisted, as he showed newsmen and local officials the small vegetables that fell suddenly on his property.

That's what happened, all right, said Delmiro Maia, a federal agriculture official assigned to Paraiba state. Maia speculated that a recent storm swooped up a pile of beans from Western Africa and dumped them over Northeastern Brazil.

That's The Law

Fraud In Need Indeed

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Arnie met a fraud in need who was a fraud indeed. He sold gullible Arnie what was proported to be a genuine 100 per cent mink coat. When he got it home, however, his wife, who was more astute in such matters, quickly pointed out that the genuine 100 per cent mink coat had been made at so small sacrifice to at least a dozen rabbits.

Having paid for the coat by post-dated check, Arnie took the news with a philosophical calm. His calm was shattered the next morning, however, when he went to the bank to stop payment on the check only to that his fraudulent friend had already been there and had cashed the check.

"You've gotta' be wrong," Arnie insisted. "The check was post dated. It wasn't to be paid until tomorrow. Somebody at the bank has goofed!"

If anyone's goofed," was the answer, "it's you. You not only gave out a post-dated check, but you gave it to a swindler to boot. If a person wants to give out a post-dated check, he does so at his own risk."

Intent upon holding the bank liable for cashing the check prematurely, Arnie took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Arnie suffer the loss?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that unless a depositor waives his rights in some manner, a post-dated check is payable on the day of its date. If it is presented earlier and the bank pays it, the depositor can recover. And, in this case, concluded the judge, Arnie did not waive his rights. He signed nothing and in no other way did he relieve the bank of its responsibility.

Missouri Supreme Court Okays Commitment of Fisher

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court affirmed Monday the commitment of Gary Everett Fisher to the Fulton State Hospital by the Jackson County Juvenile Court.

Juvenile Judge Alvin C. Randall committed young Fisher after a 5½-day hearing on evidence he killed Mrs. Kay Ransier, who rented an apartment from his parents.

"We hold that the evidence was sufficient to sustain a finding that Gary was guilty beyond a reasonable doubt of killing Kay Ransier," the court said in an opinion by Judge James A. Finch Jr.

The juvenile judge had ordered him committed to the Fulton hospital "for care and treatment until further order of the court."

In the appeal Fisher contended he sould have been given a jury trial. But the Supreme Court said under Missouri's constitution and juvenile code a juvenile can be tried in juvenile court without a jury.

In another juvenile case, the court affirmed the life sentence in Cass County Circuit Court of Carl Allen Mcclure Jr. he pleaded guilty to a charge of killing his stepmother, Virginia McClure, on his father's farm near Pleasant Hill, Mo., April 30, 1962. He was 15 years old at the time.

In other felony cases the court:

Affirmed the conviction and life sentence of Hberbert Ned Tate, one of four men charged with the robbery-death of a restaurant operator, Mike LoGrasso, in St. Louis.

Upheld the conviction in Jackson County Circuit Court of Milton Terry Kelton on a charge of assault with intent to kill with malice aforethought. Kelton was accused of shooting a man named Ewing who had just won between $200 and $300 in a crap game.

Affirmed the St. Louis Circuit Court Conviction of John L. Banks on a charge of robbery with a dangerous weapon. He was given a 20-year sentence for his prt in the robbery of the Dutch Boy Market at 1728 Union B.LVD. IN St. Louis Feb. 21, 1970.

I hope this is one reinstated tradition that continues because a White House luncheon is a delightful experience.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM...

I am pleased to announce today my co-sponsorship of the proposed Farm Credit Act of 1971. Hearings on the proposed legislation will begin on July 12 before the House Committee on Agriculture.

The Farm Credit System over the years has been the primary and sometimes sole source of financial aid to rural citizens. The System has evolved from a series of laws passed by the Congress, beginning in 1916. The precautionary limitations incorporated at that time are now inhibiting the extension of the amount and types of credit, and the flexibility needed by the modern farm community.

One new area of credit extension will be in the field of rural residence financing. The Federal Land Banks and Intermediate Credit Banks will be authorized to make loans in this area for the building, buying, improving, and repairing of non-farm rural homes. This provision will allow the Farm Credit System to contribute in a new way to rural development. This service will fill a gap between areas served by savings and loan associations and the areas served by subsidized credit for public housing and the Farmer's Home Administration low income borrowers' loans.

This bill will also provide for the financing of farm related services such as custom spraying, pruning, and harvesting.

Permission will be granted to the Federal Land Banks and Intermediate Credit Banks to own and lease necessary facilities and equipment as needed by eligible borrowers, enabling farmers to have use of infrequently used, but valuable and expensive machines and buildings.

For the Federal Land Bank specifically, this bill would remove the restriction which limits loans to sixty-five per cent of the farm's appraised value, thus creating a greater flexibility in mortgage lending. This step will place more of the new loan responsibility on the Bank, and will undoubtedly be important to young farmers as they seek adequate financing for their new enterprises.

Sound security other than first mortgage on real estate would be acceptable in certain situations, thereby making credit available for long term credit needs. Much needed flexibility would be provided when the farmer has clear repayment capacity and additional collateral to supplement rural real estate.

It should be noted that my bill does not extend the operation of the Federal Farm Credit System to financially related services, as has been proposed by some. Examples of such services are estate planning and record keeping. I feel that such an extension would be carrying the system too far. Estate planning and record keeping are functions equally essential for business and professional people. There is nothing about those services which are peculiar to farmers. These are fields more appropriately left to our conventional lending institutions. Furthermore, I believe that if we take our Federal Farm Credit System so far afield, there will be an irresistible demand from the public to terminate the preferential tax status enjoyed by our Federal Farm Credit System. I am in accord with the Administration on this point and subscribe to the statement of Under Secretary of Agriculture Phil Campbell made before the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry's Subcommittee on Agricultural Credit on May 20, 1971:

The Administration has reservations about the possible imbalances in the competitive relationships between private lenders and the Farm Credit System which could result from the Farm Credit System entering into new fields of lending and services while maintaining current tax exemptions.

I am convinced tht the next decade will be a crucial time for funding the lending operations of the Farm Credit Banks. Both political and economic factors promise a degree of competition by borrowers in the money and capital markets heretofore unknown to the Farm Credit System. In the past ten years the debt of the Farm Credit System has tripled. The total of all securities outstanding was less than 10 million dollars in 1960, but now is nearly forty million dollars. This trend is expected to continue. To meet this need, the Farm Credit System must be modernized and made more responsive to the American farming community which it is designed to serve.

P.S. FROM BARBARA

After a lapse of over 30 years, Mrs. Nixon has reinstated a White House tradition, and I'm glad I was here to be invited and involved. This spring, she hosted a series of three luncheons for the wives of Members of Congress.

There can be nothing more elegant than a White House luncheon, and I might add, more filling. This was no dainty "salad luncheon". The main course was a delicious seafood dish in crepes, fresh buttered asparagus, hearts of palm salad, and the most enormous cream puff filled with a light custard and absolutely smothered with whipped cream.

The mood of the luncheon was elegant, but very informal. The entertainment was the Marine Corps Strolling Strings, and they are always delightful.

We were served coffee in the Blue Room , and Tricia joined our group for a short time. At that point, early in May, she was busy with wedding preparations.

Nixon Will Not Seek Tax Reduction to Help Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today President Nixon will not seek tax reductions to give the economy further stimulation, nor will he attempt to speed federal spending.

In addition, the White House announced Nixon will veto a $5.6-billion public works bill, including a proposal to create jobs for the unemployed.

Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally told newsmen Nixon will not institute a wage and price review board in an attempt to control inflation, nor will he use powers granted to him by Congress to clamp down mandatory wage and price controls on the economy.

The White House announced that Connally, a Democrat and former Texas governor, has been designated chief economic spokesman for Nixon.

Although the economy has not moved fast enough as yet to cut into a 6.2 per cent unemployment rate, Connally said the President has decided there is enough stimulation to do the job eventually.

The secretary told newsmen that an unemployment rate of four per cent, considered by economists to be a full employment, "is a myth. It's never happened, except in war time."

He said the President wants to reduce the unemployment rate and will look favorably on proposals that would carry out that goal. The public works bill the President is vetoing is not in that category, the secretary said.

President Nixon's economic advisers have said the unemployment rate would be coming down to the 4.5 per cent zone by the middle of 1972. Connally appeared to soft pedal, if not abandon, that projection.

"I would not try to peg the precise point that we would try to achieve," he said.

Three Bound Over In Store Robbery

HAYTI — Three Florida men, who are being held in the Pemiscot County Jail for lifting about $650 out of the cash register in McAdams Food Store in Hayti June 14th, were bound over to Circuit Court Thursday following a preliminary examination in magistrate court, Judge Jerry Stillman presiding.

The trio, Willie James King - Edwin Kinsey -Tommie Harley, all of Jacksonville, were represented by their court appointed attorneys.

During the hearing, County Prosecuting Attorney Art Stephenson introduced as State's witnesses "Cobb' McAdams, owner - operator of the Hayti supermarket, Art Berry who is the store butcher, and Deputy Sheriff Gene James.

McAdams testified that the three men entered the store and seemed to be just browsing around. The butcher cut one of the three some meat. McAdams went on to say that he was waiting on one of the men at the counter. When McAdams turned away from the man, he allegedly reached into the cash register and took the money. McAdams saw the man leaving the store after realizing what had taken place and ordered him to stop. The man ran. McAdams then yelled to the butcher, Berry, who followed the man on foot and watched him get into a tan and cream colored car. Both McAdams and Berry testified that neither actually saw the man take the money from the cash register.

Berry identified the escape vehicle as an Oldsmobile. However, it was reported that another person saw the car and said it was a tan over cream Electra Buick.

Deputy Sheriff Gene James told the court that he was in Arkansas when the robbery took place. He heard the traffic on his radio and proceeded North on Highway 61. Near the Steele intersection, Deputy James spotted the vehicle which had been described as the get - away car. He turned around in pursuit.

The car was stopped in Arkansas by Mississippi County officers and Arkansas State Police who set up a road block on I-55. The three men, who had allegedly held up the Hayti store, were taken into custody by Arkansas authorities and lodged in the Mississippi County Jail at Blytheville.

Deputy James stated that although he could not catch the vehicle it never got out of his sight. He told the court that the red lights on his car were in operation at the time, but the car occupied by the three Negro men seemed to be constantly gaining in the chase.

Hayti Police Chief "Fritz" McKay was called to the stand. Chief McKay testified that he was not too familiar with the case, pointing out that he had not assisted in the arrest of the trio.

After hearing the evidence, Judge Jerry Stillman ordered that the three men be bound over to Pemiscot County circuit court. The date for their trial has not been set.

Sexy Salesman in Automobile Business

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Most working women are deskbound, but Jean Leonardi spends her days standing on a curb looking for people who want to buy cars.

"The only one in town, and for all I know, the only one in the South," says the 25-year-old green-eyed blonde.

Joan was a private secretary until a month ago when she answered a newspaper ad from a Miami Ford agency that wanted to see if women could sell cars. Now she's in the top 10 among the firm's 30 salesmen.

Although basically a new-car salesman, Joan also sells used cars and trucks.

"I sold a truck last week," she said. "I still don't know what I sold the guy, but he lived it."

Winner of a hot pants contest at a local club, Jean usually wears pants or skirts to work. She says she sells mainly to couples.

"I make it a point to include the woman in the conversation and keep on a professional level. As long as the wives can see that I'm only interested in selling cars, there's no problem." Jean admits there are all types of car salesmen.

A native of Chesapeake, W.Va., Jean has been in Miami two years. This is her first real sales job.

Tense, Chilling Horror Novel

THE OTHER. By Thomas Tryon. Knopf. $6.95.

A horror story that builds up a lot of psychological pressure, this novel centers around a pair of 12-year-old twins.

The setting is a big old farmhouse near a small Connecticut village, and the period is the 1930's.

The twins are Holland, an enigmatic, sometimes moody boy, and Niles, a light-hearted, imaginative creature who is greatly different from his brother.

They live with their Russian grandmother, who is the head of the household; their mother, a tragic figure who stays in her bedroom nipping at a bottle of whisky; an uncle, aunt and nephew — the latter a repulsive brat; their 19-year-old sister and her husband.

Tension gradually builds up as a series of "accidents" befall the nephew, the mother and the sister's newborn baby. Perhaps it is no accident that as each bizarre incident unfolds, Holland is on the scene? But then Niles, who worships his brother and tries his best to be like him, is present too.

The grandmother, whose psychic powers seem a part of her Russian nature, suspects what evil forces are operating in the family, but is powerless to prevent disaster.

Tryon is a skilled creator of atmosphere and a deft inventor of subtle plot changes. He has written a chilling yarn.

Coffee Corner

By Cherie

"What we need is a family outing," stated my brother-in-law and husband as they quickly backed the car out of the drive at the crack of dawn to be the first on the golf course. "We'll all go fishing and have a picnic when we get home — just get everything ready!" they hollered as the car plummeted out of sight, before I had a chance to even open my mouth and at lease utter a curse upon their golf game, or refuse, or do something — course the way they play golf a curse would really be an unnecessary waste of time and effort on my part; and since I hadn't been given the opportunity to refuse I trudged indoors and begin planning a picnic. Well, the little fellas decided fried chicken was a necessity on outings and so I began. Have you ever fried thirty pieces of chicken? I hadn't, but I did, and it only took me all morning long and many dark thoughts to get the job done. I packed up quantities of food, my sister-in-law packed up quantities of food, the kids packed up quantities of fishing tackle, worms, and such, and I suppose the fellas were out knocking up quantities of points on the golf course. At long last, our heros returned home, worn out, irritable, and bitterly regretting the statements they had made that morning when leaving bright and eager and full of great hope for their game. Alas, now their great hope had fizzled out and a shower and a nap were really what they had in mind. not so, that chicken was gonna get eaten on a picnic and that was that. So heaving a big sigh, everyone grabbed up food and such and started packing the car when someone screams and I turn around to find the chicken lying all over the patio. "Well," I manage to say, "what's a picnic without a little dirt and bugs, and now all we've got awaiting us are the bugs!" So brushing each piece off lovingly, we finished packing the car, I locked the door and we got ready to leave when Charles asked me where his glasses were. These glasses always touch off a sore spot between us as they are brand new due to the fact that he can't find his others, which weren't very old which he had had to replace because he had lost the pair before that also! "Well," I said, "they're in the house, go get them." "Give me the key," he said. "Use your own," I said. "Mine is in the house, "he said. "Would you believe mine is too?" I said. I refuse to repeat any more of the conversation on the grounds that it wasn't very nice! And after all that, there just ain't no poetic justice cause nobody caught any fish or even had a nibble. In fact, the only person I could think of that ended up happy that day was the locksmith!!

NEW MUSIC IDEA

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—An electronic synthesizer may be the device that enables future composers to hear their compositions instantly instead of written music played by musicians.

A Bradley University professor of music, Dean C. Howard, has been composing music by substituting a console of knobs, dials and tapes for the traditional quill and manuscript paper.

The synthesizer was purchased with a federal grant supplemented by a gift from Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity.

"The young composer puts on tape exactly what he wants," Howard said. "He's not limited to writing a composition and then trying to get a symphony conductor to perform it."

PET DOCTOR

By T.M. Eagle, D.V.M.

THE SPRAYING MALE CAT

Question: Is there any possible way of discouraging our male cat from spraying on our furniture. (H.W.M., Detroit, Mich.)

Dear H.W., This unruly house vice of cats starts out as a natural instinct of the male. He will overdo himself during the mating season, especially if there happens to be a female cat close by in season. If he is allowed to leave his odor around the house he will return time and again to these specific spots just as he would do out doors. Break the cycle by either boarding him out for a week or keeping him penned up in a garage, preferably in a kennel-type housing. The pet supply stores stock several brands of cat repellant sprays. Use this on the furniture. Have the cat checked to determine we have no bladder or urinary problems. Castration after nine months of age will eliminate the sexual ambitions of kitty and he should soon give up on the spraying and use the little box that is kept clean and fresh for him each day. (You may send your questions to Dr. Eagle, P.O. Box 1042, Columbia, Mo. 65201).

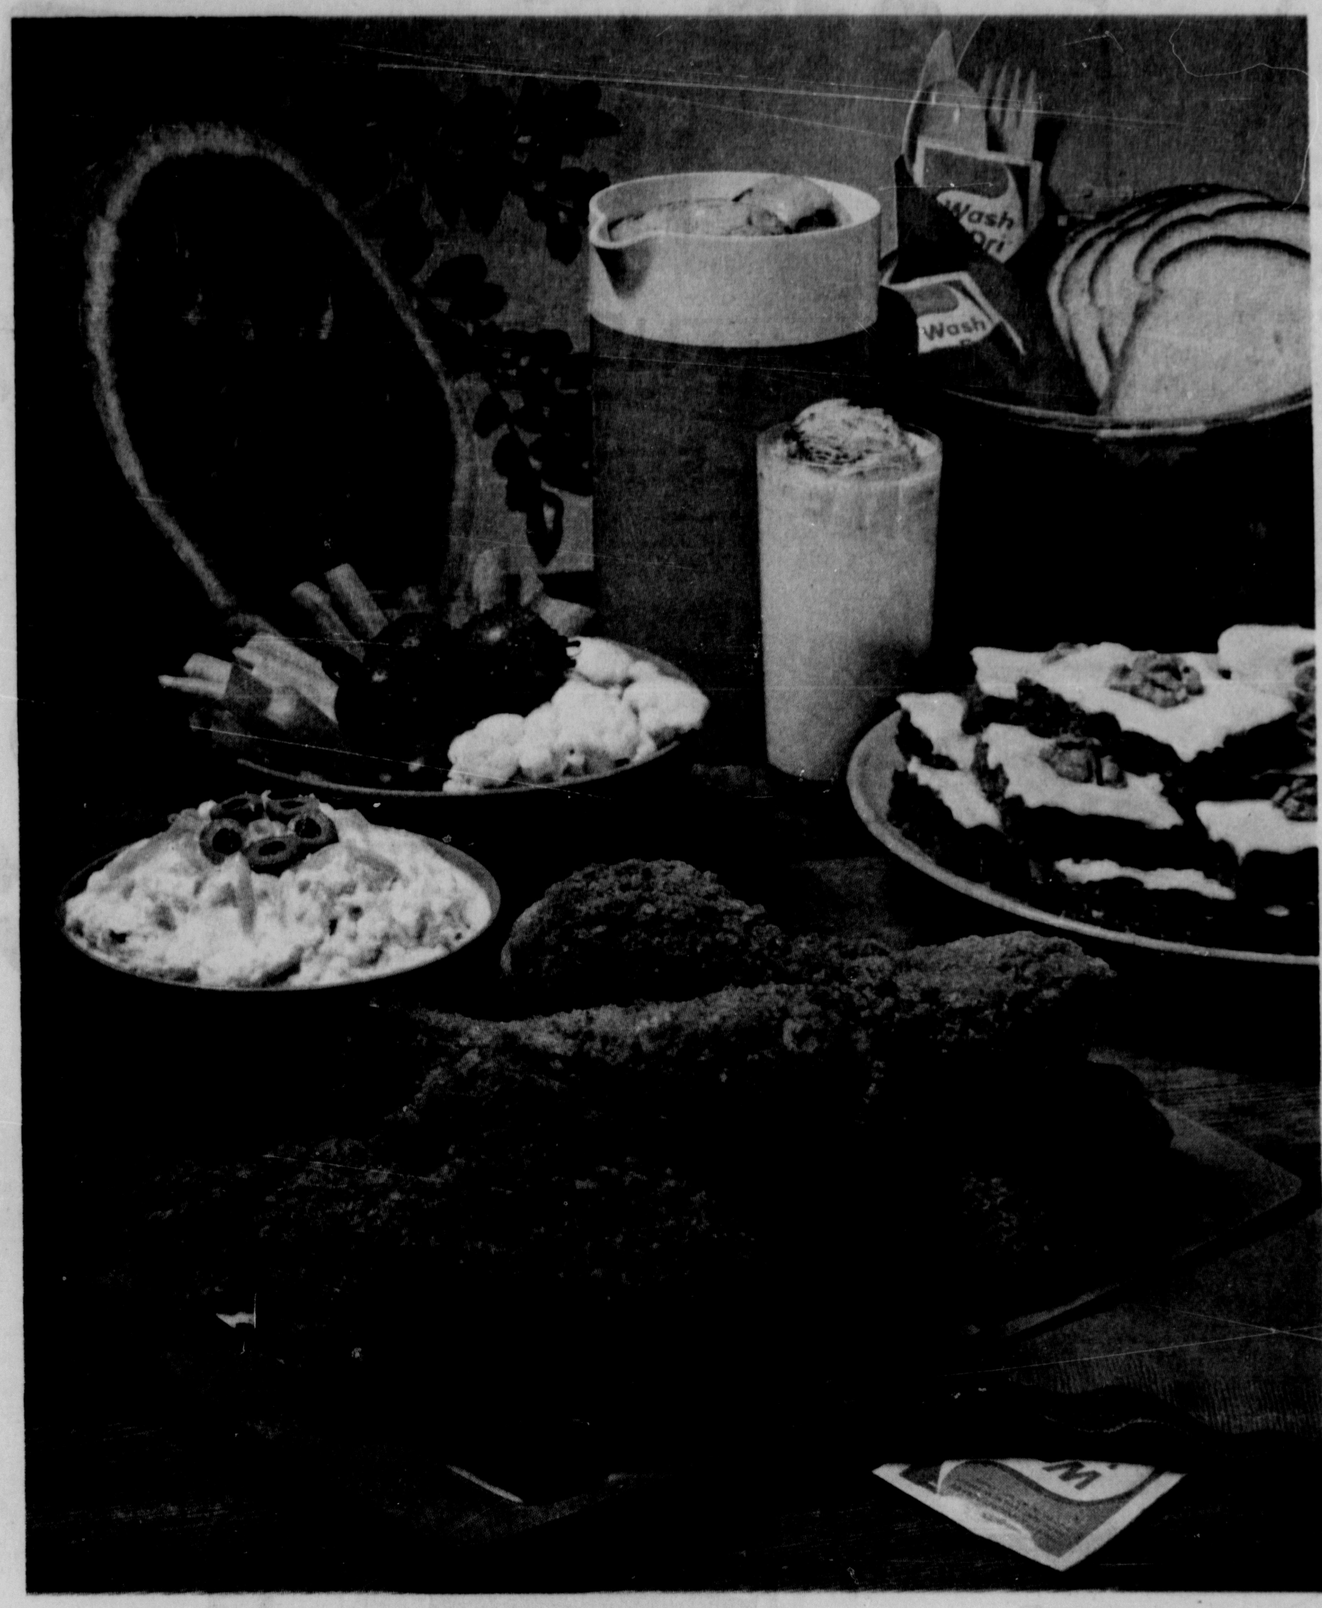
HOW TO PACK THE BIRTHDAY PICNIC BASKET



with FUN and FINE NUTRITION

Picnics are fun! What better way to celebrate a birthday? There's the eager zest of eating out-of-doors, the easy-does-it delight of finger foods and the sweet sauce of sunshine making every bite taste better.

Most picnics come complete with children, making good nutrition extra important. And with a little planning you can avoid serving empty calorie snacks and be sure your picnic basket contains the elements of a well-balanced meal.

One finger food packed with plenty of nutrition is thrifty chicken. Butter Baked Wings and Drumsticks are just right for kid-sized fingers and hearty appetites. The National Broiler Council points out that chicken has a high quality protein content that no other meat exceeds and few equal. And real, farm-fresh butter enhances its delicate flavor.

Pack crisp fresh vegetable sticks, another carefree finger food, to dip in a nourishing mixture of cottage cheese blended with Cheddar cheese and zippy seasonings. Such fun to eat vegetables this way and the cheeses add a protein bonus.

A thermal jug of ice cream "frosteds," as exciting as any at the ice cream counter, will thrill the birthday picnickers. Top off with a nourishing dessert of Molasses Raisin Bars packed with the high energy and iron of old-fashioned unsulphured molasses, a natural sweetener with no preservatives added. Finish up with wedges of luscious watermelon which provide useful amounts of vitamin "A" and loads of juicy refreshment and fun.

When planning to eat enroute, don't forget to pack pre-moistened towelettes for a quick before and after picnic clean-up.

Another delightful and nourishing picnic meal, best carried in an insulated bag, features Chicken Salad Heroes. Cream cheese gives novel flavor and added nutrients to the chunky chicken filling. Chopped celery, carrots and radishes add delightful texture contrast, too. Pile this hearty chicken salad on buttered buns for a "hero" that's really heroic in flavor and nutrition.

Homemade Peanut Lassie Cookies have an appealing nutty, sweet flavor and feature a delicious cream cheese frosting. They make a fine, nourishing dessert served with cold milk toted along in a vacuum bottle. Milk, an all-around food, gives you energy when you're on the go, according to the American Dairy Association.

BUTTER BAKED WINGS AND DRUMSTICKS

12 broiler-fryer chicken drumsticks (3 pounds)
12 broiler-fryer chicken wings (2 pounds)
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 cups saltine cracker crumbs
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 cup (2 sticks) butter, melted

Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. Combine crumbs and poultry seasoning. Dip chicken in butter, then roll in crumbs to coat well. Place on two foil-lined 15-1/2 x 10-1/2 x 1-inch baking pans. Drizzle remaining butter over chicken. Bake in 375°F. oven 45 to 60 minutes, until tender. YIELD: 12 servings.

CHICKEN SALAD HEROS

1/4 cup milk
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2-1/2 cups diced cooked chicken (from Simmered Chicken°)
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped pared carrot
1/3 cup chopped radishes
1/2 teaspoon onion salt
Dash pepper
4 hero rolls
Butter

Blend milk into cream cheese and beat until smooth. Add chicken, vegetables, onion salt and pepper; mix well. Cut rolls in half and scoop out some of the bread to make a cavity. Spread with butter. Fill each roll with 1/4 of chicken salad mixture (about 2/3 cup); replace tops and wrap tightly in foil or plastic wrap. Chill before taking to picnic. YIELD: 4 servings.

°Simmered Chicken

1 broiler-fryer chicken, whole or cut in serving pieces
2 cups water
1 small onion, sliced
2 celery tops
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon Ac'cent
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Put chicken in kettle; add water and remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil; cover tightly. Reduce heat and simmer 1 hour, or until tender. Remove from heat; strain broth. Refrigerate chicken and broth at once. When chicken is cooled, remove meat from bones; dice.

CHEESE DIP

2 cups (1 pound) cottage cheese
1/4 cup milk
1-1/2 cups (6 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
1/4 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives, optional
1 teaspoon chopped chives

Combine cottage cheese and milk in container of electric blender. Cover and process at high speed until smooth. Turn into mixing bowl. Stir in Cheddar cheese, olives and chives. Chill. Take to picnic in insulated container. Serve with cherry tomatoes, carrot sticks, celery pieces and cauliflowerets. YIELD: About 3 cups.

Note: If using electric mixer, beat cottage cheese until smooth; add milk.

MOLASSES RAISIN BARS

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, softened
1/2 cup sugar
3 eggs
3/4 cup Grandma's Old Fashioned Molasses
1-1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1-1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
2 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1-1/2 cups raisins

In large mixing bowl beat together butter, sugar, eggs and molasses until well blended. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and cloves; blend into molasses mixture. Stir in oats and raisins. Spread batter onto a buttered and floured 15-1/2 x 10-1/2 x 1-inch baking pan. Bake in 350° F. oven 15 to 20 minutes. Cool in pan. Top with Glaze° and decorate with nuts. Cut into 3 x 2-inch bars. YIELD: 25 bars.

°Glaze

Gradually blend 2 cups confectioners' sugar and 3 tablespoons milk into 2 tablespoons soft butter; beat until smooth.

PEANUT LASSIE COOKIES

2-1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter, softened
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
3/4 cup Grandma's Old Fashioned Molasses
1/2 cup creamy peanut butter
1/2 cup water

Sift together flour, baking soda and salt. Beat butter with sugar, egg, molasses and peanut butter until creamy. Blend in flour mixture alternately with water. Drop by rounded teaspoons onto buttered baking sheet. Bake in 350°F. oven 8 to 10 minutes, until lightly browned. When cool, frost with Cream Cheese Frosting°. Wrap in plastic bags or foil for picnic. YIELD: About 5 dozen cookies.

°Cream Cheese Frosting

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend confectioners' sugar and vanilla into softened cream cheese. Beat until smooth and creamy.

Gloom Falls in Russia Upon Learning Deaths Of Three Cosmonauts

MOSCOW (AP) — The three Soyuz 11 cosmonauts died today as their space ship brought them back to earth from the world's first manned orbital space laboratory and a record of nearly 24 days in space.

An official announcement said the three spacemen—Lt. Col. Georgy Dobrovolsky, flight engineer Vladislav Volkov and test engineer Viktor Patsayev— completed their flight program Tuesday and communicated with ground control on the way down. Soyuz 11 made a smooth landing where it was supposed to, the announcement said, but the rescue crew that opened the hatch found the men dead.

The announcement published by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the cause of the deaths is being investigated. It gave no indication what they might be.

It was the second Soviet space flight to end in disaster. The first Soyuz spaceship crashed on April 24, 1967, after tangling in its parachute straps, and cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov was killed. No American spacemen have been killed in flight, but three astronauts—Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom, Lt. Col. Edward H. White II and Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee—died Jan. 27, 1967, in a flash fire aboard Apollo 1 during a test on the launching pad.

All three cosmonauts were married. Dobrovolsky, the flight commander who was 43, and Patsayev, 37, each had two children, while Volkov, 35, had one son.

Soyuz 11 carried them into space at 7:55 a.m. on Sunday, June 6. It was the first space flight for Dobrovolsky and Patsayev, but Volkov had made 80 earth orbits in October 1969 aboard Soyuz 7.

Soyuz 11 linked up on June 7 with the 17½-ton space laboratory Salute, which had been orbiting the earth unmanned since April 19. The cosmonauts transferred to the bigger space lab and orbited the earth in it for nearly 23 days in what appeared to be a highly successful advance toward the permanent manned space station which is the goal of the present Soviet space program.

Tass said the men completed their flight program "in full" on Tuesday and were "directed to make a landing." The news agency gave this account of the fatal descent:

"The cosmonauts transferred the materials of scientific research and the logs to the transportation spaceship Soyuz 11 for return to earth.

"After completing the transition operation, the cosmonauts took their seats in the Soyuz 11 ship, checked the onboard systems and prepared the ship for unlinking from the Salute station.

"At 9:28 p.m. Moscow time— 2:28 p.m. EDT—the Soyuz 11 spaceship and the Salute orbital station separated and continued the flight separately. The crew of the Soyuz 11 spaceship reported to earth the unlinking operation passed without a hitch and all the systems were functioning normally.

"In order to carry out the descent to earth, on June 30, at 1:35 a.m., after orienting the Soyuz 11 spaceship .its braking engine was fired and functioned throughout the estimate time.

"At the end of the operation of the braking engine, communication with the crew ceased. According to the program, after aerodynamic braking in the atmosphere, the parachute system was put in action, and before landing the soft-landing engines were fired. The flight of the descending apparatus ended in a smooth landing in the preset area.

"Landing simultaneously with the ship, a helicopter-borne recovery group, upon opening the hatch, found the crew of the Soyuz 11 spaceship ... in their seats, without any sign of life. The causes of the crew's death are being investigated."

The site of the landing was not disclosed, but presumably it was in the steppes of eastern Kazakhstan, where the last several Soyuz ships have landed.

The early morning announcement of the tragedy spread gloom through Moscow. People traveled to work with downcast, greif-strained faces. The lively chatter and smiles of those who had not heard the news disappeared as soon as they were told.

Moscow Radio broadcast serious music following the first announcement. Moscow television, normally silent during the morning, broadcast black-framed portraits of the three men against a background of funeral music.

Pentagon Papers Released

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara recommended as early as Nov. 8, 1961, that President Kennedy combine any commitment of American troops in Indochina "with a willingness to attack North Vietnam," say the top-secret Pentagon papers.

According to the Pentagon documents released late Tuesday by Sen. Mike Gravel, DAlaska, McNamara sent his idea to Kennedy on behalf of Roswell Gilpatric, deputy secretary of Defense, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

They were "inclined to recommend" a program set forth by Gen. Maxwell Taylor, Kennedy's special military assistant, that a U.S. task force be sent into the Mekond Delta, scene of heavy floods as well as an area of Viet Cong strength.

The study, a large part of which was read aloud by Gravel at a hastily called night session of his subcommittee on public buildings and grounds, said Taylor told the President the force would have to engage in combat.

Gravel entered the classified story into the record of his subcommittee, then handed it out to newsmen.

The Nov. 8 McNamara memo, according to the study, said the Taylor program should be adopted "only on the understanding that it would be followed up with more troops as needed, and with a willingness to attack North Vietnam."

Three days later, Nov. 11, McNamara reversed his position in a joint memo with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, recommending deferring the dispatch of U.S. troops.

President Kennedy accepted this position, athough the papers gave no reason for either the switch in McNamara's view or Kennedy's motives in following the Nov. 11 advice.

"I have read these documents and I am convinced I am in no way jeopardizing this nation's security." The freshman senator then told a clutch of 50 spectators, newsmen and congressional aides, "What I do today—what we do here today—is because we love this country."

Then he began reading the papers, minus footnotes, supporting documents and any military facts he regarded as endangering national security.

Three hours and 31 minutes later, Gravel, his voice wracked with sobs and cracking from weariness, ended his reading and said:

"The greatest representative democracy the world has known, the nation of Jefferson and Lincoln, has had its nose rubbed in the swamp of petty warlords, jealous Vietnamese generals, black marekteers and grand-scale dope pushers."

From the time he opened the session in Room 1300 of the New Senate Office Building until he left the paneled hearing chamber, Gravel presided over something Capitol Hill veterans could not match in their memories.

Gravel said he had intended to read the Pentagon papers to the full Senate, but had been prevented by procedural objections from Asst. Senate Republican Leader Robert Griffin.

At first, Gravel said he would read to newsmen the entire study—a 30-hour task.

But when he stopped he hadn't even finished the first volume. So he provided copies to some news agencies.

"I obtained the study last Thursday," Gravel told newsmen during a break in the reading, "and have spent much of my time getting acquainted with their contents.

"I have read these documents and I am in no way jeopardizing this nation's security."

Dexter Firm Will Build Skill Center

HOWARDVILLE — Brown Construction Company of Dexter last night was awarded a contract to build a vocational - technical skill center for $2,346,000 by New Madrid county R-1 enlarged school district, pending approval by the Economic Development Administration.

Cost of the center and equipment will be financed by a $1,624,000 grant from EDA and $1.1 million school district bonds.

The contract allows 17 months for construction. A penalty clause of $100 per day applies if construction is not completed in that time is included and a bonus clause of $100 per day if construction is completed before the allotted time.

The center, at the junction of Interstate 55 and highway 61, south of New Madrid, will provide job training facilities for high school students, dropouts and adults.

$40,000 Grant to Aid Six Counties

WASHINGTON — Approval of a $40,600 grant to help continue a program of planning for economic growth in a six-county area of Southeast Missouri was announced today by Robert A. Podesta, assistant secretary of commerce for economic development.

The Bootheel Economic Development Council, with headquarters in Malden, requested the funds from the economic development administration, U.S. department of commerce.

The grant will help pay area staff and administrative expenses for one year.

Counties in the area are Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott and Stoddard.

The purpose of EDA's district program is to help counties coordinate their planning for growth, and to share their resources and talents to solve economic and social problems.

A district must contain at least two counties designated by EDA as redevelopment areas because of high unemployment or low family incomes. A district also must contain at least one growth center -- a community of not more than 250,000 persons which can help provide jobs and services for residents living in redevelopment areas.

Interstate Forces Move of Buildings

With the opening of an additional 4½-mile stretch of Interstate 55 near Hayti, the highway department is relocating maintenance buildings.

O.E. Bennett, highway department maintenance and traffic engineer, said the department expects to let a contract this fall on nearly $13 million worth of work to be done on the final stretch of 13 miles connecting Arkansas and Missouri.

Two new supply and maintenance buildings are under construction near Hayti. The new buildings will be used for general maintenance, repairs, and supply storage.

The existing maintenance building, constructed in the early 50s southwest of Steele, is being removed. It is on right-of-way for the new section of federal highway.

The present building is being abandoned because there will be no interchange for highway department equipment and an access to the interstate is required.

About $49,000 is being spent to build the two new buildings.

Bennett said the buildings should be completed in August.

By July 15, the newest section of I-55, called the Hayti interchange will be opened allowing motorists to drive south from Fruitland to Hayti on the expressway.

When the next link in the highway is completed, motorists will be able to drive from Memphis to near St. Louis without leaving the interstate.

Policeman Dial Laid Off

PORTAGEVILLE— Mayor Roy Moore confirmed today that Policeman William Dial had been laid off after a traffic accident in which Dial was involved.

There had been earlier reports that the 53-year-old Dial had been fired after disclosure that he lacked a valid driver's license.

Mayor Moore refused to comment on these reports yesterday.

He said this morning Dial was not let off the police force immediately after an accident June 22 in which Dial's car was involved in a collision with a motorcycle.

He said he did not know then that Dial did not have a valid driver's license.

Mayor Moore said he instructed police chief Joe Moore to notify Dial that he was off the force and to give him his paycheck. A night officer, Roy Hurley, delivered the check to Dial's home.

Mayor Moore refused to comment whether the layoff was permanent and said the matter would be considered by the city council at a meeting next week.

Kenny Caldwell, 18, the motorcyclist, suffered a broken leg when the car, driven by Dial, made a left turn in front of him on highway 61.

Bowman Kiwanis President

Dave Bowman was elected president of the Kiwanis Club at a meeting held last night at the Rustic Rock Inn. He succeeds Pat Lea. Other officers elected were Claude Benney, vice president; Jim Statler, treasurer, and Mike Harris, Don Pratt, Roland Sorum and Bob Meyers, directors.

Bowman introduced John G. Strinich, general manager of Noranda Aluminum Inc. plant at New Madrid.

Strinich told the club the parent company, Noranda Mines Ltd., originally was a copper mining company with roots in Quebec, Canada. It also has interests in fluorspar mining in Mexico, copper mining in Chile and gold mining in Nicaragua.

Strinich said that the Southeast Missouri site was a "textbook" choice based on the fact that it is close to the geographical and population centers of the United States. It is on the Mississippi river, which provides inexpensive transportation.

The plant is 60 per cent operational and will be in full operation in August. The employment will reach 535

PROTECTING THE POLICE

One hundred policemen were killed in the United States last year. Fifty-one have been killed since January 1, seven of them in New York City. Attorney General John Mitchell urges that serious consideration be given to imposing the death penalty on cop killers. But there is a serious drawback: a clever lawyer can so shake up some jurors where the death penalty is involved, that accused murderers, guilty or not, often go scot-free.

When two policemen were shot to death in Harlem last month, the New York Daily News observed that such killings are often made in order to establish a reputation, i.e., so that the power group or gang can brag about it.

Congressman Gerald Ford, the House Minority Leader, has asked the Select Committee on Crime in the House of Representatives to consider a bill offering a substantial reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone who has assassinated a policeman anywhere in the country.

The recommendation makes sense. When the Daily News announced that $35,000. had been offered for information regarding the latest cop killers in New York City, police received hundreds of calls. But it is not enough after the fact. A Federal law offering a reward automatically in every case would be a serious deterrent to such a crime.

Write to Congressman Ford, or to your own congressman, encouraging such a law. An attack on a policeman is a threat to us all.

DID YOU KNOW that this month of July was once called Quintillius? That it was the fifth month of the year? That it once had 36 days? That it was named by Marc Anthony in honor of the great Caesar? All of these questions are thrown at you to cloud over the bitter fact that this year of 1971 is half gone.

July is a big month and one that can be turned into a real boomer with a little planning around some of the following activities: Birthday of the first US postage stamp, National barbecue month, National Hot Dog Month plus plans for vacations of all kinds.

July 3-10 — Let's Play Tennis Week.

July 4 — Independence Day and the start of National Safe Boating Week.

July 15 — St. Swithin's Day. Tradition calls that if rain falls on this day it will rain for the next 40 days.

July 20 — Moon Day, the anniversary of man's first landing on the moon (1969). July 25 — National Farm Safety Week.

If you are looking for a hook to hand a mid-August promotion, the only Friday 13 of the year will be taking place next month. August will also have national smile week, Family Reunion Day, Better Water for Americans Week, National Archery week, and the ringing of school bells to bring to an end the summer vacation for the youngsters ... and a sigh of relief from all mothers.

INCURSION INTO
MIDDLE AMERICA

Kansas City, the place everything's up-to-date in, has an image of solidity and stolidity that makes it an unexpected target for activists. But when the Viet Nam Veterans Against the War decided to make a "limited incursion into Middle America" on Saturday, July 3, they chose Kansas City. A spokesman for the V.V.A.W. said the weekend rally was planned for the heart of America because "we feel the East and West Coasts have been barraged with antiwar sentiment and Middle America is being neglected."

Antiwar leaders are showing a new sophistication in realizing that too much of their activity has been directed at influencing those who already were in their camp. Erich ("Love Story") Segal recounts (New York Times Magazine, June 13, 1971) a recent conversation with radicals at Harvard University about an article on the Kent State shootings that Segal had written for the Ladies Home Journal.

"... Some of the sillier segments of the Yale community (where Segal teaches) said, "What's that idiot writing for the Ladies Home Journal for?' Whereas some of these radical students at Harvard said, 'That's the right thing to do, Segal, to write about Kent State in your simplistic way for the readers of the Ladies Home Journal because (a) they'll read anything with your byline, and (b) because you have this knack of being able to simplify.' They said, 'Segal, you're in a position realpolitik. Move baby. This is what you've got to do. Your next article for the Ladies Home Journal will be ...' "

An argument can be made that the antiwar vets should have headed farther west if they really wanted to change public opinion in a region. A Gallup Poll in late February sought to find out whether those polled would like to have their congressman vote for a proposal to bring home all U. S. troops from Viet Nam before the end of 1971. The percentage of affirmative answers by region was: East, 73; Midwest, 65; South, 64; and West, 60. Warweariness seems to be cutting across all regions of the nation.

American business did this, not the Government. Business did it in spite of its Government, which has been anti business for 30 years. Foreigners did not do it and youth didn't do it. The "squares" over 30 and their parents did it. And then gave much of it to the world and to our youth, neither of which appreciated it (which, to any student of human nature and history, is not surprising).'

THE AMERICAN ADVENTURE
REDCOAT BALDERDASH

Propagandists who were loyal to the King wasted little time in cranking up their propaganda machine when armed conflict broke out between the Minutemen and the British.

They based their campaign on one main point: the colonists were in rebellion against the Crown, when the laws of God and man plainly forbade such lawlessness. From the main premise sprang a campaign that ranged from sentimental appeal to innuendo.

No such propaganda program would be complete without poetry. One poem went:

"Tho' Knaves do combine
With Belzebub join,
To aim our Downfall and undo us;
By George's fam'd shield,
We never will yeild,
To the (ugly word) or the Armies of Louis."

Propagandist George Inglis sought to appeal to the Rebel's sense of comfort in the following lines which, considering that war does affect one's well-being, were not too far off target:

"Where is that Peace, that Ease, that Affluence, Security and Freedom which formerly resided in, and distinguished America? They are fled. Oppression, Violence and Usurpation prevail in their Stead."

Nor did the propaganda mill forget the alliance between France and the rebellious colonists. There were great hintings that France had come into the war only because the Congress had agreed to give that nation some American land. And even if no such deal were made, the story went, those awful Frenchmen would take anything they wanted anyway. "Let Washington now from his mountains
Who knows but in George he may still find
a friend.
A Briton although he loves bottle and wench,
Is an honester fellow than parle vous French."

When the Britisher brought in the Hessians, the propagandists were ready to justify the use of mercenaries: "The employing of German Protestant Troops if full of true Wisdom and good policy."

And so it went: Britain was strong, the colonies weak; the French would taste ony defeat and hightail it back to Gaul; the British Navy was the strongest in the world and was just beginning to fight. And there was much glee when it was noted that the Congress didn't have enough rags to make dollars. One satirist, noting that the Continental Army was wearing rags, wrote:

"We have reason to believe the country in general never abounded more in that article."

But propaganda could not win this war. The course of Freedom was too strong and no amount of words would alter it.

CLASS-CONSCIOUS TO THE END?

As generations of schoolchildren have learned from Shakespeare, Julius Caesar's last words as the senators stabbed him in the forum (a sensitive place) were "Et tu, Brute!" The phrase is sometimes translated as "Oh, you brute!" or more accurately, "Thou, to, Brutus!"

Well, there's always somebody who can't leave well enough alone. According to the language magazine, Quinto Lingo, Caesar didn't say it. In fact, if he reproached Brutus at all, he probably spoke in Greek since Roman aristocrats commonly used Greek among themselves as a sort of caste dialect.

Future productions of "Julius Caesar" valuing historical truth over poetry should change the famous speech in Act III to "Kai su, teknon!" says the magazine.

Whaddaya want — good grammer or good Greek?

A RARE BIRD

An elected public official who risks his political future by taking a stong stand on a controversial issue is a rare and courageous bird. Many politicians have taken strong stands -- on the safe side of the controversial population and environmental issues -- but it has remained for the Junior Senator from the state of Oregon, Robert W. Packwood, to submit a measure in Congress that would seek to limit the size of American families by limiting income tax deductions. He has also proposed the liberalization of legal abortions in the District of Columbia -- as an example for the states to follow.

Mr. Packwood is carrying out his pledge to the people of Oregon to protect the environment in the most direct manner at his command. Whether he has made a political mistake or whether one agrees with his proposals is beside the point. The forthrightness of his action is a credit to the state of Oregon -- and to the nation.

SHORTCUT TO A NEW JOB

Since the computer is often blamed for putting men out of work, it's only fair that it be put to work itself in helping people find jobs.

The computer and television have been mated in a new system called Video/Comp Job Bank which its developers, Video Personnel Systems of Shaker Heights, Ohio, hope will revolutionize corporate recruiting.

It works this way: Job candidates register for the Job Bank. A detailed personal history is prepared by VPS and reduced to computer data.

The applicant is also interviewed on video tape by a professional interviewer in a relaxed office setting. The interviewer's role is to bring out the candidate's strengths and interests in a "neutral" atmosphere without representing any particular employer.

Computer print - outs of job -seekers' profiles are sent to corporations with openings in the candidates' chosen fields. When an employer feels that a candidate's profile matches the job requirements, he can request the taped interview and screen it on a portable video tape set in his own office. If he likes what he sees, he can then arrange for a "live'. interview.

Thus a lot of wasted motion is saved on the part of both potential employe and potential employer.

EVERY TRAIN CAN'T BE A WINNER

Perhaps it was a great thing, that the Department of Transportation and Penn Central received a special award from the Railway Progress Institute a few days ago for the cooperative DOT/PC Metroliner project. At this point, Metroliner looks like a good thing — something which can perhaps be extended into other corridors of high -volume travel. At the same time, industry - watchers had to suppress a shudder — knowing full well that there will be those who will try to make every train a Metroliner, every train a winner no matter what the figures show.

The facts are that the passenger train — the traditional, long - haul, slow - trip -to -anywhere passenger train — is a dying (if not dead) institution. The railroads' voice — and TAA's — should be heeded.

SMUT MAIL AD BAN UPHELD BY COURT

The U.S. Supreme Court May 4, 1970, upheld a law which allows a person to bar advertising from his mailbox if he decides it is too sexy.

The law was challenged by 14 mail order houses, book publishers and others, who claimed it interferes with their right to free communication through the mail.

The vote of the eight -man Court was unanimous with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger speaking for the majority. Burger said for the Court: "In effect, Congress has erected a wall — or more accurately permits a citizen to erect a wall — that no advertiser may penetrate without his acquiescence. The continuing operative effect of a mailing ban once imposed presents no constitutional obstacles."

Justice Burger went further saying the householder may prevent any kind of mail from being delivered. The right to be "let alone" is as fundamental as the right of others to communicate, the Justice says.

In California, federal Judge Franic Whelan has ruled that Fullerton's "litter ordinance" is constitutional. The ordinance makes it unlawful to place any reading material on private property without consdnt of an adult resident. Suit against the ordinance was brought by Tempo, a free distribution newspaper.

POSTAL LESSON

With mail taking ever longer to reach its destination despite a recent increase in postal rates, perhaps the U.S. Postal Service can learn something about efficiency from the Greyhound Bus Co., which also delivers parcels. According to a recent Post-Dispatch article, the bus line delivers a package from Kirkwood to Omaha, Neb., overnight, whereas a package mailed to the same destination may take 12 to 14 days.

The bus service is used not only by businesses but also by students, for example, who depend on it to transmit books and term papers between their homes here and the University of Missouri campus at Columbia. This is the kind of service for which the mail system was founded, yet which it is obviously not performing very effectively. If Greyhound can deliver packages well enough to build up an annual business of $168,000,000, a public agency, if managed, should be able to equal its performance.

$700 MILLION DEAL IS DEADLY

The issue most crucial right now to the continued existence of Freedom and Republic USA is the deadly plan for a U.S. company to build for Soviet Russia the world's largest truck manufacturing plant. This $700 million agreement, signed between Mack Trucks, Inc., of the U.S. and the communist government in the Kremlin, includes installation and consultation on a plant capable of turning out 150,000 trucks annually, including monsters with 40-ton payloads.

The largest U.S. plant, Ford's Louisville, Ky., installation has an annual capacity of only 100,000 trucks. Henry Ford II almost made a similar deal with the Kremlin in 1970 but aroused so much opposition that he abandoned the plan. The West Germans then refused to build the plant for the communists. Now Mack Trucks, a division of the Signal Companies of Los Angeles, seems to want to come to the rescue of the communist butchers.

The communist system always falls down in some vital phase of production and runs to free, capitalist industries to be rescued. Businessmen in non-communist nations are foolish to fall for this communist lure of easy profits. If approved, this $700 million truck plant deal would open the gate for worldwide communist aggressors to utilize capitalist industry and know-how to destroy all communist institutions and our Republic.

Patriots will remember the scrap iron and know-how we exported to Japan which was returned to us in death for U.S. fighting men during World War II. Crusades must be organized to write letters to the editor and to pressure Congress and the Nixon Administration, as well as Mack Trucks and the Signal Companies, to reject this $700 million truck plant deal. NEW YORK (AP) — How's your belfry today? Any bats batting around in it?

The question has you worried, doesn't it? The world is so weird that it's hard to say whether you're in it or out of it, isn't it?

So maybe we'd better give you a quick mental checkup to see whether all your gears are grooving, right? Okay, here we go. All you have to do is answer the following questions:

Have you ever written an anonymous letter to your congressman?

When your wife is ill and you have to do the laundry, how many cups of detergent do you use? One to three? Four to five?

If you really got mad enough to kill somebody, would you rather do it by shooting him with a bow and arrow, pouring molten lead on him, or stuffing him with sandy spinach? Would the fact that lead is poisonous affect your decision?

As a child did you ever get your hands spanked for putting beans up your nose?

Are you still afraid of gypsies? Thunder and lightning? Your boss? Your motherin-law's only daughter?

Is there any heredity in your family? If so, how much?

If no one in the supermarket was looking, which would you steal first: a can of dog food, a package of cat food, or a frozen breaded veal cutlet?

Can you look yourself in the eye and honestly tell yourself that you are exactly the kind of man your mother wanted you to grow up to be? If not, what defect in your mother's character caused you to fail?

Can you recall any occasion when the knowledge of algebra you gained as a high school freshman helped save your life later? Is this your fault?

How low down can you sometimes get when you're really feeling high?

If you transpose a juxtoposition in a right angle triangle, is that legal justification for you to transfuse an adenoidal octoploid?

Those are the questions. Now I suppose you want to know your score. Well, fisst let me ask you one final question, and then you can probably figure out your own score.

Do you think anyone who takes the time to sit down and answer a series of questions like these is anywhere normal to begin with?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Ralph Nader has accused Volkswagen of concealing evidence from the public that the German "love bugs" are "potential firetraps."

In an unpublished complaint to Highway Safety Administrator Doug Toms, the consumer advocate charges that 1961-67 VWs have faulty fuel tank caps that dislodge and spray out gas.

There are 2,215,000 of these models on U.S. highways.

Even as Nader's complaint was mailed, his Center for Auto Safety was secretly finishing a major report highly critical of VWs.

The report, with hundreds of pages of backup documents, cites five safety shortcomings in VWs. Besides the gas cap charge, the report tells of door latch failures, roll overs, faulty front seat anchoring and limited passenger protection.

Nader's letter to Toms, a prelude to the sledge-hammer report, recalls a 1968-70 study of VW gas tank tops by the Federal Highway Traffic Safety Administration. The government closed the investigation without ordering VW to provide the owners of older VWs with new self-sealing caps.

Nader charges that VW "concealed from the Department of Transportation during the course of this investigation relevant and damaging VW tests in flagrant disregard of repeated information requests."

Calling upon Toms to reopen the investigation, Nader inquired whether the "concealment of this tested data" violates federal criminal statutes.

Five tests run by Volkswagen in 1966-67 show that its gas tank caps "dislodged" with some spillage at speeds from 30.6 to 32.6 miles per hour. The tests came to light last February in a court deposition by VW test engineer Ulreich Sieffert.

Nader said Seiffert's deposition "clearly indicates that Volkswagen deliberately withheld information to mislead (the government) and VW owners.

"Not only was Volkswagen able to deceive your investigators," Nader added crisply, "but the ridiculous tests conducted by (the government) defy explanation." He said the tests were woefully inadequate.

Footnote: Volkswagen vehemently denied its love bugs suffer from the five alleged defects cited in the still-secret Nader report. A VW spokesman said the firm had detailed studies to back up their denials. As for the "concealment charges," the spokesman said that "Volkswagen has always dealt with the public and with the government in good faith."

-Berrigan Letters-

Justice Department lawyers, now preparing for the trial of brothers Berrigan, are debating whether it introduce some unpublished love letters between Father Phipip Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth McAlister.

The letters might make titillating newspaper copy but would add little to the case against Father Berrigan and his ecclesiastical conspirators. They are charged with plotting to kidnap White House advisor Henry Kissinger.

Privately, the government lawyers consider the indictment so full of holes that a conviction is impossible. It was patched together after FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover tipped the government's hand on the case and Attorney General John Mitchell had to make good on Hoover's goof.

The indictment was so poorly drawn that a new one was shoved through a grand jury, laying emphasis on the Berrigans' alleged rifling of draft records. There is a better chance, the attorneys feel, to make this charge stick.

They are wary about the testimony of their key witness, Boyd F. Douglas, the convict-informer who pretended to join the Berrigan band and then turned them in. The lawyers consider him an unsympathetic figure who will do them little good with the jury.

--WASHINGTON WHIRL--

LBJ's Candidate--We reported on January 4, that ex-President Lyndon Johnson was disenchanted with the leading Democratic presidential hopefuls and was threatening privately to back President Nixon for re-election in 1972. As part of the maneuver, we reported, LBJ might try to make a deal with Nixon to take John Connally, a Johnson protege, as running mate. Down on the Pedernales, LBJ is still muttering to friends about the political outlook. Of all the leading candidates, the former President has grumbled, the only one he can abide is Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash.; otherwise, Nixon still would be a more acceptable alternative.

Bailey's Background--F. Lee Bailey, the fiery defender of Capt. Ernest Medina against My Lai massacre charges, is best known for such headline civilian cases as Sam Sheppard, the Boston Strangler and the Plymouth mail robbery. But actually, Bailey's first legal work was in military, not civilian trials. A fighter pilot at Cherry Point, N.C., he doubled as his group's legal officer in 1955 though he wasn't yet a lawyer. Using borrowed law books, he handled more than 200 cases, some as prosecutor, some as defense counsel. They ranged from spectacular moonshine charges to complicated insanity proceedings. My associate Les Whitten, whose biography "F. Lee Bailey" has just been published, also reports that Bailey as a boy was willing to fight four neighborhood boys at the same time and grew up to be a totally fearless fighter pilot in the Marines.

Hartke Huffs--Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., is in a huff over the appointment of his 1970 senatorial opponent, Richard Roudebush, to a top post in the Veterans Administration. The 1970 contest was one of the most bitter in Indiana history, and Roudebush still has an election suit pending against Hartke. Yet Roudebush must now do business with Hartke, who is chairman of the Senate Veterans Committee. For incredily, Roudebush's main job, according to an official VA press release, will be to carry on "liaison with Congress."

Trim Creates Individual Look

If you sew, it's easy to create your own individual look — with all the trimmings.

There may be nothing exclusive about the pattern you choose, but the way you use trims—either sparingly or in great abundance—can make an individual difference.

Whether in the form of rick rack, ball fringe, peasant bands, braid, eyelet ruffles, or dainty lace, cotton trims are the big fashion accessory for the '70s. And many of them now come with permanent press finishes that eliminate tedious ironing.

For your summer sewing projects, use trims in imaginative new ways. If you're making a peasant skirt, for instance, choose a colorful patchwork-printed cotton. Then use jumbo-size rick rack to border off each patch in the print.

Stitch vertical lines of rick rack onto the fabric first, and then sew on all the horizontals. Complete the look with a peasant blouse of cotton broadcloth or batiste, edged in matching rick rack.

A combination of rick rack and braid can give added charm to country-girl dresses of flower-sprigged cotton calico. Choose trimmings to pick up colors in the print.

For a distinctive hemline border, center a row of giant rick rack between two rows of flat braid. Reverse the arrangement of rick rack and braid for a border outlining the neck and waist of the dress.

Or for a more frilly treatment, try a combination of venice lace and butterfly ruffling. If you use unbleached cotton muslin or natural-colored homespun for your country-girl dress, give it a folksy flair with embroidered peasant braid.

For best results in applying trims, be sure to use cotton mercerized thread in the same color as the trim. Always handle trims loosely and use a light thread tension on your machine to avoid puckering.

You'll also find it's easier to work from a full length of trim rather than from precut pieces when sewing. For a professional look, mark the exact location for the trim on your dress.

Ann Landers

Parents Need Independence From Children, Vice Versa

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for all parents who attach a great deal of importance to certain colleges. My brother did – and it nearly ruined his youngest boy's life. I hope this story will open the eyes of other parents and deter them from making the same mistake.

My brother went to Princeton -- as Father and Grandfather did before him. Two of our uncles also went to Princeton. When my brother's oldest boy graduated from high school, he went to Princeton, naturally. Two years later the younger boy, Jamie, applied to Princeton. He had excellent grades and was highly recommended by his principal but for some reason he was not accepted.

I have never felt so sorry for anyone in my life. That poor kid was made to feel that he had let the entire family down. The sad part if it was that his parents didn't do one thing to lift his spirits. They treated him as if he'd done some terrible thing.

Instead of accepting the decision, my brother got on the phone and started calling everyone he knew who might "help." He wrote letters, sent telegrams -- it was shameful. In the meantime, the boy was getting sicker and sicker over the "disgrace" he had brought on the family. Finally he had to be hospitalized.

It is now two months later and Jamie is much better -- and preparing to go to Notre Dame, his second choice. But the damage done by his family will leave a permanent scar on that boy.

I hope you will print this letter for all parents to see. -- Aunt Betty

Dear Aunt Betty: Thanks for writing. Not all boys belong at Princeton -- or at Notre Dame, either. Some students do better at smaller, less prestigious schools, where the competition isn't so severe. Thanks for saying something that needed to be said.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I will soon be 65. For years we have been looking forward to retirement -- making plans to do things we've always wanted to do but we never had the time, money or freedom. Last year we decided to move up north, about 200 miles. We found an ideal cottage, surrounded by trees and hills with a beautiful little trout brook nearby. To us it looked like heaven. We planned to go up next week and buy it, but we are having trouble with our three children. They say we have no business leaving them -- that grandparents are supposed to be on hand as sitters, to help out when someone gets sick, to take care of the kids when they want to go on a vacation, or for a weekend, to hem skirts and shorten sleeves. Our son has always depended on his dad to help him in his business, on weekends, holidays and often evenings.

My husband and I never realized how much we did for our children until this matter of moving came up.

Now we feel guilty. How much do we owe our grown children? Please help us decide what is right. — Silver Threads

Dear Threads: It sounds as it you two have been leaned on plenty by your kids. Some parents need and want to be a vital part of their children's lives -- forever and ever. In fact, they keep their children dependent for this very reason. But parents who want to be free of their grown children should not be bound by guilt to serve indefinitely as sitters, seamstresses, nurses, and what have you. I say move up north and enjoy the time of life for which the first was made.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your news-paper enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Nixon Calls For New Attitude Toward Old Age In America

CHICAGO (AP) — President Nixon, calling for a new attitude toward old age in America, said today a generation gap between older citizens and all others "has often been ignored or slighted."

In an address prepared for a joint convention of the National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons, Nixon said there is need for "a new alliance in this country between Americans who are under 65 and those who are older."

The President, who flew here Thursday night after making a sentimental journey to Indiana and the home soil of his late mother, said:

"If we allow our society to become fragmented—so that younger Americans are cut off from older Americans—then each member of our society will also become fragmented—with young people cut off from their past and older people from their future."

On one specific point, Nixon complained that altogether too many nursing homes are described as "little more than warehouses for the unwanted, dumping grounds for the dying."

Nixon said:

"I have heard of doctors who refuse to visit some nursing homes because they get too depressed. Too often it seems nursing homes serve mainly to keep older people out of sight and out of mind—so that no one will notice their degradation and despair."

The President said it was his goal to see federal, state and local governments working with the private sector "to transform the nursing homes—for those who need it—into an inspiring symbol of comfort and hope."

In the main, Nixon's remarks were the sort of thing his audience wanted to hear. He placed great emphasis on statistics, showing that the federal spending on aging has nearly doubled in five years, and that Social Security benefits already have been increased 25 per cent in two years, with still another hike in prospect.

The chief executive found a way, too, to appeal to older Americans to support his embattled revenue-sharing program—the centerpiece of his 1971 legislative program.

He declared that sharing federal revenues with the state and local governments "could help stem the ruinous rise in local property taxes," and thus help those over 65.

"When a person retires, his income goes down—and so do most of his tax bills. But his property taxes keep right on climbing—and he may even be forced out of the home he has paid for," he said.

"We must build in this country ... an attitude which insists that there can be no retirement from living, no retirement from responsibility and no retirement from citizenship," the President said.

Speaking directly to his listeners, he said:

"We need you. We need your experience and we need your perspective. Above all, we need your sense of values. For we can be a strong nation militarily, a strong nation economically, and still be an empty shell, if we forget those moral and spiritual values to which your generation is so deeply committed."

Nixon journeyed to Vernon, Ind. Thursday to help dedicate a road marker that will be placed near the birthplace of his mother, Hannah Milhous Nixon. She left the area in 1897 when she was 12 and, with her parents, headed for California.

The president then made an unscheduled 70-plus mile drive from Vernon to Indianapolis—he was supposed to go by helicopter—and stopped along the way to have roadside chats with the staff of a suburban Indianapolis daily newspaper and residents of a Presbyterian housing development for the elderly.

In the evening, just before flying to Chicago, Nixon spoke briefly to a testimonial dinner in Indianapolis for Frederick L. Hovde, retiring after 25 years as president of Purdue University.

On his arrival at Indianapolis' Weir Cook airport, Nixon was briefed by an Air Force pilot and a Purdue University research executive on an experimental aerial photography project aimed at detecting spread of corn blight.

Corn fields in the states have been photographed from as high as 60,000 feet with infrared and color film.

A study of the film identifies outbreaks of corn blight and enables farmers to begin treating the fungus. Corn blight cut the nation's corn production by 15 per cent last year.

Motive in Question On Colombo Shooting

NEW YORK (AP) — Police say they are still seeking a motive for the shooting of reputed Mafia leader Joseph A. Colombo Sr. and are "open to all theories."

Colombo, 48, remained in a coma and in critical condition today after being gunned down Monday as he was preparing to lead a big outdoor Italian-American civil rights rally.

Surgeons said late Tuesday that his vital signs were somewhat stronger but estimated his chances of survival were 50-50. They said brain damage was likely if he recovers.

Racism and gangland rivalry have figured in speculation on the motive for the shooting. But Chief of Detectives Albert Seedman said Tuesday the gunman may have decided to shoot Colombo on his own.

Detectives were still trying to learn more about Jerome A. Johnson, the 26-year-old black man who fired three shots into Colombo before being shot to death moments later.

Embassy Will Continue Policy

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Embassy will continue its policy of visits twice a month to 12 Americans held in a Vietnamese prison despite their complaints that it isn't often enough, an embassy offi cia said Tuesday.

The embassy will also do whatever else it can to make their imprisonment more comfortable, Vice Consul Laurence E. Pope said. But he added: "There just isn't a hell of a lot that we can do."

The 12 Americans held in Saigon's Chi Hoa prison have been convicted by South Vietnamese courts of criminal offenses or are waiting trial in Vietnamese courts.

In letters two weeks ago, they complained to U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and to the Oakland California Tribune that the embassy was not taking enough interest in them, and that their living conditions were inadequate.

The letter to Bunker, signed by several of the prisoners, asked that an embassy representative visit them on a once a week basis because it was their only way of sending their imprisonment more and receiving mail.

The letter to the Tribune was signed by Richard A. Bueb of Lakewood, Colo., and four other prisoners.

Bueb is one of two Americans awaiting trial for selling LSD capsules in Saigon. The others are in prison for a variety of offenses, including two who recently were sentenced to five and seven years for possession of counterfeit plasters.

Agnew Expresses U.S. Friendship With South Korea

SEOUL (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in South Korea Tuesday and expressed continued U.S. friendship coupled with high praise for President Chung Hee Park.

In an arrival statement, Agnew said, "Korea's stunning progress in every area of political, economic and social life is a source of pri de to all men who value freedom.

"Much of the credit for this progress," he added, "and for Korea's emergence as a vital force in international affairs belongs to President Park."

Park has been elected three times as president, the third time earlier this year after the Korean constitution was changed to permit him to run again. Agnew will represent President Nixon at Park's inauguration Thursday.

Agnew flew here from the western Pacific island of Guam, where he spent the night after a trans-Pacific flight on the first leg of a 31-day, round-the-world trip that will take him to 11 countries before his return to Washington on July 28.

Space Station and Shuttle New Issue With Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wading into a new battle over national priorities, Congress must decide whether a proposed space station and shuttle will be either a like a stethoscope to the scandalous waste of billions in tax dollars or "the greatest management system ever devised ..."

At the moment, only $137.6 million in development funds is at stake. But Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., and other senators say that figure is only the tip of an iceberg of spending that could reach the $25-billion level.

The space shuttle, which would provide reusable space vehicles to take astronauts to and from orbiting space platforms, has its defenders.

One of them, Sen. Edward M. Gurney, R-Fla., in remarks prepared for the Senate today, said the shuttle system will give man a tool to control his environment on earth.

"The space shuttle will allow for continual launch, recovery and maintenance of a satellite system which will act earth-listening, recording and analyzing its ills and helping us forecast what remedies man can make," Gurney said.

"As I see it, everything from recognition of corn blight in our farm belt to predicting a hurricane in the Caribbean will be accomplished from the satellites manned by the shuttle system," Gurney said.

"It will be the greatest management system ever devised or even theorized by man."

But Mondale says there is nothing a space shuttle can do that isn't already being done on earth.

"There are more urgent needs here on earth that deserve priority over the shuttle and station and I believe the American taxpayers will agree with me," Mondale said.

Papers to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under the glare of television lights, the secret Pentagon papers on Vietnam were wheeled under armed guard to Congress Monday.

Two Army sergeants delivered two boxes marked "Top Secret" bearing the Pentagon war study to House Speaker Carl Albert just after noon.

Overzealousness Complaint Against FBI

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON--For the second time in its 62-year history, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is under widespread attack. Not since the scandals of the Harding administration, almost half a century ago, has the FBI been subjected to criticism as scathing as that now being voiced.

The FBI in 1924 was described as "lawless" and engaged "in many practices which were brutal and tyrannical in the extreme." The appointment of Hoover to head the bureau in May of that year resulted in a thorough housecleaning. Before long, the FBI had acquired an enduring reputation for efficiency and incorruptibility.

The charge today is overzealousness. Critics contend that the bureau has exceeded its authority by monitoring the activities of persons--including members of Congress--not involved in or suspected of any federal crime. They further assert that Hoover, at the age of 76, has grown autocratic and vindictive and should retire.

Even so, the bureau and Hoover enjoy a level of esteem that any other institution or public official would envy. A Gallup Poll of August 1970 stated that 71 per cent of the respondents had expressed a "highly favorable" opinion of the FBI. In a similar Gallup survey published in May 1971, 70 per cent of those interviewed rated the job Hoover done as either "excellent" or "good." At the same time, 51 per cent thought he should step down.

Persons who say the FBI is overly zealous have short memories, the bureau's defenders argue. Eight years ago the FBI was accused of negligence because it had not notified the Secret Service of Lee Harvey Oswald's presence in Dallas at the time of President Kennedy's fatal visit. Hoover retorted that close surveillance of everyone with a background like Oswald's would amount to "totalitarian security". Now that the bureau has expaned its surveillance of political dissidents, as widely demanded in 1963, it is being criticized on the very ground that Hoover mentioned.

The bureau stands accused of pettiness or worse in its reaction to an episode involving the hijacking of a TWA passenger jet in October 1969 by Rafaelle Minichiello. When the plane landed at Kennedy International Airport in New York for refueling, FBI agents attempted to come aboard. The pilot, Donald J. Cook, fended them off and proceeded to Rome. On landing there, he told a reporter that the FBI boarding attempt was "damned near a prescription for getting the entire crew killed and the plane destroyed."

More than 18 months later, on May 10, 1971, TWA Board Chairman Charles W. Tillinghast disclosed that Hoover had written him after the hijacking to reveal Cook's prior "difficulties in the Air Force." Sen. George McGovern (D.-S.D.) asserted the same day that he had been told by former FBI agents that Hoover attempted to retaliate against TWA by forbidding agents to patronize the airline and by refusing to let them act as air marshals on TWA flights. The FBI's position on trying to board the Cook plane, as described to Editorial Research Reports, is that it was a case of "damned if we did and damned if we didn't." In other words, the attempt had to be made.

Hoover's letter to Tillinghast was a perfect example, the FBI's critics charged, of the misuse of information contained in the bureau's millions of individual dossiers. A bill introduced by Rep. Edward I. Koch (D-N.Y.) would put a stop to such disclosures. Among other things, the Koch bill would require every government agency maintaining records on individuals to notify the person that such a record exists and to inform him of all transfers of such information.

It also has been suggested that the director's absolute control over hiring and firing of personnel be curbed. Unlike most other federal workers, FBI employees are unprotected by civil service laws. The resulting lack of job security, it is said, has an adverse effect on morale.

Boat Commission Can Set Speed Limit

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth held Monday the State Boat Commission has the authority to establish and enforce speed limits on Missouri's waterways.

He told William H. Bolinger, of Versailles, Morgan County prosecuting attorney, the law expressly gives those powers to the commission and one section of the law provides:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to operate a vessel on the waters of this state in a manner other than that prescribed or permitted by regulatory markers."

In another legal opinion, Danforth advised State Sen. Donald L. Manford, D-Kansas City, that Consolidated School District No. 1 of Jackson County cannot use public funds to pay private school truition for exceptional children residing in the district.

"We find no statutory authority," the opinion said, "... authorizing or requiring the public school district to pay all or part of private school truition for these children or for any other children residing within the district who attend nonpublic schools."

GETTING THE MOST OUT OF A GARDEN is this retired couple, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Cooper, 114 North West street. There are 10 varieties of vegetables growing on a lot belonging to the Castor Alsup estate.

Retired Couple Grow Bountiful Garden

A garden plot can be rewarding and healthy to the grower.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Cooper grow one that is producing food for the table.

They were given permission to use a vacant lot across from their home by the owners "to keep the weeds down."

The lot measures 125 by 160 feet and will bring in a harvest of many bushels of vegetables.

Cooper, who is 67, and his wife, 63, spend a portion of their time each day tending the plot.

"I work the garden," Cooper said, "and my wife puts it up either in the deep freeze or in canning."

"I can as much as I can stand around a hot stove in the summer time," Mrs. Cooper said.

Vegetables will come from the long rows, of which there are nine rows of sweet corn, seven of Irish potatoes, and from two to four rows each of tomatoes, sweet potatoes, okra, polled and bush beans, onions, beets and sweet peppers.

Prime Minister Heath's Ship of State Leaks

By Editorial Research Reports

LONDON — The liquidator is busy at work on the Upper Clyde Shipbuilders. By mid-Aguust, when this court - appointed official has finished his examination of the bankrupt yard's affairs, a political decsion will have to be made by British Prime Minister Heath on how best to keep the yards operating. Like Rolls-Royce, shipbuilding used to be one of the prides of the British Empire. Now both shipbuilding and the ship of state have entered troubled waters.

"Clydebank's the only cemetery in the world with lights in it," said a worker from John Brown's shipyard at Clydeside, Scotland. Although there is no indication as yet whether the shipbuilding crisis will lead to massive layoffs, unemployment at Clydeside is already 12 per cent and there are 120,000 unemployed in Scotland. Although the government has said it will keep the 27,000 workers on the job by paying their salaries until a decision is made, the men at the shipyards have had a hard time controlling their anger.

Councillor Jimmy Reid of Clydebank, who as a member of a delegation spoke to Heath at 10 Downing Street, said: "We get the impression that we were talking to a man who didn't know what a dole queue was, who didn't know what it meant to working class families, and who didn't care very much either." Such talk, and film of workers chanting "Heath Out!" over television, did little to boost the Prime Minister's sagging image.

Upper Clyde shipyards was a giant consortium formed by the Labor government in 1968 to keep a number of faltering shipyards going. Only massive government support has kept UCS alive. But when Heath learned this month that the company had liabilities of over $67 million, he decided it was no longer possible to continue this open - ended commitment of public funds.

Heath would like to keep the yards, which have more than $200 million worth of work in their order books, operative. His dilemma has been how to balance his philosophy of "no aid to lame ducks" against political considerations during a period of mounting unpopularity. One Scottish Trades Unionist, James Mill, expressed such a view publicly when he said: "If we cannot get this government to change its policy we have to find the means to change the government."

Heath steadfastly maintains that the British cannot live on past illusions -- that they must become more efficient and productive no matter how painful the process may be. The Guardian observes editorially, however, that, "Mr. Heath's bracing climate of competition has caused pneumonia." England is currently in the midst of its most serious postwar recession. The New Statesman bitterly commented: "As the plight of the shipbuilders reminds us, the liquidator and the receiver have become he advance agents of prosperity, Tory - style."

"What Heath has achieved by letting Rolls-Royce and Upper Clyde go bankrupt," A London banker told Editorial Research Reports, "is to diminish world confidence in the British government's willingness to meet its commercial obligations and to create an atmosphere of suspicion where business credit, even for large firms, is becoming increasingly tight."

If Heath is feeling any distress, he is showing no signs of it. He remains adamant in his effort to puch Britain into the Common Market on Jan. 1, 1973, against the public opinion polls and to put through the Industrial Relations Bill in the face of union opposition. If Heath's first year in office has been a troubled one, the next one promises to be even tougher.

NEW YORK (AP) — When it comes to greeting cards, people spend more time searching for Mother's Day cards than they do for Christmas cards, says Irving Cohen, president of Fifth Avenue card shops.

"People will joke about Mother Hubbard, Mother Goose and Whistler's Mother, but each Mother's Day all kidding is set aside," says Cohen. "Mom is like the American flag. You just don't knock either."

FBI Grads Hear Mitchell

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "tidal wave of legalisms" that benefit the accused are frustrating society's right to see prompt apprehension, speedy trial and swift punishment of criminals, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said today.

"Every conceivable twisting and turning of words is used to weigh the side of the defendant—in many cases far beyond the intent and often even the language the framers of the Constitution," Mitchell said.

"Every conceivable twisting and turning of words is used to unbalance the side of the people, represented by the police and the prosecutor," he told graduates of the FBI's National Academy.

"The result, already visible, is longer trials and appeals crowded courts and a lack of finality in conviction that produces prisoners who believe they will beat the rap and would-be criminals who laugh at the idea that crime doen't pay."

He told his audience of police officers from around the country and from abroad that policemen now face "a new menace—the violence of extremists who are proclaimed enemies of the police, and often of government itself.

The true concept of justice, he contended, is a set of scales balancing the rights of the individual against the rights of society.

"If all the rights that exist are the property of the individual and the people as a whole have none, then we cannot be any tortured reasoning claim that we have a system of justice," Mitchell said.

President Nixon, meantime, accepted a role in the pageant producted, directed and starred in by J. Edgar Hoover.

The White House announced Tuesday that Nixon would drop by the commencement exercises for a few remarks following Mitchell's address to graduates.

The occasion is expected to evoke both some kind words for the 76-year-old Hoover as well as law-and-order statements by the President and Mitchell.

Although the timing is probably coincidental, the gathering of Nixon, Mitchell and Hoover follows the most sustained period of criticism encountered by Hoover in his 47 years as the head of the FBI.

There is little question in the minds of observers that the twice-yearly events mark high points in Hoover's life. Beside him on the flag-bedecked stage are men who praise him; before him, police officers from every state and some foreign nations who can carry the sentiment back home.

The National Academy, which the FBI refers to as the "West Point of law enforcement," was founded by Hoover in 1935. As recorded by FBI annals, the first act of the original 29 graduates was to form an alumni group and elect Hoover an honorary member.

Today's graduates bring the total number to finish the course to 5,934. Represented among the 100 are officers from all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Jamaica, Liberia, the Netherlands, Thailand and the Virgin Islands.

Also included were representatives of the Army, Air Force, Executive Protective Service and National Park Service.

They are graduating from 12 weeks of instruction in such fields as police-community relations, civil disturbances, police management and ethics, criminology, sociology and psychology.

Approval of 18-Year-Old Vote Amendment Close

WASHINGTON (AP) — Record quick approval of the 18-year-old-vote amendment is so close now the states have begun jockeying to see which will have the distinction of making it official.

Illinois completed ratification Tuesday, bringing the total to 35 states. Legislatures in five more states are poised to act next, which would be more than enough to put it over.

Ratification by 38 states is needed to give citizens 18 years and older the vote in all elections. If passed, the measure would be the 26th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Both houses of the Alabama legislature have ratified the amendment, but bickering over which chamber concurs in the other's version gave a new chance to its opponents. Ultimate passage still is expected.

The North Carolina House has passed a ratification resolution, but the Senate has been putting it off day-by-day.

The Ohio Senate passed it 30 to 2 Tuesday, and sources in the House said chances appeared good for final action this week.

The Oklahoma Legislature convenes Thursday in special session and quick ratification there is expected. Wyoming lawmakers convene Monday for the same purpose.

A record for speedy ratification seems assured. The Congress completed action on the amendment March 23 and five states stamped their approval on it after the first day.

The 12th Amendment, reforming the procedure for electing the president and vice president, how holds the record of eight months in 1803-1804 to win ratification from 13 of the 17 states then in the union.

In addition to Illinois, the 18year-vote amendment has been ratified by Minnesota, Delaware, Washington, Connecticut, Tennessee, Massachusetts, Hawaii, Montana, Arkansas, Iowa, Idaho, Indiana, Nebraska, KansasN michigan, Maryland, Maine, Vermont, Alaska, California, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Texas, South Carolina, West Virginia, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Arizona, Louisiana, Rhode Island, New York, Oregon, Missouri and Wisconsin.

By a Supreme Court interpretation last December of the 1970 Voting Rights Act, youths aged 18 through 20 were given the vote in all federal elections, but not in state and local elections except in the handful of states with voting ages below 21.

Serious Crime Declines in 61 Big Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Serious crime continued to rise nationally in the first three months of 1971, up 6 per cent from the same period last year, but Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said crime actually declined in 61 large cities.

Although property crimes increased less rapidly in the first quarter of 1971 than in the first quarter of 1970, violent crimes increased a bit faster.

But Mitchell pointed out today, in releasing FBI crime statistics, that the over-all 6 per cent increase was considerably below the 13 per cent hike between 1969 and 1970. It was the lowest rate of increase in five years, he added.

The 61 cities that experienced a drop in the total number of crimes reported between 1970 and 1971 were among 154 U.S. cities with a population of 100,000 or more. Mitchell said statistics for the first quarter of 1970 showed 20 cities with fewer reported crimes than in the comparable period of 1969.

Propery crimes—burglary, auto theft and larceny of $50 or more—increased by 5 per cent between the first quarter of 1970 and 1971, compared with a 13 per cent increase between 1969 and 1970.

Violent crimes—murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault—increased by 13 per cent between 1970 and 1971, compared with a 12 per cent hike between 1969 and 1970.

The rate of increase in all crimes was highest—12 per cent from 1970 to 1971—in the six U.S. cities with a million or more population. Inexplicably, the 20 cities with between one million and 500,000 population recorded an average decrease of 4 per cent in reported crime.

Kissinger on 10-Day Mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's national security adviser Henry A. Kissinger leaves Thursday on a 10-day fact-fiding mission that will take him to South Vietnam, Paris and other Far East countries, the White House said today.

On the trip, Kissinger will meet with U.S. representatives and officials and will then report directly to Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers at the Western White House in California on his return around July 12.

Nixon is planning to move his operations to California July 6 for what is expected to be a two-week stay. He has already scheduled talks on the domestic economy there with his chief economic spokesman, Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally and a major discussion of Vietnam and Indochinese affairs seems evident.

Nixon Vetos Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Tuesday votoed a $5.6billion public works bill, saying it "would not even make a real start on delivering on its implied promise" of quickly creating new jobs.

Nixon, in a veto message to the Senate, aimed his fire at a $2-billion section of the measure that would set up pumppriming public works projects in localities with high unemployment rates.

Experience under a similar law in 1962, Nixon wrote, indicated there would be an 18month time lag before the vetoed measure could become fully effective. By then, the h said, "Further stimulation would be unnecessary and inflationary."

He based his time lag estimate on the long delays encountered in planning and organizing construction projects.

Billboard Law Needed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Robert L. Hyder, chief counsel for the Missouri Highway Department, said today he thinks a tougher billboard control law is sifficient reason for calling a special session of the state legislature.

Billboard control measures were introduced in both the House and the Senate during last spring's regular session but neither got anywhere.

John Volpe, secretary of transportation, has written Gov. Warren E. Hearnes that failure to pass a billboard control law meeting federal stands will result in a loss of 10 per cent in federal highway funds for the next five years—possibly as much as $60 million.

Hyder said he is preparing a letter for Hearnes to send Volpe informing him the Missouri legislature now under an annual sessions plan, is actually in recess until next January.

He said he asked Volpe in April if one of the pending bills met federal standards. No anser was received from Washington until after the legislative session had ended, Hyder said.

Hyder blamed Ben Ivey, National Outdoor Advertising Co., of Dallas, for blocking the pending bills. He said Ivey told legislators that the Department of Transportation would not cut off federal funds evene if no bill was passed.

Hearnes expressed little interest in calling an immediate special session to meet the federal mandate. He said he thought Volpe should let the 1972 session handle the situation without penalty to Missouri.

Miami Profit Seen as Demos Come to Town

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — City officials are estimating $12 million to $15 million in business for the city as a result of its selection by the Democrats for their 1972 national convention. They also are checking their security arrangements for the gathering.

The Democratic National Committee announced Tuesday the party will hold its convention in Miami Beach next summer.

"From both the economic and the publicity stand point it will be a stupendous convention," said Edwin Bishop, a member of the city's Tourist Development Authority.

Bishop said it cost $975,000 in goods and services to secure the convention for the city in which the Republican national gathering was held in 1968.

Although the GOP gathering was undisturbed, security is an important issue for the Democrats, still burdened with memories of their stormy 1968 convention in Chicago.

Police Chief Rocky Pomerance said he already had started work on security plans for the convention, including application for a federal grant to send his men to courses in crowd control and mob psychology.

Gravel May Have Violated Senate Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said today Democrats in the Senate should determine whether Sen. Mike Gravel, DAlaska, violated the chamber's rules by releasing the Pentagon papers.

If he did, Scott told newsmen, he should be disciplined. Scott, however, avoided the word censure.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield refused to comment on Gravel's reading of the papers at an impromptu midnight convening of a subcommittee he heads.

Scott arrived on the Senate floor a few minutes after the session began, armed with copies of the Senate's Rule 36 and provisions of the law that grant members of the Congress immunity from prosecution.

Rule 36 bars members of the Senate from releasing confidential communications from the executive branch.

Scott said that in his opinion if Gravel continued to release the papers today it would be a clear violation of Rule 36.

Air Pollution Standards Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Environmental protection Agency, has announced final standards for a 90-per-cent reduction of harmful auto emissions, but eased the test method on which they are based.

Last February he proposed a test procedure that would measure auto engine emissions during and after a "cold start" ignition of an engine that hadn't been run for 12 hours. Studies show highest emissions levels are during the first four minutes after a cold start.

But the auto industry said a cold start alone does not represent actual city driving conditions.

In the final regulations issued Tuesday, Ruckelshaus ordered emission tests to include both cold starts and "hot starts"— those with a warmed-up engine, producing lower emissions. He also ruled the hot starts be given more weight in the total calculation.

An EPA spokesman said the agency agreed with the industry that this would represent more realistically actual driving conditions.

No-Fault Law Okay

BOSTON (AP) — The state Supreme Court ruled today that Massachusetts' first in the nation no-fault automobile insurance law is constitutional.

In a four-page opinion written by Justice Paul C. Reardon, the court ruled against a Sharon man who contended his constitutional right to sue was violated by provisions of the nofault law.

No fault, as applied in Massachusetts, requires out-of-court settlement without regard to fault for claims of bodily injury under $2,000. Additionally, suits for "pain and suffering" are barred if medical expenses do not exceed $500.

No fault in Massachusetts applies only to compulsory bodily injury coverage.

Space Plan Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. space program will continue developing a space shuttle that will take off vertically like a rocket but be able to reenter the earth's atmosphere and land horizontally on a conventional airport runway like an airplane.

The controversial shuttle system received a boost Tuesday when the Senate rejected, 22 to 64, an amendment by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., to cut the $100-million item from the $3.2 billion space budget.

After beating down the Mondale amendment, the Senate then ratified the full $3.2-billion measure by an 82-5 vote.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the shuttles would be reuseable 100 times or more and be able to return satellites or spececraft which have malfunctioned to earth.

Officials estimate the shuttle eventually will cost about $12.8 billion.

Agnew: U.S. Korean Relations More Relaxed

SEOUL (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew conferred for 50 minutes today with South Korean President Chung Hee Park and said the tone of U.S.Korean relations "is a lot more relaxed" than during his negotiations here last August.

Agnew told reporters that discussions with Park, which followed a ceremony in which he presented his credentials for Park's inaugural Thursday and a personal message from President Nixon, were "of a very general nature."

Last Augu Agnew spent more than ix hours in conferences ith Park as the South Kor as presented a lengthy shopping list of military equipment they wanted in return for the withdrawal of 20,00 U.S. troops from this country.

Agnew declined to say if any further cuts in the 43,000-man U.S. force are planned, but he reiterated that his meetings with Korean leaders this time are not designed for hard negotiating. He said he expects to meet later in the week with Premier Kim Chong-pil.

Asked about issues between the two countries, Agnew said these are "more in the nature of administrative details" to be worked out by lower level officials.

Mining Rights Scheme Found

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — An investigation by Nevada authorities could lead to filing nearly 25,000 felony counts against an Oklahoma man involved in a nationwide scheme to claim and sell mining rights on several million acres of Nevada land.

State Atty. Gen. Robert List said his staff is considering the validity of claims submitted by Merle I. Zweifel of Shawnee, Okla., on nearly four million acres of land.

List filed a 16-count criminal indictment against Zweifel Tuesday charging he offered a false instrument for recording.

List said a spot chedk of 24,460 location certificates submitted by Zweifel for recording and seized by state authorities indicated claim markers had not been erected and the required $20 worth of work on the land had not been completed.

The certificates submitted by Zweifel said dredging and sampling had been undertaken, List said, but in some cases "it appeared no one had been on the property for a year or so."

"It is conceivable all 25,000 claims are false," the attorney general said. He added each could be treated as a separate offense.

"We are trying to cut Mr. Zweifel off at the pass and protect the property itself from bad faith mining claims," List told a news conference Tuesday.

Zweifel has advertised throughout the nation to sell half interests in the mining claims he was attempting to file, List said. He said he did not know how many had actually been sold.

List said Zseifel's advertisements—containing the slogan "we fly farther and stake faster"—had appeared in a number of national publications.

He said some of the ads indicated the claims were near land held by Howard Hughes and H. L. Hunt and indicated the land could be used for farming and summer homes, although mining laws allow only the extraction of minerals.

The advertisements offered buyers an opportunity to beat a July 1 deadline when the cost of registering mining claims will jump from $1 per 160-acre claim to $1 per acre, List said.

He said certificates seized through Tuesday were for some 3,913,000 acres — about five per cent of the state — and included land within a Navy bombing range and under federal freeways.

Nixon Announces Turkish Plan to Destroy Opium

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon personally announced today a plan by the Turkish government to eliminate by mid-1972 the production there of opium poppies—estimated to account for 60 per cent of the illegal heroin used in the United States.

Appearing before newsmen at the White House, Nixon said the action by Turkey is "by far the most significant breakthrough that has been achieved in stopping the source of supply of heroin."

The President called the move by Prime Minister Nihat Erim a very courageous and statesman-like action.

Flanking him as he spoke were Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Mielih Esenbel, Turkey's ambassador to the United States.

Esenbel told newsmen that halting poppy production—a legitimate agricultural enterprise in his country for many centuries—certainly will cause "internal problems" and "some economic dislocation."

Rogers said the United States will provide money and technical assistance to help Turkey replace poppy production with other cash crops. He said the amount of such aid is yet to be determined.

1969 Mine Worker's Election Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is expected to check into the United Mine Workers' 1969 election for possible criminal prosecution.

The Senate Labor subcommittee Tuesday said its investigative records, to be turned over to Atty. John N. Mitchell, "developed substantial evidence relating to the alleged misuse of UMW funds by, or in behalf, of UMW officials" in the 1969 election.

Chairman Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., said a letter to Mitchell states Senate investigations disclose "evidence which suggests that numerous individuals have engaged in making false statements, committing perjury, evading income taxes and-or obstructing justice."

The subcommittee plans to conduct final public hearings soon on the election, which saw UMW President W.A. "Tony" Boyle win re-election by defeating Joseph A. Yablonski.

Yablonski was murdered shortly afterwards.

Liberal Demos in Japan Keep Control

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's Liberal Democratic party retained control of the upper house of the Japanese Parliament Sunday, but the Socialist opposition showed unexpected strength.

Unofficial tabulations for 105 of the 126 seats at stake gave 57 to the Liberal Democrats. The other 126 members in the House of Councillors are holdovers, and 72 of them are Liberal Democrats, so the government was assured a majority of at least six.

The Socialists won 32 seats, the Buddhist-allied Komeito 10, the Democratic Socialists 3, the Communist party 2 and one independent was elected.

The upper house is mostly a watchdog body, legislative power being held by the 491-seat lower house. But the election was watched for indications of the government's popularity.

Only about 60 per cent of the 71.6 million eligible voters went to the polls, and observers felt the poor turnout worked against the government party.

Sato, confident of victory, went to the mountain resort of Karuizawa to work on a new Cabinet lineup. The present Cabinet has been in office since January 1970.

Soviet Jews to Labor Camp

MOSCOW (AP) — Nine more Soviet Jews were sentenced to labor camp terms ranging from one to five years today for a part in the Leningrad hijack plot or for stealing a copying machine so they could distribute anti-Soviet propaganda, Jewish sources reported.

The sentences raised to 34 the number of persons, mostly Jews, who have been convicted on charges growing out of the plot to escape to Israel in a hijacked Soviet airliner in June 1970. Police arrested 12 of the plotters as they were about to board the plane in Leningrad.

The Moldavian Supreme Court in Kishinev convicted the nine Jews today and gave the stiffest sentence—five years—to David Chernoglaz, 32.

Hillel Shur, a 35-year-old engineer who refused to testify for the first four days of the trial and reportedly went on a hunger strike, got two years instead of the three asked by the prosecutor.

'Boo Fans' Cheer

It starts deep in the throat, works its way up over the tongue and explodes through the teeth. It is a long, lusty "booooo" and it is the trademark of the Philadelphia fan.

Phillie fans boo so much that there have been times the Liberty Bell and Star Spangled Banner were considered in danger next. But they pulled a switch on Tuesday night and, believe it or not, they cheered.

Oh, it wasn't a Phillie they cheered, of course. It was Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, whose 3-0 13-strikeout shutout included the 1,000th strikeout of his career.

Seaver's four-hitter enabled the Mets to chop one game off Pittsburgh's National League East lead as the Pirates bowed to St. Louis 8-3. Elsewhere in the NL, Cincinnati bombed Montreal 14-0, Chicago nipped Los Angeles 3-2, Atlanta edged Houston 5-4 and San Francisco downed San Diego 6-4.

In the American League, New York ripped Cleveland 9-2, Milwaukee topped Chicago 5-2, Boston downed Washington 6-2, Baltimore walloped Detroit 15-6 after the Tigers had won a game suspended Monday night 9-4, Kansas City edged California 2-1 and Minnesota trimmed Oakland 5-3.

When Seaver fanned Willie Montanez leading off the seventh inning for his 1,000th career strikeout, the scoreboard flashed the news to fans in Veteran's Stadium. The crowd of 22,017 gave Seaver a standing ovation that the right-hander admitted was "a bit of a surprise."

Seaver responded by fanning the next two batters as well as two more in the eighth, running his career total to 1,004.

Meanwhile, the Cardinals gave the Mets a lift by knocking off the Pirates.

Lou Brock and Joe Torre smacked St. Louis homers and pitcher Reggie Cleveland drove in three runs with a baseloaded double to pace a sevenrun third inning that put the Cards in control.

Richie Hebner homered for Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati looked more like the Big Red Machine, unloading a 23-hit attack to wallop Montreal. Tommy Helms led the Reds' attack with four hits. Buddy Bradford and Pete Rose each homered with Bradford driving in four runs and Johnny Bench delivering three.

Ron Santo drove in two runs including Chicago's game-winner with an eighth inning sacrifice fly that beat Los Angeles.

The Dodgers had just tied the game with a run in the eighth when Paul Popovich and Billy Williams opened the bottom half of the inning with consecutive singles, bringing up Santo, who was hitless for the day.

"I was struggling all day," said Santo, "but I was determined to get a good piece of the ball for at least a long fly."

Zoilo Versailles doubled home two runs, capping a three-run first inning and then Oscar Brown singled two more home in the fifth as Atlanta got by Houston.

Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson homered for the Astros.

San Francisco wiped out an early 3-0 San Diego lead with rookie Chris Speier driving in two runs with a triple and touching off the tie-breaking rally with a single.

Willie Mays had his 14th homer of the year and No. 642 of his career for the Giants while Nate Colbert, Ed Spiezio and Clarence Gaston all homered for the Padres.

HUNTERS will have a nine-day season Nov. 13-21 in 1971, with 10 management units arranged along highways so the hunters will know what unit they are hunting. Any deer and bucks—only seasons will vary somewhat between the units. (Department of Conservation photo)

Cards End Slump

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Wait and be quick; that's the name of the game," said Joe Torre, the major leagues' leading hitter and a rejuvenated player at age 30.

Torre, a catcher converted to third base, waited Tuesday night for a Luke Walker fast ball and swatted it over the left field wall in helping the St. Louis Cardinals conquer the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-3.

Torre's third home run in as many games came during a seven-run Cardinal third inning also featuring Lou Brock's lead off circuit clout.

The uprising also included winning pitcher Reggie Cleveland's three-run double off Walker (3-7) and a run-scoring double by Brock to cap the assault.

Cleveland (7-7) breezed to the finish with an eight-hitter marred only by Richie Hebner's 11th home run and two sacrifice flies by Al Oliver.

"You go through phases," said Torre, a slimmed-down 11season major leaguer whose secret to a .372 batting mark is seeing the ball.

"Just keeping a still head has a lot to do with it, I guess, and not jumping at the ball. The better you see the ball and the longer you can wait to swing the better your chances to hit.

"You just have to be lucky and try to stay away from that extended slump. Not being ired; that goes a long way toward it."

Walker fanned Jose Cardenal for a second out following the Torre blast but loaded the bases by issuing bases on balls to Jose Cruz and Dal Maxvill and yielding a single to Jerry McNertney.

Cleveland then doubled down the right field line to score three runs, and Brock's second hit of the inning scored the 23year-old Cardinal right-hander to make it 8-1.

"I guess the big thing is don't make bad pitches when they can hurt you," said Cleveland, whose five strikeouts included two of Willie Stargell.

The victory snapped a fivegame losing spell for the Cardinals, who open a six-game trip Thursday at San Francisco.

Pittsburgh, its National League East Division lead over the New York Mets trimmed to three games, is scheduled to open a two-game series tonight against the Mets in Shea Stadium.

Cardinals Call Cruz

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Outfielder Jose Cruz has been recalled to the St. Louis Cardinals from the team's triple A American Association club, General Manager Bing Devine announced today.

To make room for the 22-year-old Cruz, the Cardinals removed infielder Dick Schofield from their 25-man list. Disposition of Schofield's contract has not been determined.

Cruz joined the Redbirds late in the 1970 season and hit .353 in six games. This year at Tulsa he's hitting .328 with 50 runs batted in, eight triples and 15 home runs.

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians sent infielder Lou Camilli to its Wichita farm team in the American Association Sunday.

Camilli's place on the roster will be taken by pitcher Rick Austin, who spent the weekend on military drills in Washington, D.C.

The Darker Side

ST. LOUIS — Considering the vast amount of people who use the August A. Busch Memorial Wildlife Area near here every year, the number who violate regulations is small.

But it's non-the-less discouraging for conservation agents who sometimes see human behavior at its worst. The area opening this year, left Gordon Jarvis, conservation agent for St. Louis County, shaking his head.

"We held a road check," he says. "One lady apprehended for having bass under the size limit complained of discrimination. She felt that all the cars being checked were not being checked as thoroughly as she had been.

"One man refused inspection. I had asked him whether he had any fish and he had said that he caught some but that they were too small and he had turned them back. "His daughter was in the car. I asked her if she had had a good time. She said she had and held up two undersize bass that had been in a cooler."

Proverb says: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he his old he will not depart from it."

BENTON — Jeff Jackson provided the hitting power and Kenny Urhahn the pitching as Kelly remained undefeated in Tri-County Babe Ruth baseball play by beating Delta Tuesday night 5-1.

Urhahn struck out six Delta Batters and gave up only five hits. He won his fourth game this season against no losses.

Jackson hit two doubles and a home run. Hee batted in two runs. Bob Jackson also batted in two runs.

Crowden took the loss for Delta. It could put nothing together against the Kelly nine.

Kelly scored the first run in the first and led, 1-0, going into the fourth when Delta tied the score.

The tie lasted until Kelly came to bat again in the inning. Kelly sent three runners across the plate and added one more in the fifth to win.

Fish Kills Reported

WARRENSBURG — Dr. John Belshe of Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg has a group studying the effects of pollution on area creeks, particularly near Warrensburg city sewage treatment plants, this summer.

It didn't take long to find out.

Student Charles Callaway found a fish kill below the west side treatment plant in mid-June which had killed about five miles of the east fork of Postoak Creek.

"The plant is exuding more than 15 parts per million of ammonia," says Frank Ryck, water quality biologist for the Department of Conservation. "Apparently someone is dumping a large quantity of ammonia into a sewer and it is passing through the plant into the stream."

An estimated 10,000 fish were killed by the ammonia. The creek virtually was sterilized in the kill area. Even sludge worms which are highly tolerant of pollution died.

A second western Missouri fish kill started June 13 in Cooper County on Petite Saline Creek and affected some five miles of the creek. Ryck estimates 12,000 fish died.

Cause of the kill was oxygen depletion caused when organic material which had built up from feedlot and other rural drainage was flushed downstream by a rain, then began to decay.

Oxygen levels dropped to .2 parts per million. Three to four parts per million is about the minimum to support fish life. Species killed included carp, buffalo, crappie, sunfish and bullheads.

Deer Season Set

JEFFERSON CITY--Missouri deer hunters will have a 1971 season slightly more restrictive than the record-setting 1970 season. The Conservation Commission has set a nine-day season from Nov. 13 through Nov. 21. In 1970, hunters claimed a record 28,290 deer during a 10-day season.

Once again, there will be a system of management units and hunters in northeast Missouri will benefit from the idea.

Until the 1970 season, the area north of the Missouri River alternated any-deer and bucks-only seasons. Normally, the 1971 season would have been bucks-only in north Missouri.

But northeast Missouri continues to have a good deer population, so there will be two days of any-deer hunting in that unit, giving hunters additional opportunity.

The season is broken down this way: Units 7, 8 and 9 will be any-deer from Nov. 13 through Nov. 16 and bucks-only the rest of the season.

Units 3, 5 and 6 will be any-deer on Nov. 13 and Nov. 14 and bucks-only the rest of the season. Units 1, 2, 4 and 10 will be bucks-only the entire season. Bucks must have a forked antler to be legal.

The archery deer season will be identical with that of the past several years, running from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31, with deer of either sex legal statewide.

Hours are 5:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Central Standard Time from Oct. 1-Nov. 12 and from 6:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. from Nov. 13-Dec. 31.

One change from the 1970 season is in the method of checking deer. This year, the regulation reads that all successful hunters during the fire-arm season must immediately tag their deer and submit it at a check station in the county where taken or in an adjacent county on the day it is taken. Before and after the firearms season, archers must check deer within 24 hours with an agent of the Conservation Commission.

There will be several special and managed hunts on refuge and other wildlife areas which will be announced by the Commission in July.

Deer Management Units are defined as follows:

Unit 1
West of U.S. Hwy. 69 from Missouri River to Iowa line.

Unit 2
East of U.S. Hwy. 69; North of Interstate Hwy. 70; and West of U.S. Hwy. 63.

Unit 6

Sikeston Baseball Players Travel

Sikeston's Don Miller, David Hackney, and Mark Adams, 1971 graduates of Sikeston high school and starters on the school's baseball team, are carrying out their baseball activities this summer by participating in the Cape Girardeau American Legion program.

These three, along with members of the Cape Girardeau Central high school team and two diamond men from the Cape College ranks, make up the Cape American Legion squad. The team sports an 8-5 record. John Wallaly and Larry Kitchen manage the team which plays all their home games in Cape Girardeau's Capaha Park.

Sikeston dropped its American Legion team this year with the loss of its sponsor, Potlatch and American Legion. The growing cost of supporting and maintaining the Sikeston American Legion club led to its abandonment.

Miller handles much of the pitching for the Cape Legion team, and sports a 2-1 record for the season. Included in his wins are two shutouts. He worked the mound in the team's 4-0 blanking of Murphysboro earlier in the year. In picking up the win Miller fanned 23 in the nine inning contest. For his second triumph of the season he chalked up a 3-0 shutout over the Legion team from Paris, Tenn. Miller's first loss came last weekend as the Cape American Legion dropped a double header to Blytheville. He is awaiting word from New Mexico State for a possible scholarship on the school's baseball team.

Of the five games lost this season by the Cape Legion team, three have come at the hands of Blytheville. The other two losses have come from Carbondale and from the Cape Capahas, an independent ball team from Cape Girardeau.

Hackney is a regular in the outfield for the Cape team and sports a good batting average near the .300 mark. He will attend William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., this fall.

The Cape American Legion team has one of the better pitching staffs in the area with five good hurlers. Joining Miller on the mound are Cape Central's Mark Hogan, a left handed hurler who defeated the Sikeston high school Bulldogs twice this year. Gene Schlick and Randy Johnson are two other hurlers from the Central unit. Both will be around next year as seniors when the Tigers begin their baseball season next spring.

Gaylen McSpadden, a sophomore at SEMO State, rounds out the talent heavy pitching staff for the Cape Legion squad. McSpadden, along with catcher John Wright, are the two players representing SEMO state in the Legion's lineup.

The Cape American Legion squads host Murphysboro tonight in a game scheduled at Capaha Park.

Rodeo Week

DENVER, – The upcoming Fourth of July weekend will be the most grueling part of the professional rodeo season, the Rodeo Cowboys Association said here today.

More rodeos are scheduled around the Fourth than at any other time of the year, and prize money runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

There are 25 association - sanctioned rodeos across the country beginning Wednesday. From Madison Square Garden in New York City to Travis Air Force Base, Calif., cowboys will compete in as many rodeos as possible. Some may enter six or eight in a five -day span.

They will arrive in towns shortly before competition, pinch-faced and drawn from lack of sleep. Immediately after they ride they will jump into planes or cars and head for other rodeos.

Some cowboys may try to compete in Greeley, Colo., Cody, Wyo., Red Lodge and Livingston, Mont., Belle Fourche and Mobridge, S. Dak., and perhaps St. Paul, Ore.

By next Monday the men leading in each event for world championship titles may have dropped behind or lengthened their leads. The titles are awarded at the end of each season on the basis of prize money.

The winningest cowboy so far this year is Phil Lyne, George West, Tex., who has gathered $21,901 in bareback, saddle bronc, bull riding, calf roping and steer wrestling. The top money -winner for the past five years, Larry Mahan, Brooks, Ore., is trying to catch Lyne.

Collins' Self and Launius each blasted four of the winner's 21 hits. Teammate Campbell added three hits. Self belted a double and Harper a triple for Collin's extra base knocks.

Rotary collected its three runs in the third inning with one swing of the bat. Rotary's Longstreet belted a three run shot in the inning, sending in teammates Beach and Throop to score. Both had reached base on singles. Throop connected for three hits of the team's 14 hits. Nelson, Noles, and Kyle each added two safeties.

Launius picked up the win for the Construction men. King was the losing hurler for Rotary.

Six extra base hits and a final seven-run last inning boosted Malone and Hyde squad into its 11-4 victory over the Sikeston Standard. The Standard's four runs in the fourth knotted the score at 4-4, but it was M & H's seven run last inning that settled the dispute.

WHEN ALL is said and done, the future of bass fishing in Missouri may depend on what the individual angler does with his catch. If he keeps only what he really wants, the chances are the state will continue to have outstanding bass fishing. (Department of Conservation photo)

Length Limit Proposed On Bass at Wappapello

JEFFERSON CITY— The problems of providing good bass fishing in the waters of Missouri is no easy thing to solve.

"We're learning more all the time," says Chuck Purkett, chief of Fisheries Division for the Department of Conservation.

In recent years, new lakes owned by the Department of Conservation have had carefully determined length limits imposed, subject to last minute fish population checks by biologists.

"Our Commission has been very good about letting us wait until the last minute," Purkett says. "It has worked very well."

Limits aren't always the answer. There has been some call for a length limit on Lake Wappapello--but every indication is that there is no need for one now. "If anything," says Jim Fry, assistant Fisheries Division chief for the Department, "the lake is underfished."

That isn't the case on other big impoundments where fishing pressure increased yearly. St. Louis outboard motor dealer Don Brehm is one of a number of anglers in Missouri becoming worried about the future of bass fishing in Missouri.

"If the average angler would just say, 'From now on the only bass I keep I eat; the neighbors don't get any more," Brehm says. "Then our problem would be on the way to solution."

"It all comes back to the fact," says Purkett, "that we need this many four inch bass to make this many five inch bass to make this many six inch bass clear up to the top. Any time you interfere with that pyramid and start chopping it off at the top or the bottom, you get in trouble."

The bass population of a lake can be likened to a pyramid, with many small bass on the bottom and relatively few big bass on the top. "Chop off the top of the pyramid," says biologist Joe Dillard, "and you'll still have a pyramid--only the bass at the top will be smaller."

Fisheries personnel doubt that Missouri's big lakes can be overfished to the point that Nature can't supply adequate numbers of young bass to the lake.

But size of these bass is something else. "You can skim off the good, catchable bass," Dillard says. "And what is left are the small bass that you don't care about keeping. What you're upsetting is not the reproduction, but the balance of the lake."

A length limit is not a cure-all. It does nothing to protect the bass above the length limit. "If you fish a lake so that all the bass over, say, 12 inches are caught," says Fry, "you get such a slug of 11.9 inch bass that they actually can limit their own growth and reproduction." In extreme cases this is the one time when reproduction may become a problem; not from a lack of bass but from too many.

Missouri has not as yet experienced the boom in fishing tournaments. There have been several tournaments in the "Fish Bowl" which includes Table Rock, Taneycomo, Bull Shoals and Lake Norfork, but the pressure is nothing compared to what it is on some big southern impoundments.

"The big problem under the present system of keeping all bass or all big bass," says Dillard, "is that pro anglers or good amateurs may not only upset the lake balance, but also take those fish out so that old Joe Blow willnever have the chance to catch them. Now, the average angler may never catch that big one, but he knows it's there. That's what keeps him coming back.

"I'd think dock owners could increase their business by promoting the return of fish. Why, if I was a dock owner and a bunch of fishermen pulled in and said, 'We just caught two tons of fish and put 1,900 pounds of them back,' I'd have that fact in every newspaper I could get it in."

Good fishing in Missouri has been a way of life. Now, good fishermen are reaching that stage. Are the two compatible? If Missouri bass fishermen begin to think quality rather than meat, they are.

"The big hurdle," says Brehm, "is putting back that first big fish. From then on it's all downhill...or uphill, depending on whether you are the fisherman or the bass."

Twins Topple Blue

If you don't succeed the first time, try, try again—even against Vida Blue.

That's what the Minnesota Twins and rookie hurler Ray Corbin were forced to do Tuesday night, and this time they succeeded.

Given a third chance against this season's pitching sensation the Twins beat the Oakland A's and Blue 5-3, and all but ruined Blue's chances of winning 20 games before the All Star game.

In other American League games, Detroit beat Baltimore 9-4 in 15 innings in the completion of their Monday night suspended game and then Baltimore walloped the Tigers 15-6 in the regular contest; Boston tripped Washington 6-2; Milwaukee dipped the Chicago White Sox 5-2, the New York Yankees blasted Cleveland 9-2 in the afternoon, and Kansas City nudged California 2-1.

In the National League, St. Louis bombed Pittsburgh 8-3, San Francisco slipped by San Diego 6-4, the New York Mets blanked Philadelphia 3-0, Atlanta edged Houston 5-4, Cincinnati crushed Montreal 14-0, and, in the afternoon, the Chicago Cubs trimmed Los Angeles 3-2.

Blue, 16-3, had allowed the Twins only three runs and 12 hits and struck out 22 in beating them twice this season, the second time on national television last Monday when Corbin took the 3-2 loss. But the Twins weren't about to give in, and neither was young Corbin, 5-5.

They spotted the A's Dave Duncan's two-run homer in the second and then came from behind to end Blue's six-game winning streak with his first loss since May 28 and his first ever in the Oakland Coliseum after 10 victories.

And with only time for three more starts Blue, 16-3, won't be winning 20 games by All Star time July 13—unless he works on short rest or relieves.

Detroit won the suspended game with two out in the 15th when Mickey Stanley broke the deadlock with a single, and the Tigers added four more on a bases loaded walk and singles by Norm Cash and Tony Taylor.

Brooks Robinson had capped a four-run ninth inning for Baltimore with a three-run homer with two out that sent the game into extra innings Monday night.

The Orioles did not wait that long in the regular game, and neither did Robinson, who hit another three-run shot in the third after Andy Etchebarren hit one with two on in the second as Baltimore broke a four game losing streak. Jim Northrup drove in four runs with two homers for the Tigers.

The red-hot Red Sox made it five victories in a row as reserves Bob Montgomery and John Kennedy, filling in for injured regulars, each drove in two runs during a five-run second inning off Washington rookie Pete Broberg, 0-2. Kennedy's RBI came on a homer.

Jim Lonborg, 3-3, got the victory for working into the eighth inning before Sparky Lyle relieved.

Milwaukee, another streaking club, won for the ninth time in 11 starts behind rookie Jim Slaton, 3-1, who scattered eight hits before Ken Sanders got the last out for him. The only Chicago runs off him were homers by Walt Williams and Bill Melton.

The Brewers wrapped up the triumph with four runs in the fourth, two on Andy Kosco's triple.

Felipe Alou doubled in each of the first three innings—one short of the major league record for one game—driving in three runs and scoring three for the Yankees, who had scored only four times while losing their last four games. Steve Kline, 7-6, went the distance for the victory.

Amos Otis settled a duel between teammate Mike Hedlund and California's Tom Murphy with his 12th homer leading off the ninth. It was only the third of four hits off Murphy, while Hedlund gave only five hits.

House Passes Agriculture Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House rebuffed President Nixon, its own Leaders and the Queen of England Wednesday as it passed and sent to the Senate a $12.4 billion appropriation bill for the Agriculture Department and other agencies.

It approved $500 million for water and sewer grants not requested by the President and cut—over its leaders' opposition—maximum price support payments for each of three major crops on any farm from $55,000 to $20,000.

The cut in price support payments came after the House was told the Queen of England has a financial interest in a Mississippi farm which received $1.54 million in subsidy payments in the last two years.

The rewritten measure was sent to the Senate by voice vote.

The House rejected amendments that would have cut off food stamps from families of strikers and would have blocked financing of stream channelization projects by the Soil Conservation Service.

And it approved without debate an amendment to cut off farm subsidy payments to any farmer who knowingly allows marijuana or other drug-producing plants to be grown on his land. That amendment was authored by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.

Patrol for Safe Traffic

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — In 1931 the Missouri Bankers' association and the Automobile club of Missouri were successful in gaining legislative approval of a state traffic control force.

It took seven years to overcome opposition of the Missouri sheriffs and organized labor. The man who guided the bill through the legislature, former Rep. Ed Duensing, D-Lafayette county, died earlier this year.

Labor foresaw a ready made strikebreatking force and the sheriffs believed the state patrol would grab away some of their coveted authority.

In its 40-year history the patrol has barely altered its original intent: the safe movement of traffic. It still cannot obtain a search warrant and it is therefore a highly trained and sophisticated state police force confined to the highways except when the sheriffs ask help in criminal cases.

The Highway Patrol now has cooperative dealings with law enforcement agencies throughout the state and places considerable emphasis and time teaching expertise to its own men and trying to help upgrade law enforcement around the state.

The Missouri Highway Patrol Law Enforcement Academy, established in Rolla in 1959 and recently moved to newly constructed quarters in Jefferson City, has trained 4,273 municipal officers and sheriffs' officers.

The first class of recruits to be trained in the $2.6 million facility began May 2 and will complete its work in mid-October. The 39 men will receive more training and classroom hours than any previous class.

The complex consists of three buildings:

A three story dormitory capable of housing 250 recruits when completed, but finished for only 150. It has recreational facilities and requires minimal maintenance on the part of recruits.

An administrative building where classes are held, including crime detection laboratories where fingerprinting and breathalizer tests can be conducted and a crime re-enactment classroom where props can be arranged to simulate crime scenes.

A physical training building is equipped with gymnasium, fullsized basketball court, 10station firing range for pistols and small caliber rifles, as well as a swimming pool where lifesaving, scuba diving and underwater search techniques are demonstrated.

When trainees have completed their 24 weeks of the academy they will be assigned to various troops for seven weeks then return for two more weeks of classroom work to sort out all the problems they encountered.

The first class of 54 Highway Patrolmen in 1931 was chosen from 5,000 applicants and it took several years to screen enough qualified applicants to bring the force up to the 115 members the legislature authorized at first.

Today the patrol selects about one recruit from every 25 applicants it has. The 39 men trained at the academy will be enough to keep the force at its authorized limit of 750 members.

In years past turnover in the patrol has kept down to about 3 per cent a year. Now it is somewhere around 5 per cent due mainly to the increased number qualifying for the retirement plan. Some are lured away by private industry offering attractive salaries for qualified law enforcement personnel.

The failure of the general assembly to enact a $100 a month salary increase bill prompted speculation that some members might resign in protest. Lt. William Scearce, training officer, said there were disgruntled men and threats but "there's always a lot more talk than action."

There is a certain team spirit derived from the reputation the Highway Patrol enjoys in and out of the state. It is non-political, difficult to gain admittance to and perpetually demanding thereafter, patrol officers said.

Recruits are in training five days a week. During their 24 weeks they will spend 492 hours in the patrol classroom, 276 in college classes at Central Missouri State college, in Warrensburg, 108 doing calisthenics, 39 hours in fieldwork, 126 with firearms and defensive tactics and six hours in tours.

The 492 hours in the patrol classroom will be spent learning normal police work. This will include 54 hours of constitutional aspects of criminal justice, 54 hours of criminology, 54 hours of police organization and management and for the first time, 36 hours of race and ethnic relations.

Physical training is important not only because physical fitness is part of the image of a patrolman but because the spirit of a recruit is believed to reveal itself more accurately in the gymnasium than anywhere else in his training.

It also instills a virtue of the patrol for a lifelong routine of physical conditioning, officers said.

Failure to meet the weight requirement will result in a loss of one day's leave for each five pounds a patrol member is over the maximum weight for his height.

And leave days will be cancelled for each month's violation "until the officer complies," the rules say.

"Any member who is overweight at the time he reaches his fifty-fourth birthday will not be considered for extension of service with the department," the rules provide.

Ideally a patrolman would be able to talk his way out of every situation. It is for this reason that during training, recruits receive substantial training in human psychology.

Failing to talk his way out of a situation, the trooper resorts to defensive tactics designed to give him an upper hand in any situation.Men from law enforcement agencies throughout the state are also visiting the academy for two and three week stays for specialty training.

The purpose of the cadet patrol is to "develop favorable attitudes toward law enforcement and to help disseminate these attitudes throughout the community."

Lemon Confections Easy to Make

By JUDY GAZETTE

Frozen lemon confections both easy to make and light on the constitution, are in the spotlight this week. The lemon angel pie comes to us courtesy of the National Sugar Council and the lemon freeze might still be found in an old magazine, for it was developed in the Borden kitc hens.

Having tried them both, I can tell you there's no comparing, for the angel pie is naturally elegant with its meringue crust, and the freeze is more subtle in appearance and taste.

If you're opposed to the amount of whipped cream called for, I can't for the life of me see why one of the modern, non-dairy toppings (such as Cool-Whip) wouldn't do a marvelous job of filling the angel pie. Tips: Remember to grease your pie plate generously before piling on the meringue. Make a high wall for the shell and bake it the full one hour, if possible. You'll be proud of the results!

ANGEL PIE
Basic Meringue Shell

3 egg whites, at room temperature
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup sugar

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar, salt and vanilla until foamy. Continuously beat in sugar, about 1 tablespoon at a time, at a slow speed. Continue beating until very stiff and glossy. Spread over bottom and side of well greased 9-inch pie plate; push up side to make high rim. Bake at 250 F for 1 hour or until dry and slightly browned. Cool.

Filling
3 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
½ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups heavy cream
1/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

In top of double boiler, beat egg yolks until well blended and gradually beat in ¾ cup sugar. Add lemon juice, rind and salt; mix well. Cook over simmering water, stirring almost constantly, until thickened, about 10 minutes. Remove from water and chill in refrigerator.

Combine cream with 1/3 cup sugar and vanilla in chilled bowl. Beat until thick enough to form soft peaks. Spread about 1/3 of whipped cream over bottom of cooled meringue shell and drizzle with 1/3 of cooled lemon mixture. Repeat layering with another 1/3 of cream and lemon mixture, then with remaining third. Freeze several hours or overnight. Makes 8 servings.

LEMON FREEZE
½ cup corn flake crumbs
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 1/3 cups (15 oz. can) sweetened condensed milk
1/3 cup reconstituted lemon juice
2 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons sugar

Combine corn flake crumbs, the 2 tablespoons sugar and butter in ice cube tray; mix well. Reserve 2 tablespoons of crumbs mixture for topping. With back of tablespoon press remainder evenly and firmly in bottom of ice tray. Chill.

In medium size mixing bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice; stir until thickened. Add egg yolks; mix well.

Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in the 3 tablespoons sugar and continue beating until egg whites are stiff, but not dry; gently fold into condensed milk mixture. Spread evenly over crumbs crust; sprinkle with reserved crumbs mixture.

Place on bottom of the freezer compartment of refrigerator, taking care to allow air circulation around the tray to insure freezing. Freeze 6 to 8 hours or until firm. Cut into bars to serve.

YIELD: 8 servings.

Set Aside Pay After July 1

NEW MADRID— New Madrid County farmers who certify performance of program provisions now can expect to receive set-aside payments shortly after July 1 according to Larry Blunt, County Executive Director of the New Madrid County ASCS Office.

"We have been receiving some inquiries about when the set-aside payment will be made," he said. "My best estimate is that payments will be received by this office and mailed to the farmers approximately 2 weeks following their final certification."

He pointed out that a producer cannot receive payments until after he has come in to the county ASCS Office, officially designated his set-aside acreage and certified compliance with other farm program provisions. The final date for certification is July 15.

Morrison Predicts Increase in Teacher Strikes for 1971-72

DETROIT (AP) — The president-elect of the National Education Association predicts that teacher strikes will increase in the 1971-72 school year.

And he beli eves that the NEA's 109th annual convention delegates will stand firm against public aid to private schools.

Donald E. Morrison, San Diego, Calif., social science teacher, made his observations Sunday in an interview, five days before he will assume leadership of the 1.1 millionmember teacher organization.

"I look for more strikes and they will come in areas that will surprise a lot of people," he said when asked about the possibility of such action.

He said strikes would not necessarily be over wages but "over reluctance of school boards to negotiate and reluctance to give teachers a voice in decision making."

He said that the NEA modified its position in 1965 to support the elementary-secondary school act which permitted private schools to participate in some federal programs. But in 1970 at San Francisco the delegates, overriding the leadership, voted to oppose all aid to private schools and called for a halt in their participation in existing programs.

"I don't think it will be changed at this convention," he said.

Talking about federal assistance to private colleges, Morrison said, "I personally support complete separation at all levels-private funds supporting private schools."

Insofar as President Nixon's statements supporting assistance that will help private schools survive, Morrison said:

"For the President of the United States to talk about public funds to private schools and the voucher system is the most irresponsible action ever witnesses in this country."

Three Chaffee Residents Hurt

A two-car accident on highway 77 in Cape Girardeau county was reported to the highway patrol yesterday when a 1964 Dodge driven by Terry Deniece Powers, 25, Chaffee, struck a car driven by Myrtie Schoen, 56, Chaffee.

The Schoen car was parked on the east side of highway 77 when the Powers car went out of control, left the road and struck the parked car.

Chickens Lay Egg

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Egg production in Missouri during May declined two per cent from the comparable month in 1970, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service has reported. May, 1971 production totaled 131 million eggs.

The total for the first five months of 1970, however, was 12 per cent ahead of the like period a year earlier, the service said.

The state's commercial hatcheries produced 1,536,000 broiler chicks during May, seven per cent less than in the comparable month last year. For the first five months of 1971, broiler chick production ran 19 per cent behind the rate of the previous year.

Richard Emanuel, 19, Charleston, was arrested for careless and imprudent driving, and being involved in an accident. Emanuel was accused of driving into Charleston about 6:30 a.m. Sunday and told police officers that he had apparently dozed off and struck a concrete light standard and a city limits sign, damaging both.

Tax Ban Asked

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, said Tuesday he will launch an initiative campaign July 15 for a statutory ban on tax increases unless approved by the voters affected.

Blackwell said the campaign would be co-ordinated with his own campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1972.

The initiative campaign calls for the proposed constitutional change to be voted on in the general election in November next year, from which Blackwell hopes to emerge as governor-elect of Missouri.

The amendment would bar any state or local tax increase from becoming effective unless the people affected approve it at an election.

Weapons Go On To Pakistan

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official "hold" on any U.S. weapons being sent to Pakistan may not stop more shipments of military hardware to that nation.

Christopher Van Hollen, deputy assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs, Monday told a Senate subcommittee chaired by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that the shipments are not contradictory to stated U.S. policy.

There is "no attempt to mislead the public or Congress," Van Hollen said, "although I recognize the language in some statements could have been more precise."

Van Hollen said in addition to three ships which recently sailed from New York laden with spare parts for military hardware in Pakistan, it is "likely that additional items could be shipped. He insisted these involved equipment turned over to Pakistan before the state department decided to suspend any further shipments when fighting broke out in East Pakistan March 25.

Kennedy criticized the department for previous statements saying nothing was "in the pipeline" in the way of arms shipments to Pakistan.

Mr. Paul Bumbarger
Editor,
Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Paul:

"One of the most joyous occasions that Dorothy and I have had the pleasure of experiencing was the 30-year reunion of the Sikeston teachers held on June 19.

Visiting with our friends and former associates spoke for itself, but the fact that the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce and other community leaders helped to make our celebration memorable deserves recognition. We were proud that such former students as Clem Beal conducted a tour for us. We were also grateful that many of our students, now married and highly successful, appeared at the reception to welcome us.

All of us were amazed at the tremendous progress which has been made at Sikeston. A lot of this has been spearheaded by former Sikeston students we were privileged to teach. We parted from the reunion and Sikeston swelled with pride that the city there and its people were a happy segment of our lives."

Sincerely,
William C. Hopkins

The Standard
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Editor:

Late last April, A.E. Payne, Dexter, Mo., wrote me a note saying he had read something I had written, printed in the Sikeston STANDARD. He sent me a nine - page manuscript he had written some months before, of which he had had copies made. It was titled "The Man Animal" Presumably, he sent one to you, also. He had been prompted, he added (to send a copy to me) by what I had written. Please, would you send me a tear sheet -- if one is still available?

In January, I sent -- not only to your newspaper, but to toehrs -- mimeograph copies of some of my many reading essays -- a project I've been writing for a long time, hoping to interest a few newspapers in running them as a weekly feature. My purpose: to alert the average, non -reading home to the importance of reading in the home. In February, March and April, I sent other mimeographs. Doubtless it was from one of those following the initial project of the essays from which you selected an item which held appeal to your editorial judgment.

Over the year-- because I read -- I've sent many letters to our two local newspapers -- some of which are printed, others of which are not. I enclose a tear sheet of my last letter -- one which I had doubted would be printed.

Sincerely,
Sarah Shoner(Miss)

P.S. The United Sttes, I consider, is at a cru cial point in its history. But were we a reading nation, I doubt we would have been as gullible as we have been resulting in our present position of disunity. Do you?

DEFENDING EARTH PROVES COSTLY

To The Editor:

I have just become aware of a bleak, ominous fact. In 1966 the Sierra Club ran a full -page advertisement in the New York Times, alerting the public to the impending danger of a dam being built in the Grand Canyon. It won. The dam was not built. Until now, the efforts of this conservation group had not troubled the big power interests. Now, it has.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall — who, as I recall, had a relative who was interested in the proposed dam — and President Johnson brought the fact to the attention of the IRS — the effective U.S. agency which continually seeks new means of taxation. Like a ghoul, it pounded upon this, asserting it was in the nature of political lobbying. With other conservation groups, the Sierra Club was removed from the tax - exempt status. This has resulted in tough going for conservation. But, as Davie Brower, president of theFriends of The Earth, said, "better work for very little money than the alternative, which is very little earth."

But here is the irony: the lobbies of powerful interests remain on the tax exempt roll, since, the IRS claims, lobbying is part of their business expenses! I maintain that every individual must act as a small conservation member in his own right — if he is to save the earth. One thing he can do is to protest this injustice directed against the conservation groups which have done so much!

In a letter "To the Editor" a reader wrote, ". . .I'm for saving the environment if it means leaving us all jobless and having technology come to complete halt. On the other hand, I don't believe that this is the unavoidable consequence of conservation efforts.

"The problem is that society's interests and conservationists' interests aren't compatible now, but society could turn to working with conservation efforts by, for instance, designing and building a public transportation system that people would find attractive and efficient.

"The money, labor force and technology would be available if we discontinued projects like the SST, sending a man to the moon, and fighting the war in Vietnam, all of which are unsound for other than just ecological reasons.

"Another waste of energy is the automobile. Imagine a 200-pound man driving a two-ton car two blocks to the drugstore . . . With a bit of individual and collective common sense, society would not face the problems we do . . . concerning the fight against pollution." —SARAH SHONER, 224 Taylor.

Arms Uncovered by British in Belfast

IRELAND (AP)—One of the biggest arms caches ever found by British troops in Northern Ireland was uncovered early Tuesday ina raid on a Belfast warehouse.

"From the items uncovered, we can only surmise that the building was used as a bombmaking factory," a senior army officer said.

The troops found 2,000 feet of fuse wire, 200 gallons of acid, 14 booby traps, two walkie-talkie radios, 130 detonators, three grenades, four gelignite bombs, one pistol, a rifle, more than 300 rounds of ammunition, machine-gun parts and an assortment of fuses, flares and time switches.

British troops also discovered an illegal arms depot in Belfast during a house-to-house search on Saturday.

Government May Aid Religious Institutions, Burger Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has shelved any notion of a thick constitutional "wall" between church and state, replacing it with the theory government may aid religious institutions provided there is no "excessive entanglement."

This doctrine, spun out by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in three rulings Monday, commands a majority of the court and appears to leave considerable room for aiding church schools, indirectly and directly.

Clearly, the states can no longer make direct payments to teachers in these schools. But other forms of assistance, including free bus transportation and the loan of textbooks, have the court's approval.

In sum, the legal squabble over use of tax money to help church-affiliated institutions has not ended. It has simply moved to a different theoretical plane.

"The crucial question," said Burger, "is not whether some benefit accrues to a religious institution as a consequence of the legislative program, but whether its principal or primary effect advances religion."

Using this new caliper, the court approved 5 to 4 the federal program of direct construction grants to private colleges to build libraries, gymnasiums and laboratories.

Such buildings are "religiously neutral," Burger said, dismissing what he called the "simplistic argument" that every form of financial aid to church-sponsored activity violates the 1st Amendment.

But, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island laws authorizing teacher subsidies were struck down on votes of 8 to 0 and 8 to 1 "because as we see it they involve excessive entanglements between church and state," the chief justice said in announcing the rulings from the bench. Even good-willed teachers are not likely to be neutral about religion when they are under religious control and discipline, he said.

But what about other forms of assistance? For example, transportation of parochialschool pupils provided by 24 states and the supply of textbooks in seven states.

Like construction grants to church-run colleges and tax exemptions approved last year, ej,f)evidently meet the 1st Amendment standards of a majority of the high court.

As a result, along with its rulings, the court refused to hear appd8) testing West Virginia and Minnesota programs that use public money to transport children to church-run schools.

Unclear is the fate of laws in several states authorizing tuition grants to parents of parochial-school pupils or to the pupils themselves. Left also for another day was a decision on the nationwide, federally aided program of supplying library books to church-run schools.

The ruling on the 1963 law that has channeled an estimated $240 million in construction grants to church-affiliated colleges drew dissents from Justices William O. Douglas, Hugo L. Black, Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr., the only Catholic on the court.

Douglas accused the Burgerled majority of making a "radical departure" from the original concept of the 1st Amendment. He said he dissented "not because of any lack of respect for parochial schools but out of a feeling of despair that the respect which through history has been accorded the 1st Amendment is this day lost."

Burger, who has taken command of the court on churchstate questions, declared, however, "Our prior holdings to not call for total separation between church and state; total separation is not possible in an absolute sense."

Abortion-Genocide or Population Control

By Editorial Research Reports

NEW YORK — New York State's liberalized abortion law took effect one year ago Thursday.

Some call it genocide. Others call it population control. But few people are neutral or noncommittal on the subject of abortion. Although safe, legal abortions are easily obtainable in 17 states and the District of Columbia, the surgical termination of fetal life remains a deeply troubling issue.

The concern extends all the way to the White House. President Nixon announced on April 3 that he had ordered the Defense Department to abandon its policy of permitting abortions merely on the recommendation of a military doctor and one consultant. The President explained that he could not reconcile "unrestricted abortion policies, or abortion on demand" with his "personal belief in the sanctity of human life," including that of "the yet unborn."

Nixon's order directed military hospitals to conform with the abortion laws of the state in which they are situated. As a result, wives of servicemen in New York State may now find it easier to obtain an abortion than previously. The New York law, which will be one year old July 1, provides: "An abortional act is justifiable when committed upon a female with her concent by a duly licensed physician acting (a) under a reasonable belief that such act is necessary to preserve her life or (b) within 24 weeks from the commencement of her pregnancy."

Small wonder, then, that New York City has become the abortion capital of the country. Around 15,000 abortions a month are now performed there, and the rate "shows signs of increasing steadily rather than abating." Indications are that about half of all New York City abortion patients come from other states.

A move was made in the recent legislative session to repeal the New York abortion law. While the bill was defeated, three measures aimed at providing stricter regulation of abortion procedures were passed. The trio of laws (1) prohibited commercial, profit-making abortion referral services from operating in the state; (2) barred fee-splitting between hospitals and referral services; (3) required that the records of abortion patients be kept confidential.

Meanwhile, Washington, D.C., is rapildy emerging as the No. 2 abortion city in the East. This has happened despite the fact that the U.S. Supreme Court recently upheld the District of Columbia' 70-year-old abortion statute, which permits such operations only to protect the life or health of the mother. The Court held, however, that in future cases the government would have to prove not only that an abortion took place but also that the patient's life or health was not in danger -- a difficult point to establish.

Physicians appear to be losing -- or at least masking -- their traditional hostility to abortion. The 1970 American Medical Association convention voted to sanction abortions under certain conditions.

Washington Report

By Senator Symington

WASHINGTON, D.C.— Many colleges and universities throughout the nation are facing bankruptcy, elementary and secondary schools are facing a serious financial squeeze. Indeed, inflation has increased costs of education faster than the general cost of living.

Recently I joined with other members of the Senate in passing unanimously by 79-0 a bill which would provide substantial increases over both the House recommendations and the Administration's budget request for fiscal year 1972 Office of Education funds. The bill then went to conference to work out the differences between the Senate and House.

The Senate recommendation, totalling $5,604,918,000 is an increase of $451,732,000 over the budget request and $804,830,000 over the House recommendations.

The difference between the Senate and House versions is due in part to the fact the House did not regard certain programs as being authorized and therefore did not fund them. The Senate, however, implemented the contingent extension authority of the General Education Provisions Act which automatically extends such programs.

In addition, three fund requests submitted by the President to increase the 1972 budget arrived too late for House consideration. Two of those requests were considered by the Senate.

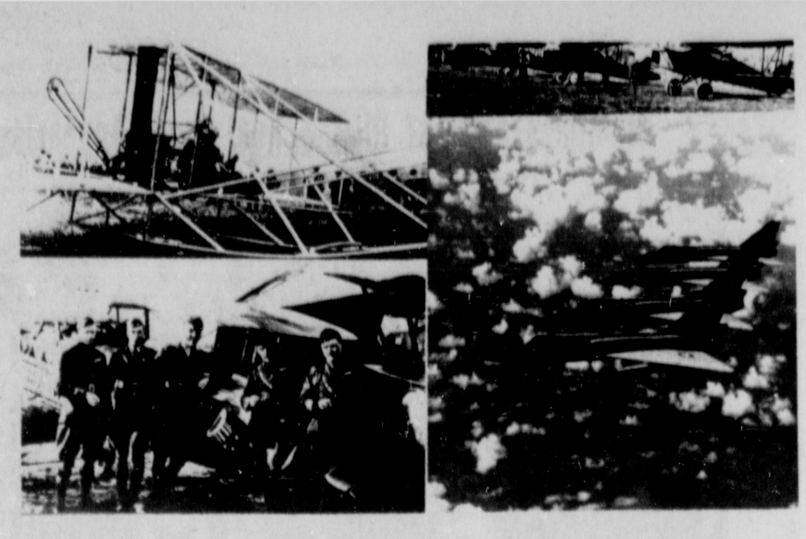
Among those programs increased by the Senate were: $2,146,885,000 for elementary and secondary education, $116,500,000 for disadvantaged children, $602,412,000 for vocational and adult education, $100,109,000 for libraries and educational communications, and $115,038,000 for research and development.

The Senate concurred with the House in voting increased funds over budget requests for school districts with large numbers of students who live on, and/or whose parents work on, federal installations. Last year appropriations for impacted aid in Missouri totalled $8,443,000. The Administration's '72 budget request for the state amounted to only $6,206,000. This program is vital to school districts around such bases as Ft. Leonard Wood, Whiteman, and Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base. The Senate and House recommendations would appropriate $9,336,000 for this program.

At the same time the Senate added to the impacted aid appropriations $60,000,000 for the first time to school districts with children who reside in public housing. This program was authorized in 1969 but had never before been funded by either house. Total authorization is $300,000,000.

The Senate increases are very important for Missouri schools as well as for schools throughout the nation. Appropriations for Missouri totalled $68,979,028 in federal education funds for fiscal year 1971, but the President's budget requests for fiscal year 1972 would have reduced that amount to $51,657,538. The Senate recommendation totals $92,576,647 -- a substantial increase over the President's budget request and over the House recommendation of $74,883,852.

The Senate-House conference report should reflect this urgent need for quality education that is demanded by both the American education system and the American people.



SELFRIDGE AIR FORCE BASE, Michigan, one of the nation's oldest and most historic military installations, will be transferred to the Air National Guard Thursday. The history made by the men of Selfridge mirrors the progress of aviation for more than half a century. The photo, upper left, shows Orville Wright at the controls with L. Thomas E. Selfridge, pioneer Army airman for whom the base was named; lower left, Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, third from left, commander of the 94th "Hat-in-the-Ring" Aero Squadron, poses with a Spad bi-plane "Somewhere in France" during World War I; upper right, are planes and crews of the 27th Pursuit Squadron as they appeared at Selfridge Field in 1930; lower right, F-106 Delta Darts of the Aerospace Defense Command's 94th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, which departed Selfridge for Wurtsmith Air Force Base, Mich., in 1969.

House Antiwar Forces Gather Huge Backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — House antiwar forces have mustered the largest group ever in losing an attempt to speed the end of the Indochina war.

The tally came on rejection, 219 to 176, of a Senate amendment to the draft-extension bill to set a nine-month deadline for U.S. withdrawal from Indochina. The draft bill now moves into Senate and House conference, where little hope is seen for full congressional approval before the present draft laws run out at midnight Wednesday.

The 176 proponents of the amendment Monday were 18 more than voted two weeks ago for a Dec. 31 cutoff of funds supporting U.S. involvement in the war.

The new antiwar voters included some surprises.

Reps. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, and John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., were among the losers. They said they voted for the deadline amendment because it was the first proposal that wouldn't tie President Nixon's hands. And both said the measure was strictly advisory in nature, expressing the sense of Congress.

There were 143 Democrats and 33 Republicans in favor of the deadline.

Backers of the withdrawal amendment said a deadline contingent on negotiating for release of all prisoners is the only sure way to guarantee a quick return of Americans held in Indochina.

Tabled, thus killed by the vote, was a motion by Rep. Charles W. Whalen to instruct House conferees to favor the deadline amendment.

It was a Whalen-sponsored measure two weeks ago that saw the previous record 158 votes favoring a year-end funds cutoff.

That measure was a bit more toughly worded, but would have had an effect similar to the amendment defeated Monday, expressing the sentiment of Congress.

Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, DMich., was Whalen's cosponsor for the primary amendment among seven defeated attempts to write a deadline.

General Sees Red Attack

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese general claimed Tuesday that Hanoi has committed 10,000 troops to an offensive against allied artillery bases in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

Maj. Gen. Phan Van Phu, commander of the 1st Division, told newsmen in Dong Ha that the enemy force is maneuvering in 800 square miles of Quang Tri province, west from the provincial capital to the Laotian border and north of Highway 9 to the demilitarized zone.

Phu said 6,000 of the enemy troops infiltrated across the DMZ since May 1. He said they have mortars, rocket launchers and antiaircraft guns but no heavy artillery.

Phu denied reports that the North Vietnamese had moved 122mm and 130mm guns across the DMZ. The general said such big guns are just north of the buffer zone but "they have not been used against our forces up to now."

The general said he expected "heavy fighting" along the defensive chain of bases in the unpopulated northwest sector. But he predicted they would be able to keep the enemy from breaking through to the coastal lowlands for a pre-election offensive in the populated regions.

Although the South Vietnamese were driven from Fire Base Fuller, Phu said the enemy is "generally weaker this year." He attributed this to the South Vietnamese invasion into Laos.

The North Vietnamese have kept up steady pressure on the allied firebases in the northwest sector with mortars, rockets and ground probes. One outpost four miles below the DMZ, Fire Base Fuller, was abandoned by the South Vietnamese last week after an 800-round mortar barrage. The hilltop base was reoccupied temporarily Sunday to provide protection for U.S. and South Vietnamese reinforcements sweeping the area.

South Vietnamese headquarters today reported only sporadic ground clashes in the region, but North Vietnamese gunners bombarded several bases and also shot down an American fighter-bomber.

A U.S. spokesman said the F4 Phantom was crippled by antiaircraft fire over the western portion of the DMZ.

Broadcast Liberties In Question by Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it came to news, the founding fathers read all about it. Television and radio weren't even a twinkle in their eye or a tingle in their ear when they wrote press freedom into the Constitution.

But if they somehow had felt news someday might flash through the air as well as roll from a press, would they have meant for electronic and print media reporters to be equals in the right of freedom from government surveillance?

If Congress pushes its contempt button against the Columbia Broadcasting System in the dispute over a House investigators' subpoena for raw material used in making the award-winning television documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon," judges may reach landmarks in defining broadcast news liberty.

"I can assure you that we at CBS have not taken lightly either your subpoena or the concern that prompted it," CBS President Frank Stanton told the investigations subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee during a four-hour hearing last week.

"We recognize that journalists can make mistakes, that editing involves the exercise of judgment, and that we and other journalists can benefit by criticism," added Stanton. He refused to show Congress edited-out material or discuss editing activities that went into making the documentary which attacked Pentagon public relations practices.

"But I respectfully submit that where journalistic judgments are investigated in a congressional hearing, especially by the committee with jurisdiction to legislate about broadcast licenses, the official effort to compel evidence about our editing processes has an unconstitutionally chilling effect," Stanton said.

Thus, he set the stage for an expected battle over the power of Congress and the rights of broadcasters under the 1st Amendment.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, DW.V.a., chairman of both the panel of probers and the full Commerce Committee which is expected to be asked this week to recommend contempt action against Stanton, repeatedly insisted the case was not a 1st Amendment matter.

The issue, he said, involves whether a broadcaster, who is accused of distorting a program and misleading the public about the views of those appearing on it, can be held answerable in an appearance before congressional investigators.

Staggers said courts "have repeatedly held that under our system, the broadcaster is a fiduciary or trustee to the public." He quoted Chief Justice Warren E. Burger as saying:

"After nearly five decades of operation, the broadcast industry does not seem to have grasped the simple fact that a broadcast license is a public trust subject to termination for breach of duty."

But Stanton cited various legal authorities he said supported his view that broadcast journalists, like print media, are entitled to freedom of the press guaranteed by the 1st Amendment.

House on Verge of Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — If it sticks to its rigid announced schedule, the House will have set a five-day spending record when it leaves next Thursday for a long weekend recess.

It will have passed in five legislative days five appropriation bills whose $41-billion total in soc-alled new obligational authority also will be a record for nondefense measures.

Two bills that cleared the House last Wednesday and Thursday appropriate $12.4 billion for the Department of Agriculture, environmental protection and consumer services, and $3.68 billion for the State, Justice and Commerce departments and the federal courts.

Scheduled for House passage today, Tuesday and Wednesday are bills to provide $18.1 billion for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Veterans Administration, National Science Foundation and the space agency; $4.48 billion for the Treasury Department and the Postal Service, and $2.35 billion for the Interior Department. Their combined total is $373 million more than the President requested.

None of the five pending bills has been acted on by the Senate.

The House previously passed two money bills financing the legislative establishment and the Office of Education. Both have cleared the Senate but compromise versions must be worked out before they go to the President.

Six more annual money bills—including the granddaddy of them all the Defense Department measure—have not started through either branch of Congress.

Since all provide funds for the government financial year starting July 1, no federal agency is likely to have its budget cleared when the new year starts.

Anticipating that annual situation, the House has sent to the Senate an emergency bill providing temporary and limited financing until Aug. 6.

That's when the summer recess starts—and probably also when another emergency financing resolution is considered.

Ark-Mo Begins Building Gas Plant

BLYTHEVILLE— The Arkansas-Missouri Power Company has begun building a 2.5-million-dollar liquified natural gas plant, the first of its kind in Arkansas or Missouri, according to a company spokesman.

Ark-Mo president Charles Czeschin said the storage section of the plant should be completed by Dec. 1 and is being built because "We are faced with the necessity of halting the connection of new residences and stores unless we can provide a larger supply on cold winter days."

Using a refrigeration system — to be completed by the 1972-73 heating season — natural gas will be cooled for storage to 259 degrees below zero.

Cooling to this level reduces gas in volume about 600 times. The liquified gas then will be pumped into a 98-foot-high tank that has a diameter of 76 feet. The insulated tank will hold the liquid equivalent of 187 million cubic feet of gas.

On cold winter days, Czeschin said, the liquid, as it is needed, will be warmed to convert it back to gas so it can be "pumped back into the lines to supplement our pipeline supply."

Czeschin said Ark-Mo hopes the plant will carry the company through the nation's natural gas shortage. Ark-Mo is the parent company of Associated Natural Gas, serving the Sikeston area.

"It will provide enough additional winter supply to enable us to continue to serve the growth in residences and small commercial installations for the next four or five years," he said. "Hopefully, the supply crisis will have diminished by that time."

The plant is on a 25-acre site about four miles north of Blytheville. There is enough room for an additional unit if needed, according to a company representative.

The automated plant will be operated by remote control from Campbell, Mo.

IT RAINED BEANS

JOAO PESSOA, Brazil (AP) — It rained beans the other day, Brazilian rancher Salvador Targino insisted, as he showed newsmen and local officials the small vegetables that fell suddenly on his property.

That's what happened, all right, said Delmiro Maia, a federal agriculture official assigned to Paraiba state. Maia speculated that a recent storm swooped up a pile of beans from Western Africa and dumped them over Northeastern Brazil.

That's The Law

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Arnie met a fraud in need who was a fraud indeed. He sold gullible Arnie what was proported to be a genuine 100 per cent mink coat. When he got it home, however, his wife, who was more astute in such matters, quickly pointed out that the genuine 100 per cent mink coat had been made at so small sacrifice to at least a dozen rabbits.

Having paid for the coat by post-dated check, Arnie took the news with a philosophical calm. His calm was shattered the next morning, however, when he went to the bank to stop payment on the check only to that his fraudulent friend had already been there and had cashed the check.

"You've gotta' be wrong," Arnie insisted. "The check was post dated. It wasn't to be paid until tomorrow. Somebody at the bank has goofed!"

If anyone's goofed," was the answer, "it's you. You not only gave out a post-dated check, but you gave it to a swindler to boot. If a person wants to give out a post-dated check, he does so at his own risk."

Intent upon holding the bank liable for cashing the check prematurely, Arnie took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Arnie suffer the loss?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that unless a depositor waives his rights in some manner, a post-dated check is payable on the day of its date. If it is presented earlier and the bank pays it, the depositor can recover. And, in this case, concluded the judge, Arnie did not waive his rights. He signed nothing and in no other way did he relieve the bank of its responsibility.

Missouri Supreme Court Okays Commitment of Fisher

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court affirmed Monday the commitment of Gary Everett Fisher to the Fulton State Hospital by the Jackson County Juvenile Court.

Juvenile Judge Alvin C. Randall committed young Fisher after a 5½-day hearing on evidence he killed Mrs. Kay Ransier, who rented an apartment from his parents.

"We hold that the evidence was sufficient to sustain a finding that Gary was guilty beyond a reasonable doubt of killing Kay Ransier," the court said in an opinion by Judge James A. Finch Jr.

The juvenile judge had ordered him committed to the Fulton hospital "for care and treatment until further order of the court."

In the appeal Fisher contended he sould have been given a jury trial. But the Supreme Court said under Missouri's constitution and juvenile code a juvenile can be tried in juvenile court without a jury.

In another juvenile case, the court affirmed the life sentence in Cass County Circuit Court of Carl Allen Mcclure Jr. he pleaded guilty to a charge of killing his stepmother, Virginia McClure, on his father's farm near Pleasant Hill, Mo., April 30, 1962. He was 15 years old at the time.

In other felony cases the court:

Affirmed the conviction and life sentence of Hberbert Ned Tate, one of four men charged with the robbery-death of a restaurant operator, Mike LoGrasso, in St. Louis.

Upheld the conviction in Jackson County Circuit Court of Milton Terry Kelton on a charge of assault with intent to kill with malice aforethought. Kelton was accused of shooting a man named Ewing who had just won between $200 and $300 in a crap game.

Affirmed the St. Louis Circuit Court Conviction of John L. Banks on a charge of robbery with a dangerous weapon. He was given a 20-year sentence for his prt in the robbery of the Dutch Boy Market at 1728 Union B.LVD. IN St. Louis Feb. 21, 1970.

I hope this is one reinstated tradition that continues because a White House luncheon is a delightful experience.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM...

I am pleased to announce today my co-sponsorship of the proposed Farm Credit Act of 1971. Hearings on the proposed legislation will begin on July 12 before the House Committee on Agriculture.

The Farm Credit System over the years has been the primary and sometimes sole source of financial aid to rural citizens. The System has evolved from a series of laws passed by the Congress, beginning in 1916. The precautionary limitations incorporated at that time are now inhibiting the extension of the amount and types of credit, and the flexibility needed by the modern farm community.

One new area of credit extension will be in the field of rural residence financing. The Federal Land Banks and Intermediate Credit Banks will be authorized to make loans in this area for the building, buying, improving, and repairing of non-farm rural homes. This provision will allow the Farm Credit System to contribute in a new way to rural development. This service will fill a gap between areas served by savings and loan associations and the areas served by subsidized credit for public housing and the Farmer's Home Administration low income borrowers' loans.

This bill will also provide for the financing of farm related services such as custom spraying, pruning, and harvesting.

Permission will be granted to the Federal Land Banks and Intermediate Credit Banks to own and lease necessary facilities and equipment as needed by eligible borrowers, enabling farmers to have use of infrequently used, but valuable and expensive machines and buildings.

For the Federal Land Bank specifically, this bill would remove the restriction which limits loans to sixty-five per cent of the farm's appraised value, thus creating a greater flexibility in mortgage lending. This step will place more of the new loan responsibility on the Bank, and will undoubtedly be important to young farmers as they seek adequate financing for their new enterprises.

Sound security other than first mortgage on real estate would be acceptable in certain situations, thereby making credit available for long term credit needs. Much needed flexibility would be provided when the farmer has clear repayment capacity and additional collateral to supplement rural real estate.

It should be noted that my bill does not extend the operation of the Federal Farm Credit System to financially related services, as has been proposed by some. Examples of such services are estate planning and record keeping. I feel that such an extension would be carrying the system too far. Estate planning and record keeping are functions equally essential for business and professional people. There is nothing about those services which are peculiar to farmers. These are fields more appropriately left to our conventional lending institutions. Furthermore, I believe that if we take our Federal Farm Credit System so far afield, there will be an irresistible demand from the public to terminate the preferential tax status enjoyed by our Federal Farm Credit System. I am in accord with the Administration on this point and subscribe to the statement of Under Secretary of Agriculture Phil Campbell made before the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry's Subcommittee on Agricultural Credit on May 20, 1971:

The Administration has reservations about the possible imbalances in the competitive relationships between private lenders and the Farm Credit System which could result from the Farm Credit System entering into new fields of lending and services while maintaining current tax exemptions.

I am convinced tht the next decade will be a crucial time for funding the lending operations of the Farm Credit Banks. Both political and economic factors promise a degree of competition by borrowers in the money and capital markets heretofore unknown to the Farm Credit System. In the past ten years the debt of the Farm Credit System has tripled. The total of all securities outstanding was less than 10 million dollars in 1960, but now is nearly forty million dollars. This trend is expected to continue. To meet this need, the Farm Credit System must be modernized and made more responsive to the American farming community which it is designed to serve.

P.S. FROM BARBARA

After a lapse of over 30 years, Mrs. Nixon has reinstated a White House tradition, and I'm glad I was here to be invited and involved. This spring, she hosted a series of three luncheons for the wives of Members of Congress.

There can be nothing more elegant than a White House luncheon, and I might add, more filling. This was no dainty "salad luncheon". The main course was a delicious seafood dish in crepes, fresh buttered asparagus, hearts of palm salad, and the most enormous cream puff filled with a light custard and absolutely smothered with whipped cream.

The mood of the luncheon was elegant, but very informal. The entertainment was the Marine Corps Strolling Strings, and they are always delightful.

We were served coffee in the Blue Room , and Tricia joined our group for a short time. At that point, early in May, she was busy with wedding preparations.

Nixon Will Not Seek Tax Reduction to Help Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today President Nixon will not seek tax reductions to give the economy further stimulation, nor will he attempt to speed federal spending.

In addition, the White House announced Nixon will veto a $5.6-billion public works bill, including a proposal to create jobs for the unemployed.

Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally told newsmen Nixon will not institute a wage and price review board in an attempt to control inflation, nor will he use powers granted to him by Congress to clamp down mandatory wage and price controls on the economy.

The White House announced that Connally, a Democrat and former Texas governor, has been designated chief economic spokesman for Nixon.

Although the economy has not moved fast enough as yet to cut into a 6.2 per cent unemployment rate, Connally said the President has decided there is enough stimulation to do the job eventually.

The secretary told newsmen that an unemployment rate of four per cent, considered by economists to be a full employment, "is a myth. It's never happened, except in war time."

He said the President wants to reduce the unemployment rate and will look favorably on proposals that would carry out that goal. The public works bill the President is vetoing is not in that category, the secretary said.

President Nixon's economic advisers have said the unemployment rate would be coming down to the 4.5 per cent zone by the middle of 1972. Connally appeared to soft pedal, if not abandon, that projection.

"I would not try to peg the precise point that we would try to achieve," he said.

Three Bound Over In Store Robbery

HAYTI — Three Florida men, who are being held in the Pemiscot County Jail for lifting about $650 out of the cash register in McAdams Food Store in Hayti June 14th, were bound over to Circuit Court Thursday following a preliminary examination in magistrate court, Judge Jerry Stillman presiding.

The trio, Willie James King - Edwin Kinsey -Tommie Harley, all of Jacksonville, were represented by their court appointed attorneys.

During the hearing, County Prosecuting Attorney Art Stephenson introduced as State's witnesses "Cobb' McAdams, owner - operator of the Hayti supermarket, Art Berry who is the store butcher, and Deputy Sheriff Gene James.

McAdams testified that the three men entered the store and seemed to be just browsing around. The butcher cut one of the three some meat. McAdams went on to say that he was waiting on one of the men at the counter. When McAdams turned away from the man, he allegedly reached into the cash register and took the money. McAdams saw the man leaving the store after realizing what had taken place and ordered him to stop. The man ran. McAdams then yelled to the butcher, Berry, who followed the man on foot and watched him get into a tan and cream colored car. Both McAdams and Berry testified that neither actually saw the man take the money from the cash register.

Berry identified the escape vehicle as an Oldsmobile. However, it was reported that another person saw the car and said it was a tan over cream Electra Buick.

Deputy Sheriff Gene James told the court that he was in Arkansas when the robbery took place. He heard the traffic on his radio and proceeded North on Highway 61. Near the Steele intersection, Deputy James spotted the vehicle which had been described as the get - away car. He turned around in pursuit.

The car was stopped in Arkansas by Mississippi County officers and Arkansas State Police who set up a road block on I-55. The three men, who had allegedly held up the Hayti store, were taken into custody by Arkansas authorities and lodged in the Mississippi County Jail at Blytheville.

Deputy James stated that although he could not catch the vehicle it never got out of his sight. He told the court that the red lights on his car were in operation at the time, but the car occupied by the three Negro men seemed to be constantly gaining in the chase.

Hayti Police Chief "Fritz" McKay was called to the stand. Chief McKay testified that he was not too familiar with the case, pointing out that he had not assisted in the arrest of the trio.

After hearing the evidence, Judge Jerry Stillman ordered that the three men be bound over to Pemiscot County circuit court. The date for their trial has not been set.

Sexy Salesman in Automobile Business

A NOSE for blossoms but eyes only for the photographer. The young lady is Dawn Bryant, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Most working women are deskbound, but Jean Leonardi spends her days standing on a curb looking for people who want to buy cars.

"The only one in town, and for all I know, the only one in the South," says the 25-year-old green-eyed blonde.

Joan was a private secretary until a month ago when she answered a newspaper ad from a Miami Ford agency that wanted to see if women could sell cars. Now she's in the top 10 among the firm's 30 salesmen.

Although basically a new-car salesman, Joan also sells used cars and trucks.

"I sold a truck last week," she said. "I still don't know what I sold the guy, but he lived it."

Winner of a hot pants contest at a local club, Jean usually wears pants or skirts to work. She says she sells mainly to couples.

"I make it a point to include the woman in the conversation and keep on a professional level. As long as the wives can see that I'm only interested in selling cars, there's no problem." Jean admits there are all types of car salesmen.

A native of Chesapeake, W.Va., Jean has been in Miami two years. This is her first real sales job.

Tense, Chilling Horror Novel

THE OTHER. By Thomas Tryon. Knopf. $6.95.

A horror story that builds up a lot of psychological pressure, this novel centers around a pair of 12-year-old twins.

The setting is a big old farmhouse near a small Connecticut village, and the period is the 1930's.

The twins are Holland, an enigmatic, sometimes moody boy, and Niles, a light-hearted, imaginative creature who is greatly different from his brother.

They live with their Russian grandmother, who is the head of the household; their mother, a tragic figure who stays in her bedroom nipping at a bottle of whisky; an uncle, aunt and nephew — the latter a repulsive brat; their 19-year-old sister and her husband.

Tension gradually builds up as a series of "accidents" befall the nephew, the mother and the sister's newborn baby. Perhaps it is no accident that as each bizarre incident unfolds, Holland is on the scene? But then Niles, who worships his brother and tries his best to be like him, is present too.

The grandmother, whose psychic powers seem a part of her Russian nature, suspects what evil forces are operating in the family, but is powerless to prevent disaster.

Tryon is a skilled creator of atmosphere and a deft inventor of subtle plot changes. He has written a chilling yarn.

Coffee Corner

By Cherie

"What we need is a family outing," stated my brother-in-law and husband as they quickly backed the car out of the drive at the crack of dawn to be the first on the golf course. "We'll all go fishing and have a picnic when we get home — just get everything ready!" they hollered as the car plummeted out of sight, before I had a chance to even open my mouth and at least utter a curse upon their golf game, or refuse, or do something — course the way they play golf a curse would really be an unnecessary waste of time and effort on my part; and since I hadn't been given the opportunity to refuse I trudged indoors and began planning a picnic. Well, the little fellas decided fried chicken was a necessity on outings and so I began. Have you ever fried thirty pieces of chicken? I hadn't, but I did, and it only took me all morning long and many dark thoughts to get the job done. I packed up quantities of food, my sister-in-law packed up quantities of food, the kids packed up quantities of fishing tackle, worms, and such, and I suppose the fellas were out knocking up quantities of points on the golf course. At long last, our heros returned home, worn out, irritable, and bitterly regretting the statements they had made that morning when leaving bright and eager and full of great hope for their game. Alas, now their great hope had fizzled out and a shower and a nap were really what they had in mind. not so, that chicken was gonna get eaten on a picnic and that was that. So heaving a big sigh, everyone grabbed up food and such and started packing the car when someone screams and I turn around to find the chicken lying all over the patio. "Well," I manage to say, "what's a picnic without a little dirt and bugs, and now all we've got awaiting us are the bugs!" So brushing each piece off lovingly, we finished packing the car, I locked the door and we got ready to leave when Charles asked me where his glasses were. These glasses always touch off a sore spot between us as they are brand new due to the fact that he can't find his others, which weren't very old which he had had to replace because he had lost the pair before that also! "Well," I said, "they're in the house, go get them." "Give me the key," he said. "Use your own," I said. "Mine is in the house, "he said. "Would you believe mine is too?" I said. I refuse to repeat any more of the conversation on the grounds that it wasn't very nice! And after all that, there just ain't no poetic justice cause nobody caught any fish or even had a nibble. In fact, the only person I could think of that ended up happy that day was the locksmith!!

NEW MUSIC IDEA

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—An electronic synthesizer may be the device that enables future composers to hear their compositions instantly instead of written music played by musicians.

A Bradley University professor of music, Dean C. Howard, has been composing music by substituting a console of knobs, dials and tapes for the traditional quill and manuscript paper.

The synthesizer was purchased with a federal grant supplemented by a gift from Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity.

"The young composer puts on tape exactly what he wants," Howard said. "He's not limited to writing a composition and then trying to get a symphony conductor to perform it."

PET DOCTOR

By T. M. Eagle, D.V.M.

THE SPRAYING MALE CAT

Question: Is there any possible way of discouraging our male cat from spraying on our furniture. (H.W.M., Detroit, Mich.)

Dear H.W., This unruly house vice of cats starts out as a natural instinct of the male. He will overdo himself during the mating season, especially if there happens to be a female cat close by in season. If he is allowed to leave his odor around the house he will return time and again to these specific spots just as he would do out doors. Break the cycle by either boarding him out for a week or keeping him penned up in a garage, preferably in a kennel-type housing. The pet supply stores stock several brands of cat repellant sprays. Use this on the furniture. Have the cat checked to determine we have no bladder or urinary problems. Castration after nine months of age will eliminate the sexual ambitions of kitty and he should soon give up on the spraying and use the little box that is kept clean and fresh for him each day. (You may send your questions to Dr. Eagle, P.O. Box 1042, Columbia, Mo. 65201).

HOW TO PACK THE BIRTHDAY PICNIC BASKET

with FUN and FINE NUTRITION

Picnics are fun! What better way to celebrate a birthday? There's the eager zest of eating out-of-doors, the easy-does-it delight of finger foods and the sweet sauce of sunshine making every bite taste better.

Most picnics come complete with children, making good nutrition extra important. And with a little planning you can avoid serving empty calorie snacks and be sure your picnic basket contains the elements of a well-balanced meal.

One finger food packed with plenty of nutrition is thrifty chicken. Butter Baked Wings and Drumsticks are just right for kid-sized fingers and hearty appetites. The National Broiler Council points out that chicken has a high quality protein content that no other meat exceeds and few equal. And real, farm-fresh butter enhances its delicate flavor.

Pack crisp fresh vegetable sticks, another carefree finger food, to dip in a nourishing mixture of cottage cheese blended with Cheddar cheese and zippy seasonings. Such fun to eat vegetables this way and the cheeses add a protein bonus.

When planning to eat enroute, don't forget to pack pre-moistened towelettes for a quick before and after picnic clean-up.

Another delightful and nourishing picnic meal, best carried in an insulated bag, features Chicken Salad Heroes. Cream cheese gives novel flavor and added nutrients to the chunky chicken filling. Chopped celery, carrots and radishes add delightful texture contrast, too. Pile this hearty chicken salad on buttered buns for a "hero" that's really heroic in flavor and nutrition.

Homemade Peanut Lassie Cookies have an appealing nutty, sweet flavor and feature a delicious cream cheese frosting. They make a fine, nourishing dessert served with cold milk toted along in a vacuum bottle. Milk, an all-around food, gives you energy when you're on the go, according to the American Dairy Association.

BUTTER BAKED WINGS AND DRUMSTICKS

12 broiler-fryer chicken drumsticks (3 pounds)
12 broiler-fryer chicken wings (2 pounds)
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 cups saltine cracker crumbs
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 cup (2 sticks) butter, melted

Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. Combine crumbs and poultry seasoning. Dip chicken in butter, then roll in crumbs to coat well. Place on two foil-lined 15-1/2 x 10-1/2 x 1-inch baking pans. Drizzle remaining butter over chicken. Bake in 375°F. oven 45 to 60 minutes, until tender. YIELD: 12 servings.

CHICKEN SALAD HEROS

1/4 cup milk
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2-1/2 cups diced cooked chicken (from Simmered Chicken°)
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped pared carrot
1/3 cup chopped radishes
1/2 teaspoon onion salt
Dash pepper
4 hero rolls
Butter

Blend milk into cream cheese and beat until smooth. Add chicken, vegetables, onion salt and pepper; mix well. Cut rolls in half and scoop out some of the bread to make a cavity. Spread with butter. Fill each roll with 1/4 of chicken salad mixture (about 2/3 cup); replace tops and wrap tightly in foil or plastic wrap. Chill before taking to picnic. YIELD: 4 servings.

°Simmered Chicken

1 broiler-fryer chicken, whole or cut in serving pieces
2 cups water
1 small onion, sliced
2 celery tops
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon Ac'cent
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Put chicken in kettle; add water and remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil; cover tightly. Reduce heat and simmer 1 hour, or until tender. Remove from heat; strain broth. Refrigerate chicken and broth at once. When chicken is cooled, remove meat from bones; dice.

CHEESE DIP

2 cups (1 pound) cottage cheese
1/4 cup milk
1-1/2 cups (6 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
1/4 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives, optional
1 teaspoon chopped chives

Combine cottage cheese and milk in container of electric blender. Cover and process at high speed until smooth. Turn into mixing bowl. Stir in Cheddar cheese, olives and chives. Chill. Take to picnic in insulated container. Serve with cherry tomatoes, carrot sticks, celery pieces and cauliflowerets. YIELD: About 3 cups.

Note: If using electric mixer, beat cottage cheese until smooth; add milk.

MOLASSES RAISIN BARS

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, softened
1/2 cup sugar
3 eggs
3/4 cup Grandma's Old Fashioned Molasses
1-1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1-1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
2 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1-1/2 cups raisins

In large mixing bowl beat together butter, sugar, eggs and molasses until well blended. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and cloves; blend into molasses mixture. Stir in oats and raisins. Spread batter onto a buttered and floured 15-1/2 x 10-1/2 x 1-inch baking pan. Bake in 350° F. oven 15 to 20 minutes. Cool in pan. Top with Glaze° and decorate with nuts. Cut into 3 x 2-inch bars. YIELD: 25 bars.

°Glaze

Gradually blend 2 cups confectioners' sugar and 3 tablespoons milk into 2 tablespoons soft butter; beat until smooth.

PEANUT LASSIE COOKIES

2-1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter, softened
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
3/4 cup Grandma's Old Fashioned Molasses
1/2 cup creamy peanut butter
1/2 cup water

Sift together flour, baking soda and salt. Beat butter with sugar, egg, molasses and peanut butter until creamy. Blend in flour mixture alternately with water. Drop by rounded teaspoons onto buttered baking sheet. Bake in 350°F. oven 8 to 10 minutes, until lightly browned. When cool, frost with Cream Cheese Frosting°. Wrap in plastic bags or foil for picnic. YIELD: About 5 dozen cookies.

°Cream Cheese Frosting

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend confectioners' sugar and vanilla into softened cream cheese. Beat until smooth and creamy.

ZEBRA MILK

Yield: 11 cups

1 pint chocolate ripple ice cream, softened
1 can (6 ounces) frozen lemonade concentrate
8 cups milk
1 pint chocolate ripple ice cream

In a mixing bowl while beating ice cream, add lemonade. Gradually add milk. Top with scoops of ice cream. Yield: 11 cups.
